

JOFFRE FIGHTING HOPELESS BATTLE

French War Hero Lapses Into Semi-Consciousness

Paris, Dec. 31 (AP)—Marshal Joffre's phenomenal vitality which carried him into this last day of the year despite a heart attack which threatened to end his gallant battle last night, appeared to be exhausted itself this afternoon. At 1 o'clock he sank into a state of semi-consciousness. His doctors said his blood pressure was weak.

Life hangs by a thread, one of the doctors said, and death may come at any time, but the rugged constitution of the patient may carry him through four or five more days. All visitors have been forbidden to enter the sick room but Louis Barthou, one of the marshal's closest friends.

Today messages of condolence, coming from all over the world brought the hopes of two Americans for his recovery. Chancellor Elmer E. Brown of New York University and Franklin Q. Brown, president of the Army and Navy club of the United States, sent the cablegrams.

Houses, Asks for Water For several hours the marshal remained only half conscious. He awoke and asked for a drink of water. He took the cup in his own hand and drank its contents.

At three o'clock another doctor's bulletin said there had been no improvement and that there was little hope.

"The patient's condition is stationary," the bulletin said, "although there occurred a loss of consciousness this morning leaving the pulse weak with intermittent interruptions. At present he sleeps in a deep calm."

MARKET ATTEMPTS COMEBACK IN VAIN

Stocks Unable to Regain Ground, Tumble Even Lower

New York, Dec. 30 (AP)—The stock market partially retraced its steps down the declining scale of share values during the past year to the point where its 1927-1929 ascent became steep and exciting.

Despite injuries suffered in its tumble from the 1929 peak, the market courageously resumed its steps during the early months of 1930, and actually had regained by April almost 60 per cent of the lost altitude, but in its eagerness neglected to see gathering storm clouds of a major business depression.

The market turned sharply downward in June, and as measured by share price indices by December had retraced its steps to the general price level of the spring of 1927.

The average price of rail shares reached a level not seen in five years, while utilities fell back to prices of only about two and a half years ago.

Although extreme depression of prices led to an assumption in many quarters that the so-called "new era" stock era was at an end, statistics do not as yet support such a conclusion.

Stock held in speculative brokerage accounts has been drastically reduced in volume, but at the same time, lists of stockholders in individual corporations have increased to high totals.

"Hawling Investors" It is probable that many speculators have become investors against their wishes, that is, that they have decided to pay for their stock in full and take it out of their broker's hands with the determined intention of keeping it until it commands a price somewhere near that paid for it.

Brokers state, nevertheless, that a large section of the public has profited from the experiences of the past year and a half, and now is anxious to buy stocks at the bottom rather than the top.

The result has been a small but steady stream of odd lot purchases during periods of extreme pressure against prices.

Still Double Values of '25 A glance at the total quoted value of stocks listed on the New York exchange shows that much remains of the great bull market which started in 1924.

The latest figure, for December 1, 1930, shows total quoted value of roughly $53,000,000,000. While this shows a shrinkage of some 49 per cent from the peak reached in autumn of 1929, it is still about double the quoted value of all listed shares at the beginning of 1925.

In further efforts to gain the wider distribution of their shares, more of the large corporations split up their stocks, and these splittings, together with the sharp shrinkage of values, reduced the average price per share of stock listed on the New York Exchange to less than $40, the lowest level in years.

Trading was fairly heavy in the first half of the year, and the market experienced one $600,000 share day, but nothing comparable to the 12,000,000 and 16,000,000 share turnovers in November, 1929.

The 1930 turnover on the stock exchange was about $10,000,000,000 against $12,985,825 in 1929.

The market all but faded out for a large number of issues traded in the curb market. The curb, furthermore, suffered from the sharp decline in common stock financing, since as a primary market it generally introduces new shares.

The utility shares were one of the firmer groups. The week's figures for electric power production showed a seasonal drop, but compared more favorably with the past two years than any previous week in December. The decline from last year was only 2-5 per cent, against 5-5 in the previous week. Freight car loadings for the pre-Christmas week dropped 26,633 cars, less than usual for that week.

Call money renewed at 2 1/2 per cent and is reported to be indicating the year-end firmness was relaxing somewhat sooner than usual.

HURLEY TO SEIZE BOOZE AS USUAL

Says Bay State Ruling Meaningless in Connecticut

Hartford, Dec. 31 (AP)—The announcement in Boston by the attorney general of Massachusetts that he will issue a search warrant before an arrest can be made for violation of the prohibition law, has resulted in a statement today by Commissioner of State Police Robert T. Hurley, that the situation in Connecticut is unchanged and his department will proceed in its established manner, enforcing the prohibition law.

"We propose to seize liquor where we find it, and prosecute violators as we have in the past," said the commissioner, who had been asked if the ruling in Massachusetts had any bearing on the Connecticut situation. He declared that bootleggers passing through Connecticut, whether Massachusetts bound or otherwise, will receive scant courtesy if apprehended, but rather will be presented in court as in the past.

