Live News Taken From Territorial Exchanges.

William Corbett is over from Pearce. Mr. Corbett is just recovering from a serious illness and his many friends are glad to see him about—Prospector.

Last Monday sly, old John Groll and Helen Kruger bled themselves away to Prescott and were united in matrimony by Judge Hicks. Their marriage was a surprise to their many friends who had not suspected that the two had any such intention.—Jerome Hustler.

June Freeman and Charles Born Jr. were examined last Saturday for positions as letter carriers for Prescott's free mail delivery system, and the examination papers forwarded to Washington. They were the only applicants and are said to have stood a creditable examination.—Courier.

A case of suicide was reported on Sunday and Monday. As the man was about yesterday morning delivering lacteal fluid for account of John Hughes, the dairyman, it would appear that the advance agents of yellow journalism were about circulating sensational news.—Star.

The Red Men will observe the one hundredth anniversary of the death of General Washington, who was a prominent member of the order during his lifetime, by memorial services to be held in the A. O. U. W. hall on the night of December 14—Tucson Citizen.

An item is going the rounds about a girl dying from tight lacing. An editor commenting on the fact, says: "The corset should be done away with and if the girls can't live without being squeezed, we suppose men can be found who will sacrifice themselves.

As old as we are," he continues, "we would rather devote three hours a day without a farthing for pay than to see the girls dying off in this manner. Office hours almost any old time."

The celebration of the anniversary of San Francis Xavier at the old mission church of San Xavier del Bac, was numerously attended, says the Star. The exercises commenced Saturday night by a general illumination and a general feast on the outside. Exercises in the mission were continued all night. High mass on Sunday morning was participated in by hundreds of Papago Indians and Mexicans, after which a big dance followed under a large ramada. A Mexican rawhide band furnished the music. Dancing was kept up all day Sunday and late into the following night. Hundreds of people from Tucson visited the mission during Saturday night and Sunday.

The water and sewerage commission held a meeting at 2:30 yesterday afternoon, says the Tucson Citizen. Those present were Mayor Hoff, Recorder Connel, Col. Epes Randolph and Councilmen Russell and Pusch. Mayor Hoff mentioned the fact that the bonds voted by the city for the purpose of buying out the Tucson water company have been held to be invalid because of the fact that the act under which the bonds were voted gives the city authority to build a water plant, but does not authorize it to purchase one that is already built. The mayor therefore moved that the commission petition Delegate Wilson to secure an amendment to the act which will give the council authority to purchase the present city water plant. Carried unanimously. This resolution is the same as one that was adopted at the previous meeting of the city council.

The Phoenix team opened the game and the first man at bat sent the ball to center and ran to third instead of first. The umpire decided that the runner had a right to choose the bag he wanted to run, and there was an end to the dispute which arose when Mr. Umpire opened the cage door and stepped out with his six-shooter ready for immediate action. The next man at bat knocked a foul pop and the umpire declared the ball out, and threw a new ball to the pitcher. The batter was retired and ordered to find the ball which he had disgraced. Finley hit the ball, sending it to center for a single. The ball was caught in a bag which was carried by the fielder, and the batter scored while the fielder was trying to extricate the ball which had buried itself in the folds of the bag. There were six runs made in the first half, and the errors were too numerous to mention. The score departed at this stage of the game after a futile attempt to score the errors.

The Prescott team tried hard to please the fans and make a reputation for the Mountain city. Joe Morrison was behind the bat and his throwing to second was one of the features of the game. There were six men put out in one inning, and other remarkable things were done. The crowd enjoyed the game and the players had a good time while it lasted.

THE ELKS AT NIGHT.

How They Kill Time From Dark to Daylight.

The Elks surprised somebody last night. In fact, they surprised a great many people. It is well known that a great deal of historic talent exists among the fraternity even here in Phoenix, which from its geographical location, is not a geographical center. It is also well known that the order was founded and fostered to a great extent by followers of the Teutons, but it remained for last night's minstrel show to demonstrate that the latent talent for activity is one of the influences and life forces transmitted to the young fawn at his birth into the order and his capability expands with the development of his antlers. To be an Elk is to be an actor real, if not professional.

