The Growth of Socialism.

As the official canvass is reported from different sections of the country, one of the most surprising features brought to light in connection with the late election is the heavy vote that was polled for the socialist candidates.

Similar advances come from nearly all parts of the United States. While American common sense remains what it is there will, of course, be no reason to fear that any political craze will gain an important and permanent abiding place in our politics.

Only once since 1860 has a third party made so strong a showing in the matter of rapid gains as did the socialist party this year.

Almost without warning a new force appears on the political field. With only the shred of an organization, without organs, patronage or allies, it seems to have established a footing as a national party and forced its claim for recognition as a factor in the future elections.

In Massachusetts the political students were astonished a few years ago when the socialists cast 3 per cent of the vote of the state and obtained legal recognition as a party.

A year ago the socialist vote in the old Bay state was 10,761. This year it was in round numbers 34,000.

Until the official vote is announced it is impossible to accurately state the effect of the socialist vote on the result in New York state, but there seems little to justify the assertion hitherto made that Mr. Coler was the loser by it.

While Massachusetts seems to show the greatest increase in the socialist vote, the results in the western states possess no less political importance.

The man who conceived and has carried on this great enterprise is only fifty-one years old. Born in Prussia, he came to New York city when only a few years old, his father having been appointed rabbi of the temple Emanuel.

In Milwaukee the vote for lieutenant governor was as follows: Republican, 23,118; democratic, 20,762; socialist, 11,831. Four of the socialist candidates for the state legislature were beaten only by the narrowest of pluralities.

The socialist vote in Chicago exceeded 12,000, an increase of 400 per cent. The party carried many precincts and has already begun a campaign for the spring election.

The same story comes from Indiana. The socialists cast nearly 1,500 votes in Evansville, against 300 in 1900. Ohio shows a similar increase, with 5,673 socialist votes in Cincinnati, 2,000 in Toledo, 1,541 in Dayton, 2,100 in Cleveland, and vastly increased votes to the smaller towns.

A Washington dispatch states that the bureau of forestry has received a report from one of its agents which shows that the damages caused by forest fires in northwestern Oregon and southwestern Washington during September was much greater than has been generally supposed.

That which took the farmer to town once a week or less often is now delivered every day at his door. His contact with the world of industrial and intellectual activity is more intimate and direct.

Topographical Maps of Arizona. Within the last month the United States geological survey has issued two maps of a portion of Arizona.

On account of limited appropriations, the survey has to proceed slowly in the work of mapping the country, and it will probably be a long time before all of Arizona is included.

Practical Religion.

Appropos of the laying of the cornerstone of the new building of the Society for Ethical Culture, of which Dr. Felix Adler is the head, the New York Tribune describes the growth of the society.

The school was established in 1876 as a free kindergarten—the first of its kind in this city, and the one teacher had eight pupils.

But breeding is only part of it. The best animals need more than that to get from them the highest value.

Secretary Wilson was present at the Kansas City show, and in an interview said in response to the question, "What is the main value of a show like this?"

While Secretary Wilson responded to the interviewer he stood before an eight-month-old Hereford calf that had just been sold for $4,000 cash.

That is practical common sense and develops the use of such exhibitions. While Secretary Wilson responded to the interviewer he stood before an eight-month-old Hereford calf that had just been sold for $4,000 cash.

One of the unexpected results of the extension of the rural free delivery service is the discontinuance of postoffices in the smaller rural communities.
