STRIKE AFFECTS TUCSON SHOPS

Thirty Boilermakers in Southern Pacific Shops Quit Work in Sympathy with Los Angeles Strikers—Helpers Remain at Work in Shops.

All the boilermakers and helpers employed at the Southern Pacific shops in this city went on a strike yesterday, says the Tucson Star.

More than thirty boilermakers laid down their tools and the clang of the riveters' hammers is temporarily silenced, according to the men who are out.

Extending from the east end of the Tucson division at Rio Grande, on the New Mexico side of the river, just across the line from Texas, to Portland on one branch of the line and Ogden, Utah, on the other branch, the strike of the boilermakers threatens to assume serious proportions for the railroad company if it is continued for any length of time.

The difficulty, originating from an apparently trivial matter, has now apparently assumed large proportions, as the constant use of the boilermakers is very essential to every division.

The only boilershops on the Tucson division are located at Tucson, although there are two boilermakers stationed at Yuma with their helpers. It was learned that these men were also called out in the sympathetic strike.

In a talk with several boilermakers here yesterday it was learned that relations between the members of the union and the Southern Pacific officials have always been amicable.

The present difficulty is not due to any trouble on the Tucson division, but is caused by the order, calling a sympathetic strike with Los Angeles.

It was impossible to learn just the cause of the trouble in Los Angeles. All that is known here is that a foreman discharged a member of the union and two helpers in the Los Angeles shops. The local there took exception to this action and filed a protest. From what can be learned the protest was not allowed and the discharged men were not returned to work.

The result was that the Los Angeles local was called out and a sympathetic strike was declared on the Southern Pacific division extending from El Paso to Portland and also to Ogden.

Master Mechanic O'Leary, when called up by telephone yesterday, confirmed the strike in the local shops. He added, however, that the helpers had not gone out on a strike and stated that they would be at work today as usual.

None of the men who are on strike would venture any opinion as to the duration of the strike. They were non-committal beyond stating that all the boilermakers had gone out and that the strike had been called on all divisions of the system in sympathy with the Los Angeles local.

SUPPLIES FOR THE SENATE

Remarkable List Compiled by the Secretary in His Annual Report

Senators are a thirsty lot. The report of Charles G. Bennett, secretary of the United States senate, shows that during the last fiscal year, that august body consumed 860 cases of mineral water, costing $4,504.70. Then there was $2,025.87 for carbonized mineral water and $318.97 for lemons and sugar for the famous senate lemonade, making a total of $6,849.54 for drinkables, and not a drop of anything "hard," as far as the official list shows. Since there are ninety senators, the per capita consumption is about $76. It should be remembered also that while there are some senators who drink a great deal of mineral waters, there are also some who drink very little, and there is much curiosity here as to who drank the most last year.

But why in the name of all that is unparliamentary did any senator need a "skirt trunk" costing $26.70? The official list of expenditures makes no explanation of this interesting item. Another peculiar item is that of "cosmetique, 40 cents," and it is thought that this may have been incurred about the same time as the skirt trunk. Two branding irons, costing $3.50, are on the list and it is supposed they were supplied to Senator Tillman.

An echo of the good old days when the senators received free transportation from the railroads and were thus enabled to pocket the 20 cents a mile allowed by the government is contained in the item, "Pass cases, 9.30." There are $88 worth of feather dusters on the list, but it is promised that this will not occur again, as it is realized that more effective weapons are required in strife with the president. For sponges the senate makes the modest outlay of $510.21.

For the large number of bald heads in the senate a remarkable quantity of preparations for the hair was used. Here are some of the entries: Bay rum, $30.25; witch hazel, $14; hair tonic, $32.57; brillantine, $1.20.

A silver inkstand for the vice president's room, costing $200, has been noticed before in the public prints. Then, on the last day of the last session, when the president and his cabinet went to the capitol to help close up the session, they ate $26.35 worth of food for luncheon. No less than $209.75 for manicure sets for the members of the senate indicates that the fair manicurists in this town are losing considerable trade. Six sewing sets, at a total cost of $26.50, are on the list.

