ENTIRE VOLUME OF HUNTINGTON LETTERS

Volume of Rare Interest Added to State Library—Anne Huntington of Windham Wrote the First in 1761—Give Glimpses of Life of Connecticut Family in Colonial Times.

A little volume of rare interest has been added to the possessions of the state library in the privately printed de luxe edition of the Huntington Letters, sent to the state librarian by the compiler, Julia Chester Wells, in whose possession are the original letters.

There are 125 letters in all, written by the Honorable Benjamin Huntington and his wife Anne, between the years 1761 and 1792; and also certain letters written by Rachel Huntington to her sisters Lucy and Anne, from 1786 to 1798. There are a few miscellaneous letters and papers included in the book.

These letters are interesting because they show glimpses of the life of an American family which bore its part in the struggles of more than a century and a quarter ago. The letters also have a local interest, some of them having been written from Windham. The first letter in the collection is written by Anne Huntington in 1761.

When the correspondence between her and her husband began, she was not yet married and is living with her mother at Windham, Connecticut. She writes to her sister Hannah, wife of Gideon Tomlinson, of Stratford, an officer in the army. The epistle is chiefly valuable as showing the relation of the family to the type of the American Colonial woman of the time just before the Revolutionary war, and as expressing a certain amount of the feeling which existed in rather ancient syntax and usage of punctuation.

These letters are interesting because they show glimpses of the life of an American family which bore its part in the struggles of more than a century and a quarter ago. The letters also have a local interest, some of them having been written from Windham.

spirit land through the medium to assure his grandson who was in the audience that he could come back. One man who laughed was singled out by Mrs. Vanderbilt. "He'd laugh another way if I did him something," she said, and in a minute more she told him that if he would look up some papers and names that could be found in his family he would not have to weigh sugar and coffee and tea all his life.

While she was speaking of this she said that the spirit of L. A. J. came and touched her on the shoulder and had a message for somebody there, as the spirit had been to see another member of the family in Worcester and she gave assurances that everything was coming out all right and that somebody could and would make Golden Rule Alliance organizer, Miss Fanny Crosby in order to build a home for blind children. Mrs. Falconer, president of the group, was in the house, and it was recommended that on March 20, her birthday, all the daughters wear a purple violet.

At the close of the business meeting Mrs. Willis Austin of Washington street gave an address to the chapter upon Equal Suffrage.

The question of equal suffrage is a question of the status of woman, she began. A country is judged by the place it gives to woman. In 1745 on the 22d, when a woman was twice as many hours as men for half as much pay. When women first entered the professions they met bitter opposition. In the high schools and colleges she had absolute control of food-stuffs as all were manufactured under her eye. Now 8,000,000 women are out of the house, working shoulder to shoulder with men.

We want to longer a man government, not yet a woman government, but a human government. Where women have had a voice in the laws it has been for the betterment of women and children. More girls are graduating from the high schools than boys. Woman's suffrage is the last step in the advance of the cause. In 1850 the first steps were taken. In nine states the woman has equal voice in the government. There has been equal suffrage for forty years in Wyoming. Only 15 states does a woman have an equal voice in the management of her children. In answer to the question: How does the ballot work where women have the ballot? a long list of bills and resolutions were read. In closing she said: A political backing will be given women by the vote so that they will be listened to by the legislators.

Applause showed the interest and gratitude of her hearers, and Mrs. Austin was given a rising vote of thanks. In the evening, Mrs. J. J. Woodard, Mrs. Russell Woodard, Mrs. John Walker, Mrs. Sidney Williams, Mrs. E. E. Willis, Mrs. Peter Woodard, Mrs. J. J. Saxton and Mrs. William Woodman.

GAVE SPIRIT MESSAGES. May Pepper Vanderbilt interested Large Audiences at Spiritual Academy.

Two large audiences heard May Pepper Vanderbilt, the celebrated medium at the Spiritual Academy on Sunday and were well pleased that she came here, although as Rev. A. P. Bishop announced in the evening, she had done so only after trying to be excused from her engagement because of her poor health. In the circumstances of her physical condition, she said, she had expected that the manifestation of spirit control through "Bright Eyes" would be all the stronger and she would be satisfied to leave it to the audience if it were not so. When the seance was over they were ready to agree with him.

A spirit calling for "Eva" was the first that came and Eva was quickly located in the audience. She acknowledged the piece of paper upon the table beside Mrs. Vanderbilt had been written in Bertie's home and the spirit sent the message that it wanted them to know that it was there when they said to each other: "Let's write it, we don't believe in it anyway."

"Who's Y-e-l-l-e-k" inquired the medium, when the laughter occasioned by the last answer had died down. Pointing to a woman in the audience with a long feather, Mrs. Vanderbilt asked her if she had a husband in spirit. The woman said she had but her name was not in the list. This was the name that Mrs. Vanderbilt had seen but spelt backwards and she went on to give messages referring to things that the woman in the velvet hat said she recognized. Among other things the medium predicted that a man wearing a long robe was soon to go out of life and that a paper would be found that had been in a box that would bring an important change in the woman's material prosperity.

All the while she had been giving this message, Mrs. Pepper said she had seen a spirit putting its hand on the shoulder of a woman with gray hair who sat in the middle of the audience and the hand had a big letter 'S' on the back of it. This woman received a message.

"Grandpa Hall" also came from the

Since the earliest days of medicine chemists have been trying to take the taste out of castor oil. The secret has at last been discovered by Spencer Kellogg & Sons of Buffalo, who are among the largest producers and refiners of vegetable oils in the world. They have removed the castor oil taste and smell, too, purifying the oil and making it better and more effective. Nothing is added to it, nothing good taken out of it.
