ALMOST GOT $2,000. Played Dice on Oilcloth—Got Son's Advice in Time. Hartford, Oct. 16—Lynman Cogswell, an elderly man who lives with his son, Henry J. Cogswell, at 70 Ann street, came near being the victim of a bunco game Wednesday afternoon. Mr Cogswell was down town when a smart looking man came up to him and called him by name. The stranger asked him if he knew the Grays of Suffield, saying that he was a member of that family. Mr Cogswell knew the family well, but did not recognize the man who claimed Gray blood.

After considerable talk the stranger asked Mr Cogswell to visit a house on High street where he said they could make a little money. This was done and in a room, which contained little but a few chairs and a table, they found a man about 60 years old. He invited them to play a game of "under or over seven," which was done by means of a large oilcloth containing numbered squares, and some dice. The young man and Mr Cogswell each put his fingers on a square and the dice-rolled in their favor. They were informed that they had won $2,000, but that in order to get the cash they would have to show as much. Mr Cogswell displayed his bankbook, which was good for considerably more and he was told by the men that if he went to the bank and drew the money the $2,000 would be his.

He started down town in company with "Gray" but when he reached Main street he thought he would like to consult his son, who is with H. P. Levy, the jeweler. His son saw through the game at once and started to look for the clever stranger, but he had departed. The detective bureau was notified and Detective Sergeant Hart, Santoro and Welmer were detailed on the case. The house on High street was visited and there it was learned that the men had taken the room that morning and said they would pay $1 a day for it as long as they retained it. They had escaped when the detectives arrived and have not been found.

URNS CATHOLIC TO MARRY. Katherine Barry Weds Julius Scharmann Rich Brewer. New York, Oct. 16—Despite his many denials of rumors contemplating his intention, Julius Scharmann, a well known Brooklyn brewer, was married Wednesday at the Church of St John the Baptist to Kathleen Patricia Laverty of Manhattan. Miss Laverty, whose stage name is Katherine Barry, was the leading lady in the Lyceum theater stock company in Brooklyn.

She and Scharmann had been close friends for a long time. It was due to an automobile ride through Westchester county that reports reached Brooklyn saying the couple had figured in a runaway marriage. They were accompanied by Leu Burgmeyer and a girl companion of Miss Barry. The brewer and the actress denied the story, and have been evading the subject since. Mr Scharmann is a member of the Arlon Singing society, the Bushwick club and many other organizations, and is well known in local democratic circles. For some time he has been absent at their assemblies and the gossipers were kept busy. The reason of the brewer's seclusion was explained in the wedding last night, for Mr Scharmann had been converted to Catholicism and was receiving the necessary instruction at St John's college. It developed the brewer had long ago pressed his suit with the actress, but the difference in religion prevented an answer.

POLI'S "PAID IN FULL" This evening at Poli's the Wagenhals and Kemper production of "Paid in Full" will be presented. This play contains four great acts and was written by Eugene Walter. For his theme Mr Walter has taken a great moral issue in our American life and his treatment, development and characterization is said to be stamped with the amazing candor and frankness. Cut and dried rules for play writing have been cast aside and he has proceeded on the belief that red blood, bone and sinew of which we of this world are constituted, our thoughts, deeds and emotions form a pretty fair basis for a play. Seats now on sale. Telephone 1084. No free list. Prices 25c to $1.50.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" Manager Martin of Al W. Martins "Uncle Tom's Cabin" which will be seen at Poli's to-morrow afternoon and evening has hit upon an innovation that bids fair to revolutionize the current productions of the well known but ever popular drama. In his employment of white actors and actresses exclusively, he has attempted something that has been scorned by other managers as an attempt at the impossible. Special prices for this date only. Matinee, children 10, adults 20c. Evening, 10, 20 and 30c.

MOVING PICTURES The Imperial moving picture company will present a high class exhibition at Poli's on Sunday evening with a headline feature, "The Bridge of Sighs." There will be many other subjects and new illustrated songs. Poli's orchestra will play.

"MRS TEMPLE'S TELEGRAM" The coming of the farce comedy, "Mrs Temple's Telegram" at Poli's on Monday takes an added interest in the fact that the leading woman of the piece is Miss Lavinia Shannon, than whom there is no better comedienne on the American stage to-day. The part of "Mrs Jack Temple" permits a display of every one of Miss Shannon's varied talents and according to the most competent newspaper critics throughout the country, never before has this most difficult character to portray been interpreted in such a clever manner as is being done this season by Miss Shannon. Prices 25c to $1.50.

JACQUES VAUDEVILLE This week's vaudeville show at the Jacques is just the kind that hits the popular fancy. The bill is made up of acts of wide variety and each one is excellent of its kind. Next week the headliner will be Mr and Mrs Gardner Crane in Mrs Gardner's new sketch, "Pixley's Prodical Parents." Poli's popular prices. EAGLE HALL PICTURES An interesting and amusing motion picture entertainment will be given at Eagles' hall on Sunday evening by the Superior moving picture company of New York. The headline act will be a great novelty and there will be a score of other pictures besides. Illustrated songs and a special musical programme are also on the bill. Prices, 10 and 15 cents. TIME IS ALMOST HERE. Opening of the Eagles' Monarch Fair To-morrow Evening. Everything that man can do has been done to pave the way for the grand opening of the Eagles' monarch fair to-morrow night. The committee of arrangements, from the chairman down, has labored night and day for the past few months to have everything in ship shape when the bell rings for the rise of the curtain. The big parade which will precede the regular festivities, will create the first interest in the eyes of the public, for it will be a monster affair, if the members do what they say they will. Every Eagle will be right on to his job for the next few weeks and in order that the fair may start well, the birds are all going to be in evidence to-morrow night. The nest inside will be a thing of beauty. High priest M. F. Greaney, has consulted the stars and has discovered a new method of making brilliant the interior of any building. It will be one mass of electricity and shooting stars will be in evidence. Booths there will be, all tastefully decorated, but no bunting will be in sight. Electric festoons will take the place of the old time decorations. As the time is drawing near, when the bird of fortune, will alight on the heads of twenty-one people and bestow financial blessings, it is well to remind you that this bird can alight on the heads of those only, who possess the magic key. In other words, the souvenirs. Perhaps you have stocked yourself up well, but if you have not the last chance has arrived. The Nilsson Aerial Ballet girls are here ready for their work. They will astonish all, who have never witnessed their act. It is a wonderful thing and you will say so yourself, when you have feasted your eyes on it. The piano is still forging ahead, but the ladies are close on its heels. It will be a great race and fortunate indeed will be the lucky winner.
