Live News Taken From Territorial Exchanges.

Delegate Wilson and family left for Washington November 15. A postoffice has been established at Junction, Yavapai county, and G. C. West appointed postmaster.

Dr. Day reports that one and one-half inches of rain fell Tuesday night in Prescott, the second largest rainfall of 1899.

Colonel Christy and wife and Mrs. T. D. Bennett came up from Phoenix yesterday to attend the funeral of the late Richard Bennett.—Prescott Courier.

Ira Smith says he'll bet he's got more gas in him than we have in our sandbar. We know it's a risky bet, but no difference, we'll call him anyway. Get up your collateral, sonny.—Yuma Sentinel.

Almost all the available ground for building purposes in Upper Tombstone canyon has been taken and in two years from now street cars will be rolling up and down that thoroughfare.—Bisbee Orb.

The northbound train yesterday ran into a boulder which had lodged by the side of the track on the Bell's canyon grade. An engine cylinder was smashed and a pair of axles detached, says a Prescott paper.

W. B. Rogers of Gila Bend, a bridge builder for the Southern Pacific company, came in last night and went to the Sisters' hospital this morning, where he will take treatment for stomach trouble.—Tucson Citizen.

While Harley Miller of Skull Valley was riding after horses on Saturday the horse he was riding fell with him and broke his neck. Luckily for young Miller, however, he escaped with a few bruises.—Prescott Journal-Miner.

The Bulletin says the office seekers of Graham county are already figuring on just what office they want next year. Here in Pinal county some seem to think they have a clinch without figuring. But time will tell.—Florence Tribune.

J. S. Cook of Williamson valley was in town yesterday with a four-horse wagon load of potatoes from his ranch, says the Prescott Journal-Miner. The potatoes are unusually large and fine this year and he reports a yield of seven tons to the acre.

A Mexican with the bones of his ankle shattered by a pistol bullet was taken to the county hospital from Granite street a few nights ago. The Mexican was handling a pistol when it was accidentally discharged, the bullet striking his ankle.—Prescott Courier.

With the great mining developments and the immediate prospect of the Gila river reservoir for the irrigation of lands in the Casa Grande valley, old Pinal is forging to the front as the most prosperous county in the territory.—Florence Tribune.

The following from the Wilcox Range News is probably all right, but such a proceeding in Connecticut would call out the police: "A grand mammoth bull is to be given in Pearce Thanksgiving night for the benefit of the Sunday school Christmas tree."

L. R. White of Arizona, a well known ranchman who is on his way to St. David's with a view of changing his location to that place, is in Tucson today, having stopped over to visit friends for a day or two. Lack of water has made him determine to move from Arizona.—Citizen.

M. G. Samaniego has been appointed guardian of the estate of the children of Ben C. Parker, deceased, by the probate court, and Rosario Brena has petitioned the probate court for letters of administration in the matter of the estate of Jefferson D. Smiley, deceased.—Tucson Citizen.

At Springerville, Arizona, the other day Pablo Carrillo, who was pretty well full of native wine, got into a drunken row with another native, and made a rush at him with a knife. The hand with the knife was knocked back, and the keen edged blade of the knife penetrated the neck of Carrillo and his death resulted a few minutes later. The authorities are puzzled on what

A KILLING AT MOGOLLON.

Luke Flannigan, the Foreman of the W. S. Outfit, the Victim.

Mogollon was the scene of another killing Thursday afternoon last, in which Luke Flannigan, the foreman of the W. S. cattle outfit was the victim, and George Sanders, deputy sheriff, was the slayer.

Flannigan rode in town about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and after tying his horse walked into Lauderbaugh's saloon. He was carrying a six-shooter in his belt, in plain sight, and he had been in the saloon only a few minutes exchanging greetings, when Deputy Sheriff George Sanders came in and told him in a friendly way that it would be necessary for him to take off his gun. Flannigan replied that he would only be in town a few minutes, as he had some business matters to attend to, and that it would not be necessary. Sanders then told him that he would have to remove the weapon within five minutes. Flannigan walked down the street, saying that he was going to Howard's drug store.

In the way down the street he met Harry Johnson and stopped in a saloon with him to have a drink. A short time elapsed when Sanders appeared as the men were standing at the bar.