Security Market Lifts Quietly As Wall Street Turns Its Back On Past Year's Disappointments

Turn of New Year Engenders Fresh Hope On Firmer Basis Than Formerly.

New York, Dec. 31 (AP)—Wall Street turned its back on 1930 today with huge relief.

The security markets lifted quietly, as though rid of a mighty burden. Although the past 12 months have largely cured the stock market of its fevers of excessive enthusiasm, the turn of a new year engenders fresh hope. And in view of the enormous deflation accomplished, Wall Street feels that its hopes rest on a firmer basis than those of a year ago, when it was still deluged with "new era" theories of completion.

The completion of tax selling, the prospect of a fair reinvestment demand from the $1,000,000,000 in Jan. 1st interest, and dividends, together with somewhat more favorable than expected mid-week business statistics, helped the advance in share prices, which embraced virtually all sections of the list.

Shares Advancing Shares advancing 2 to 4 points included U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Bethlehem Steel, Air Reduction, Eastman, American Power and Light, American Telephone and Telegraph, Borden, American Smelting, Union Pacific, New York Central, Chicago and Northwestern, and Lackawanna. Auburn surged up more than 8. Trading turned dull after the first hour.

Some bankers feel that the new year is started with an excess of pessimism, comparable to the unwelcome optimism of a year ago, but they acknowledge that this may tend to prevent discouraging false starts toward recovery. So far as the stock market is concerned, brokers point out that even with fair improvement in the early part of 1931, corporate earnings will fall below the early months of 1930, so that companies will be unprofitable, and that dividend reductions, which are most numerous at the far end of a depression, should tend to prevent any excesses of bullishness.

Steel Also Aided The advance in the rail shares which greeted the announcement of the four-part eastern production agreement, was probably largely due to a heavy short covering, but Wall Street continued to regard the developments as one of the most constructive of 1930, and carrier issues were firm again today. Steel issues were helped by expectations of a seasonal pickup in iron production, possibly carrying out to 50 per cent of capacity. Even the oils were firm, although the week's petroleum statistics showed another large gain in gasoline in storage.

The utility shares were one of the firmer groups. The week's figures for electric power production showed a seasonal drop, but compared more favorably with the past two years than any previous week in December. The decline from last year was only 2-5 per cent, against 5-5 in the previous week. Freight car loadings for the pre-Christmas week dropped 26,633 cars, less than usual for that week.

Call money renewed at 2 1/2 per cent and is reported to be indicating the year-end firmness was relaxing somewhat sooner than usual.

11 Republics Make Governmental Changes in Year's Course

New York, Dec. 30 (AP)—Latin America has had a presidential year.

Eleven of the 20 republics sprawling between the Rio Grande, the Caribbean Sea and the Strait of Magellan placed their destinies in the hands of new men, free countries that had 11 presidents twice.

Six of the new presidents came into power through revolutions, to which the world-wide economic depression was ascribed as one of the principal causes. The countries where military upheavals accompanied change in government—Argentina, Brazil, Bolivia, Peru, Guatemala and the Dominican Republic—start the new year with army officers as their chief executives.

For the presidential changes during 1930 Guatemala set the record. That nation had three presidents in one week, finally leaving the government in the hands of General Manuel Maria Orrellana on December 16 after a sanguinary revolution.

The general overthrew Baudilio Palma, a lawyer, the day the United States recognized the latter. Palma succeeded to the office by virtue of being vice president when General Carlos Chacon resigned on account of his health December 12.

Names of presidents were written on the pages of history in Latin America during 1930 as follows: Argentina—Hipolito Yrigoyen overthrown by revolution September 6. General Jose Francisco Uriburu became provision president September 12.

Bolivia—Hernando Siles resigned May 25. General Carlos Blanco Galindo assumed presidency of military junta which seized government, June 29.

Brazil—Julio Prestes was elected president February 28, expecting to be inaugurated November 15. But he was called to the United States last night at the Hartford hospital after a week's illness of pneumonia. He was 55 years old.

CURB HAS HAPPY NEW YEAR MOOD

Prices Take Upward Flip—Gains Well Distributed

New York, Dec. 31 (AP)—The curb market was in a happy New Year mood today and prices took an upward flip. Gains, although moderate with few exceptions, were well distributed and such tax selling as remained for the final session of 1930 was easily absorbed. Short covering was fairly substantial.

Utilities and oils did particularly well, but the industrial specialties were not far behind. Such issues as electric in which the moves are normally large, scored several points. A 2 point advance in Standard Oil of Indiana stood out in the petroleum group. Standard of Nebraska, Gulf, Humble and Vacuum were also higher, but Cities Service ruled around 15 for not much change.

Miscellaneous shares up a point or more included Technicolor, Western Air Express, Newcomb, Niles, Belmont, Anglo-Chilean, Nitrate and New Jersey Zinc. Investment holding company issues received support which was especially evident in United Founders.

Money rates eased. Call loans renewed on the curb at 4 per cent but went to 3 1/2 shortly after noon.
