

THE COLORADO STATESMAN'S FIFTEENTH ANNUAL PICNIC

BLOOMFIELD PARK Wednesday, August 16, 1911

This picnic will eclipse all other outing events to be offered the people of Denver and Surrounding Country this year. The past is a criterion for the future, for the great popularity of our Annual Holiday is as wide as the state in which we live. The people will take a day off to enjoy themselves with us this year, as they have done in the past, and we will provide for them a better entertainment and a happier time.

Bloomfield Park Is Denver's Ideal Picnic Grounds

It combines numerous advantages over any other place in the city or in the state. It embraces a large, beautiful lake and a fine, large grove.

In this cool and beautiful resort, where enjoyment, recreation are available to all, we will forget for a day the toils and worries of every-day surroundings, renew social acquaintances, recall again the happy privileges of other days, and all will be richly benefitted by the new pleasures which we shall find.

The best music obtainable will help to make the day and evening pass like a magic dream. Come yourself and bring your friends and treat them to the beauties of this unequalled place.

The Day's Attractions Will Consist of

OUTDOOR SPORTS
BOATING
BOWLING ALLEY

And Many Other Recreations

PRIVATE BOOTHS FOR SPECIAL PARTIES

The COLORADO STATESMAN, its staff, employes and friends will do everything to make the day the most enjoyable one of all the year.