Sanders approached Flannigan and again told him that he would have to take off his gun, to which request Flannigan refused, and placed his hand on his weapon, which he carried in the pocket of his pants instead of his belt, as above stated. Sanders then started toward Flannigan drawing his gun, and at the same time Flannigan, who as he claims, now had his gun pointed toward him from his pocket. In the scuffle Sanders' six-shooter was discharged, killing Flannigan. It also appears that Flannigan had been in town quite awhile and had been admonished twice before to take off his gun, as contrary to the law, he refusing on both occasions.

Sanders came into town Saturday evening, and left Sunday for Socorro, where he desires a preliminary hearing. He will undoubtedly be acquitted of all responsibility.—Silver City Independent.

SHOT IN THE HEAD.

Death of a Jerome Man Under Peculiar Circumstances.

Near midnight last Monday evening says the Jerome Hustler, Carlos Duarte, a Mexican, well known in Jerome and very prominent among his own countrymen, was found dead in the roadway near Noriega's saloon with a bullet hole through his eye. Duarte had been drinking with a number of his countrymen and was strongly under the influence of liquor. He left his friends and departed ostensibly for his home. In a few moments the denizens of Noriega's saloon heard two pistol shots and a brief scuffle resulted in the discovery of Duarte's body lying in the street with a pistol by his side.

At the coroner's inquest next morning all the testimony introduced seemed to point suicide as the cause of Duarte's death. Several persons testified that Duarte had threatened to take his own life. The reason assigned for this was that he had recently been killed by the woman with whom he had been living and whom he brought here from Flagstaff. In the absence of any other testimony, the jury rendered a verdict of suicide.

However, the case presents just one peculiar circumstance. The face of the dead man presented no marks of powder burning such as would seem to be inevitable when a man is shot in the face by a pistol in his own hand, even were the pistol to be held at arm's length. The eye-brows and eye-lashes were not even scorching, although the bullet struck squarely between the eyes. The weapon found beside Duarte contained two empty cartridges and had been recently discharged, but this of itself proves nothing. However, the opinion of suicide is so general that it is not probable the authorities will take any further steps in the matter.

DEATH OF SOLOMON WARNER. Brief Sketch of the Life of an Arizona Pioneer.

Solomon Warner, one of the old guard pioneers of Arizona, was called to rest last Tuesday morning at the age of 83 years, having been born in Warnersville, New York, February 8, 1811.

The deceased came to Yuma, Arizona, in 1852, says the Tucson Star, where he worked for a year, then with the assistance of W. B. Hooper & Co. of San Francisco and Yuma, he commenced a merchandise business in Tucson in 1856, in which he met with considerable success. In 1870 he was badly shot by Apache Indians, rendering him a partial cripple for life by disabling his right hand and arm.

Later he built Warner's mill at the foot of Sentinel Peak and for years carried on the business of making flour. He did not meet with the success that he deserved in this enterprise, and finally the business passed out of his hands. During the last twelve or fifteen years the deceased lived somewhat of a solitary life, having taken up the idea that he could construct a perpetual motive power machine, and on this scheme he had been laboring for the last ten years almost incessantly, only to meet with the same failure that thousands of others have experienced. During the last few months he was known to have neglected sleep and food for two or three days at a time, so absorbed had he become in his work.

He died in rather straitened circumstances. But we are pleased to say that with an acquaintance with the deceased of nearly thirty years, we have never heard it said that Solomon Warner ever did one dishonest act. The remains of the old pioneer were interred yesterday by the Society of Arizona Pioneers. May he rest in peace.

CAMERON'S CATTLE.

A Notable Herd of Arizona White-Faces.

Mr. Collin Cameron, the Arizona breeder of Hereford cattle and Shetland ponies, spent a few days in Kansas City last week. He left for home Sunday and there will meet Mr. Frank Bloom of Trinidad, Colo., who intends to purchase a big string of Mr. Cameron's pure bred Hereford bull calves, on the entire herd of which he has an option. This sale does not mean the disposal of the "tops," Mr. Cameron does not sell that way. He has his herd of saleable stock distributed in a dozen pastures, and the entire bunch in each pasture goes.

