MARKET CLOSED MUCH STRONGER

Market Is Without Any Special Feature—Bank Statement Was Better than Expected—Gradual Rising Market Is Expected for Two Months.

(By I. N. Kinsey) GLOBE, April 27.—Walker Brothers of New York say: Market ruled dull and featureless until shortly before the close, when prices briskly moved upward under leadership of Union Pacific and Reading. Although there was nothing particularly encouraging in the bank statement, it was better than had been generally expected. While market has been almost entirely without feature the past week, yet it has appearance of being well sold out and has advanced easily on considerable buying. Market will probably continue dull during the coming week and stocks look like a purchase on recessions.

(By H. H. Bru Co.) GLOBE, April 27.—Little can be said of the stock market today in view of the general dullness. Some of the railroad stocks showed a little activity, most of them, however, showed a sagging tendency to the close. The general belief is that between now and June 1 we shall have better prices, but we would take advantage of every opportunity to take profits and reduce lines of stocks that have not the backing of substantial earnings. These should be accumulated and held for a good rise. Money is easy in both New York and Boston, and we hear of various pools which are about to start to make a market in their specialties. This is mostly in railroad stocks, and we may look for Union Pacific and Southern Pacific selling a good deal higher.

Mountains of Borax Worth Billions. In an article on the resources of Nevada and the Death Valley region, a western paper says that Mount Blanc, approximately 1,500 feet high and two miles in diameter, is a mass of pure borax. It is the property of one man, Frank M. Smith of Oakland owns this mountain absolutely, and thereby controls the visible supply of borax in the world. The market value of this borax where it lies is something more than $100 a ton. Experts estimate that the mountain has at least 3,000,000,000 tons of borax in it.

Bears Try to Board Train. Two big black bears trying to board the eastbound Pennsylvania limited, due here at 10 o'clock this morning, caused excitement among the passengers and crew. The train was running between Portage and Bens creek on the summit of the Alleghenies, when the stenographer, John McEllinen, discovered the bears in pursuit. Passengers watched the race from the rear of the observation car. One bear ran along the westbound track, while the other took the east-bound track. At a curve in the road the latter attempted to leap on the train, but missed the observation platform. The bears kept up the chase for nearly two miles and were then lost to sight in the woods.

Walter Wynecoop, a brakeman, noticed the same bears following the limited several weeks ago. At that time the pair broke up a tramps' camp which had been thriving at Kittanning Point during the winter.—Altoona correspondence to Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Notice. The Globe Directory company has agreed to paint street signs for naming of the streets free of cost to the city, the city to furnish all material. The company will establish the numbers and place them on the houses at 50 cents per number. In order to do this the co-operation of the business men of Globe is requested to the extent of liberal advertising in the directory. We hope they will help us out by giving us their advertising contracts, as otherwise the work will be delayed indefinitely.

Pointed Paragraphs. Wise men are always in haste, but never in a hurry. It's the last word that usually brings on the first blow. You can't blame a physician for trying to "heel" himself. With some artists painting is more of a habit than an art. A good workman said a poor boss never trot in double harness long. It takes a skillful artist to make a speaking likeness of a dumb person. The tongue of a flatterer either has a fool back of it or one in front of it. How much easier it is to buy things on the installment plan than it is to pay for them that way!—Chicago News.

Reflections of a Bachelor. A woman calls it news if she tells it and scandal if anybody else does. The best way to get excused for not being able to earn your own living is to be a poet. A nice thing about sending telegrams is you can shift the blame for the bad spelling. If a woman could talk in three languages she would have to be able to do it all at the same time to believe that she was having a good time. When a man sneaks away from his office to go to the races he pretends he doesn't know what horse won so his family will think he went to the funeral of a relative.—New York Press.
