Death List of Alaska May Mount To 48

Steamer Split in Two By Explosion of Boilers When She Started to Sink—Steamer Anyox Brings 106 Survivors of Wreck to Eureka, Thirty-one Others Missing and Believed to Be Dead—Captain Goes Down With Ship.

Eureka, Cal., Aug. 8—The steamer Alaska which struck on the rocks at Blunt's Reef Saturday night with a probable death list of forty-eight, was split in two by explosion of the boilers when the boat started to sink, survivors said here today, and passengers and members of the crew were thrown into the sea by the explosion.

The steamer Anyox today brought 106 survivors of the wreck to Eureka. Seventeen dead were also brought here, including three women and a child. There were 31 others missing and believed to be dead. Twelve of the dead have been identified. The list of missing may be changed for lists of passengers and crew aboard have not been verified. It was brought out the Alaska was proceeding toward San Francisco in a dense fog when she struck a submerged ledge of the reef. This shock was almost instantly followed by another as the vessel struck until top-crooping of the reef above water. The Alaska struck the reef shortly after nine o'clock. Immediately wireless distress signals were flashed. Written brighter in the high lights of the disasters are the names of three—Captain Harry Hobbey, of the Alaska; Mrs. Grace Campbell, stewardess of the same ship, and Captain S. Snodney, of the rescue ship Anyox. Passengers and crew were awestruck by repeating words of Captain Hobbey, as he mounted the Alaska's bridge a few seconds after the ship struck. "I'm going down with this ship."

America Re-Enters Council

Inter-Allied Supreme Body Meets To Divide the Upper Silesian Question—Harvey Confers With English Premier.

Paris, Aug. 8—With Great Britain and France at loggerheads the inter-allied supreme council met here today to settle the Upper Silesian issue. It was expected the allied statesmen also would discuss the settlement of the Rhine and the Silesian penalties, the Turko-Greek war in the Near East, the fighting between the Albanians and the Serbians and the Russian famine and plague scourge. America re-entered allied deliberations, George Harvey, the American ambassador to England, taking his seat at the council table as observer. Ambassador Harvey conferred with Premier Lloyd-George during the morning.

There are divergent views between Great Britain and France on practically all of the issues on the agenda. France wants to send reinforcements to Upper Silesia at once. Great Britain holds that this is not necessary. Great Britain wants to remove the Rhine and Silesian penalties and to withdraw the allied troops from Dusseldorf and the Ruhr.

The revocation of the order will be effective at midnight tonight. The situation in the Jitney-trolley controversy will revert to what it was before Judge Thomas granted a temporary restraining order. This condition all parties to this action have agreed to accept.

Payrolls Are Now Showing An Increase

That the bottom has been reached in the industrial situation crisis in this city is reflected by the best barometer known in matters of payrolls, the factory pay rolls registered at the various banks. Inquiry made this morning at the First National Bank, the City National Bank and the Bridgeport Trust company showed a marked steadiness or an actual increase that is taken to mean that an improvement is in sight. These three institutions handle the great majority of factory accounts in this city, and at the City National a number of the smaller and medium sized manufacturing plants. In almost every instance an increase was noted, and in at least two instances a pick up of 10 per cent over the previous week was noted.

The First National and the Bridgeport Trust company both show a steadiness with no sign of a further drop. In banking circles, locally, the feeling seems to prevail today that a steady improvement has set in, although one believes that it will be very rapid. Rumors persist that within 60 days the Columbia Graphophone company will lead the way with a marked increase of production and with the big crease of west side plants again working steady it is believed that many other plants will regain confidence and increase production.

Confirmation of the tale as told by the factory pay rolls, salesmen visiting Bridgeport from factories in other parts of the state report a slight increase in buying on the part of local purchasing agents, although Bridgeport, industrially, is said to be quieter than any city in the state.

Binkowitz Murdered By 3 Men Not Yet Named, Officer Virelli Says

That neither John W. Worthington, alias Whitehouse, nor Arthur M. Goldsmith, alias Goldschmidt, received any of the bonds stolen by the police, Officer Virelli, who has been working on the case for some time. According to the theory held by Virelli, neither of the town men mentioned either received any of the bonds nor were they implicated in the death of the young messenger. Although neither of these men were directly implicated in the reports made by federal investigators who are engaged in running down evidence which it is alleged connects Worthington as head of the mail theft combination, their names were used in such way in connection with the Binkowitz case that one might be led to believe that the pair knew far more about the Milford murder than has hitherto been stated. By Policeman Virelli differs with the theory.

Register

When it is recalled that under the present form of local government the securing of a nomination is oftentimes the equivalent of an election the importance of the primaries becomes obvious. All voters should look upon it as a duty to attend the primaries and indicate their choice of candidates for the fall elections. While these primaries will not be held for some little time yet it will not be possible for any one to vote in them who has not registered for that purpose before 5 p. m. Saturday, Aug. 13th.

It has been brought to the attention of The Times that some persons have had difficulty in securing the necessary blanks for the registration of voters. The necessary blanks will be supplied by the registration office which is glad to give any who call for them at its office at 179 Fairfield avenue.

Great Question In Washington Now Is Whether Disarmament Conference Will Be Wet Or Dry

Washington, Aug. 8—That part of official Washington which is constitutionally opposed to the principles of the Eighteenth Amendment and with eager interest a decision on the momentous question of whether the disarmament conference which convenes here in November is to be wet or dry. Those who agree with Mr. Volstead are also interested, and are expected to have considerable to say if the decision goes against them.

The problem involves some nice considerations is disputed by no one. On the other hand, it involves the morality and dignity of the domestic law, as constituted in the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act; on the other, it brings into play delicate questions of diplomatic message and international courtesy deemed essential to the success of the conference.

More than a thousand foreigners, varying in rank from prime minister to messenger, are expected to come to Washington in connection with the conference. The British delegation, it is estimated, will number hardly less than 200, while those of France, Italy, Japan and China will probably total little short of that figure. Belgium, the Netherlands, and Portugal will be also represented. In addition, observers are expected from practically every nation in the world. Of all the countries to be represented, the United States is the only one with prohibition, and the question already has arisen whether these guests must, while in Washington, do as the Washingtonians do. It is hardly to be expected, officials point out, that dry enthusiasts will sit idly by and see their lid lifted without raising their voices in protest. The Anti-Saloon League is still functioning.