Glove and handkerchief sets figure prominently in the report, as also do opera bags, hand bags, engagement pads and such like.

It is easy to guess that all of these articles are utilized by the senators and their families, but it is puzzling to understand who makes away with hundreds of bushels and pounds of oats, flaxseed meal, bran meal, rock salt, etc., and they certainly do not eat axle grease, soap, rosin, tar, spool cotton, cheese cloth, pumice stone, Georgia pine, screen hinges, brass tacks, wire head nails, monkey wrenches and paste fillers, nor is it reasonable to suppose that these solons drink mustard liniment, petroleum, turpentine, arnica, mahogany varnish and a lot of other stuff which is bought in wholesale lots. These probably were bought for the horses on the senate mail delivery wagons and the vehicles themselves.—Washington dispatch to the New York Herald.

UNITED STATES COINS

Some Facts in Relation Thereto that Are of General Interest

Many thousands of dollars in standard silver "cart wheels," halves, and quarters are being shipped to southern bankers now. They are to be used in paying negroes working in the cotton fields. The southern negro is suspicious of fresh, unfolded treasury notes, and prefers his wages in silver, the cheerful jingle of which can be heard in his pocket. The government pays the express charges on shipments of silver from the treasury. When it accumulates in the banks, which it will in due time, the bankers must pay the cost of shipping the bulky wealth to a subtreasury for exchange.

There seems to be no end to the ways and means employed by ingenious merchants and promoters in the effort to use United States coin as an advertising medium. The authorities are constantly putting a stop to various devices planned with the idea of getting free advertising at the expense of the treasury.

A new way of using the government coins to exploit a commercial scheme has just been brought to the attention of Treasurer Treat. In a remittance from a southern bank were found a number of silver dollars on one side of which was pasted the printed card or label of a business firm. As the paper on which the notices are printed is cut a little smaller than the coin and stuck on with adhesive glue, the removal of the paper is made with great difficulty.

The inventor of the scheme evidently counts on doing an extensive business as at the bottom of the card is printed "Copyrighted." This scheme, if permitted, would make all such pieces simply tokens for advertising purposes. The department will not receive money so defaced, but will return it at the sender's expense for cleaning; otherwise the coin would have to be specially treated by the department for the removal of the paper before it could be reused.

About once in so often it becomes necessary for the secretary of the treasury to issue a general circular of warning for the benefit of coin collectors who have notions that the government is in the market for rare coins and will pay fancy prices for old and scarce specimens. Lately a report has been circulated in the press that certain issues of continental currency are as rare as black pearls and about as valuable.

This innocent paragraph has brought a flood of letters to the department, from holders of this currency, who are willing to sell out at pearl prices. The department is sending to such hopeful applicants copies of the following circular:

"The various issues of continental currency are never redeemable by the United States government, as reorganized under the constitution. By the act of August 4, 1790, it was receivable at the treasury in subscriptions to a loan at the rate of $100 in continental money for $1 in specie. By the act of March 3, 1797, it was declared that said money would be receivable as above until December 22, 1797, and no longer.

"It will be seen at once from the above that such currency has no money value, even if the notes be genuine."
"The government never pays any premium on currency, no matter how old and valuable it may be to collectors," said Treasurer Treat. "The treasury will pay the face value of any United States obligation, no matter what the date of issue may be. But we make no distinction between the various issues of coin and currency of the United States, neither receiving nor paying a premium in any case.

"None of the coins of the United States have been 'called in.' All statements to the contrary are erroneous, and their origin and purport unknown. Application for list of premium coins should be addressed to some of the coin dealers to be found in all large cities. Notes issued by the so-called Confederate States of America, and by the various state banks, are not redeemable by the United States."—Washington letter in the Brooklyn Eagle.