Mr. Cameron is an ardent Hereford man, although his father tried to bring him up in the short horn faith, of which he was as firm a follower as his son is of the white-faces, says the Denver Stockman. In 1885 Mr. Cameron began business with one bull and one cow of the Hereford breed. Two years later he added twenty-five more cows and a bull. Two years ago he sold his first pedigree stock for range purposes. His method of turning out a set of young bulls every year gives new blood to the herd and keeps up a stage of hardihood that stamps his herd as the most typical of Hereford range cattle. On the range his registered bulls are running with the best of Oregon cows, and last year the calf crop was ninety-five per cent of white-faces, and as fine a lot of youngsters as ever housed on grass.

Mr. Cameron possesses the distinction of sending the first shipment of pure bred Hereford bulls into Old Mexico, the Scott syndicate, operating 100 miles south of the city of Chihuahua, purchasing several carloads last year. He is convincing the Southern cattle raisers that it is the poorest kind of policy for them to use grade bulls, and he has also demonstrated that the Hereford is the best for all purposes in a short grass country, particularly. So great has been his success that he sold his entire crop of calves last year, and an entire crop of this year is as good as completely cleaned up.

In speaking of the health of the cattle in Arizona, Mr. Cameron said: "The live stock of Arizona is entirely free from disease and has one of the best of veterinarians in Dr. J. C. Norton, and the territory also has an active chairman of a live stock sanitary board in the person of Mr. Will C. Barnes as can be found in any cattle center in the country."

COCHISE ROBBERS KNOWN.

Sheriff Wakefield of Pima county, when in Nogales Wednesday night said that the secret service department of Wells, Fargo & Co. is acquainted with the names and whereabouts of the two men who held up the Southern Pacific train and robbed the express car at Cochise in September. He also said the same two men were former employees of the company and that they were hired to go into the mountains to track the robbers; in other words to hunt themselves. The reason, the sheriff said, the men have not been arrested is because only circumstantial evidence against them has so far been secured by the company.—Bisbee Orb.

GLOBE SIGHTS.

(From the Atchison Globe.) Economy, we regret to say, is never the fashion. Remember when telling a joke that all of your hearers are trying to figure how many times they had heard it before.

A cup has to be too small to drink out of before the women will admit that it is pretty.

It is estimated that an Atchison woman walks five miles a day in going to the corner with her shopping basket. She has so much of it to do that she has been compelled to abandon her custom of walking to the front gate with her husband.

Mrs. Lysander John Appleton is an expansionist. She doesn't know exactly what it means, but Lysander John is opposed to expansion, and Mrs. Lysander John always takes the other side because she doesn't think Lysander John has any sense anyway.

Are the men as considerate of the men as women are of women? When an engagement is announced, the girl's friends give her dollies, linen, lace things, teacups, etc., but does any one give the man anything? On the contrary, his creditors become particularly active, knowing that his expenses will soon be larger, when it will be harder to collect from him. No engaged man was ever called upon by other men and presented with socks tied with light blue ribbon, or a pair of new suspenders with pink bows on. All the attention he gets from the men consists of gazing.

WHAT JOHN ORDERED.

A short little woman and her tall husband entered a down town restaurant the other day and took seats at a table near the door. Glancing over the bill of fare the man asked:

"Will you have oysters?" "Yes," said the short little woman, as she tried in vain to touch her toes to the floor. "And, John, I want a hassock."

John nodded, and as he handed his order to the waiter he said: "Yes, and bring a hassock for the lady." "One hassock?" asked the waiter, with what John thought more than ordinary interest, as he nodded in the affirmative. Still the waiter did not go, but brushed the table cloth with a towel and rearranged the articles on it several times, while his face got very red.

Then he came around to John's side, and, speaking sotto voce, said, "Say, mister, I haven't been here long, and I'm not on to all these things. Will the lady have the hassock broiled or fried?"—Chicago Chronicle.

TOBACCO.

The Other Man was smoking a large, dark cigar. "Do you see that immense business block yonder?" asked the Moral Man. "Oh, yes," replied the Other Man; "but that is not what I would own if I had saved all the money I have spent for tobacco!"

"No," altered the Moral Man, incredulously. "No, sir!" insisted the Other Man. "I feel convinced that had I saved all the money which I have spent for tobacco; whereas, in point of fact, I live in comparative comfort in a rented flat of two rooms, seven flights up! Yes, sir!"

Naturally, the Moral Man was confounded at once.—Puck.
