GREAT BILL AT CAPITOL

Five great acts of Keith vaudeville are now playing the Capitol for the balance of the week consisting of a variety of entertainers that all in all constitutes a good show. Topping the bill is the dance presentation of Princess Radjah, the celebrated Continental exponent of terpsichore, who features as her big attraction, "The Dance of Cleopatra." Mrs. Gene Hughes and her players offer an exceptionally clever comedy skit, "Be Alive," which meets the approval of Capitol audiences each show. The Stanley Sisters, two charming girls, sing themselves into instant favor with "Songs As You Like Them Sung." Smith and Cantor easily win the plaudits of all with their bright and witty comedy patter and songs and the Mann Brothers. "Two Jolly Sailors on a Bounding Rope" show some remarkable gymnastic stunts on the tight rope.

The photoplay feature on this bill presents popular Douglas MacLean in "The Sunshine Trail," a comedy drama that will be well liked for its fine comedy situations.

Sell Crown Jewels
Constantinople—A bill is being prepared for the sale of the famous crown jewels and precious objects in the old Seraglio palace. The jewels originally were to have been preserved in a museum.

AVERAGE ONE PAPER FOR EVERY HOME

American Statistics Show Sale of Publications in This Country

London, July 18.—(Reviewing the development of the American newspaper before the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world today, Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, emphasized the importance of the part The Associated Press has played in that development.
"One agency in the United States which has contributed in large measure to the development of our strong newspaper press," he said, "and whose value in every way can scarcely be estimated, is The Associated Press, the great national news gathering and distributing organization. Its reports of daily happenings are impartial and cannot be influenced. The Associated Press takes issue with no side in any controversy—its purpose is merely to present the news." After telling briefly of the diversity of its membership Mr. Wiley added: "The Associated Press is a part of the development of American newspapers. Its efficiency is wonderful."

America, said Mr. Wiley, owes to England a great debt of the beginnings of journalism. "We believe, however," he continued, "that we have not been entirely remiss in our contribution to both the business and profession of newspaper making. For some time there has been a reciprocity of ideas between newspaper publishers on both sides of the Atlantic. We are both borrowers and lenders of ideas, testifying to the international cordiality existing between newspapers on all sides."
Mr. Wiley traced the development of American newspapers from the period prior to the American Revolution, when weekly gazettes were considered sufficient to carry the scattered and badly reported news, down to the present time, when, he said, there are in the United States 2,026 daily newspapers, including 226 morning and 1,800 evening editions. "The American newspapers," he declared, "now sell an average of 21,420,000 copies a day, which means one copy of a newspaper for every home in the United States."

Relative to the exchange of news between American and English newspapers, Mr. Wiley said: "Our newspapers publish quotations from your press to a greater extent than you do from our columns. A cabled report of British editorial opinion on important events is a regular part of the Associated Press news service." Touching upon world affairs and the relation of newspapers to them Mr. Wiley said: "We all recognize that the world stands faced today with international, political, social and economic problems of a graver nature than it has ever faced before. The conduct of every nation, of every group in every nation, is being examined in the light of its bearing upon the settlement of our world problems. I make an earnest plea at this time that newspapers of all lands understand clearly their obligation toward the promotion of international good will and friendship; that they exercise sober judgment in the publication of news that tempers the test of truth; that they temper discussion of international affairs with wise judgment and forbearance."

MOSQUITO BITES

Apart from spoiling an otherwise enjoyable vacation often infect the blood. Itching and all fear of blood-poisoning ceases if MOON'S EMERALD OIL is applied. To prevent the bites, spread a few drops over the exposed parts.