Old stage, who never failed an audience before, appeared on the stage last night in leading roles and performed their parts almost as well as those who make some pretensions. The opera house was packed to its utmost capacity and many chairs were placed in the aisles. Some changes were made in the printed programme in order to cut it short, as the usual mistake was made of giving too much for the money and half the night was all that could be devoted to the show as the Elks had other fish to fry later on.

The curtain rose on a large company of well dressed minstrels with the blackest kind of faces. There wasn't a "yellow coon" in the bunch, and for color, the real thing was not in it. William M. Mayers, exalted ruler of Phoenix lodge, ably filled the position of interactor, his strong, clear repetition of the funny questions asked by the end men, explaining some jokes that were otherwise indistinctly heard. J. Ed Findley and H. L. Parker held the bones and Charles Ezekiel and H. W. Taaf handled the tambas. The opening chorus was well received and established a bond of good nature between the audience and the stage.

The programme throughout the first part was interspersed with many new and up-to-date jokes by the end men, (and this is no joke) some of them, of course, aimed at local and visiting members of the order (and that is no joke either). Charles Ezekiel's "Ella Skinner, the Cake Walk Winner," and was applauded. M. O. Bicknell followed with "Sing the Green Fields of Virginia." He received a cabbage for his effort, though the audience had been expressly requested to leave their vegetables at home. But it was all in fun. The song was appreciated and the encore continued till it was responded to.

I. D. Reedy's song "Down on the Ohio" netted him a real bouquet and an encore. Messrs. Dowd, Masten, Plecto and Reedy sang a quartette, "I've Got Chicken on the Brain." It was well received and brought them each a floral tribute.

"Sing Me a Song of the South," by Fred Blackford, was a solo of especial merit and called for an encore.

Harry Parker sang the "Hon. Recast Inspector," and Joe Bell earned a bouquet for "Don't You Say My Honey We Must Part."

The quartette rendered a darkey lullaby song that was greatly enjoyed. J. J. Blinkhorn sang a solo, "Fair Tales," in which the chorus joined. It pleased the audience, both for the singing and the truth of the poetry.

The closing chorus was the same as the opening. An Elk song set to the music of "El Capitan." The chorus is entitled to a word of praise, as it was exceptionally good for amateur performers.

Part II opened with a solo by Mrs. P. A. Tharaldson entitled "Sing On." Her voice was in excellent condition and she was only allowed to leave the stage after both hands were filled with bouquets and an encore had been responded to.

"Any Old Thing," was just a quiet, confidential talk with the audience by Billy Barrett of San Francisco, who runs down here occasionally and makes a hundred new friends every trip. He said it had always been his ambition to become an actor and this was the opportunity of his life. He proposed to take advantage of it and if the people were slow in applauding his jokes he was willing to wait a reasonable length of time for them. Incidentally, he said some pretty things about Phoenix, the carnival, himself and everybody else. "That is what he was there for, but he is just as wholesome a man to meet off the stage as on.

Rosecup and Parker gave an immitable dance that all enjoyed, even though the lights were out half the time.

Florence Edith Blackman of Washington, D. C., assisted by a number of Phoenix's prettiest young ladies, then presented a series of living pictures, which were above comment and must be seen to be appreciated.

Fred Blackford again favored the audience with "Don't Leave the Old Home Man," as he could not get away without an encore and the hour was late he followed with "The Curse," which was to have been rendered later.

F. E. Gerrish rendered a banjo solo accompanied by Mrs. W. E. Defty after the applause died away R. J. McCleary "Sang His Little Song." Robert is always cheered.

H. M. Buckley and H. C. Parker then put on a hystolic "test," in which one of them placed the other in a catalytic trance, dissected him with an ax and an anger, took a few baby rattles, a piece of gas pipe, a pack of cards and other bric-a-brac out of his "stom-
