Every Man Woman and Child in Town That Could Spare a Nickle or More

WORE A TAG TO-DAY

Tag day in Waterbury opened bright and early this morning with a flourish and was a success away and beyond the expectations of the management...

THE ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS

LEAGUE OF WATERBURY.

While the tagging started early, the real work was not commenced until people got on the streets enroute to the stores and factories and every one was met by a bevy of bright girls provided with lots of tags and a box to drop your offering into...

The taggers who got loose among the lawyers in the district court today reaped a harvest. Court was about to open when they entered the lobby and nothing would do Judge Cowell and Court messenger Perkins...

It has often been said that George H. Byrnes and the other clerks in the bureau of water ought to have more help, but you wouldn't think so if you called there to-day.

YALE-PRINCETON

Stubborn Fight on the Jersey Gridiron This Afternoon Was Witnessed By Thousands

PRINCETON SCORES

Princeton, Nov. 14.—Yale and Princeton met this afternoon in their annual football game. It began to snow at 1:30 with prospects of rain. The field was in good condition and the crowd came to the field very slowly...

Dr Peter T. Keeley, the food inspector was tagged from his head to his heels at noon. At that particular hour he plainly carried more tags than any one individual in the city.

This was a queer day in Waterbury. The water board was praying for rain, just as it has been for several weeks...

Counting the Money. At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon sixty boxes had been open at the Colonial Trust Co. They contained $750. The largest bill in any of the boxes was $10 and there was a check found for $2.

The girls that went through the factories were royally treated by the employes and in many instances their tags gave out. In some of the factories the men that had no nickels, dimes or quarters poured pennies into the boxes.

It looks as though the money collected will exceed the expectations of the committee for this afternoon. 50,000 more tickets had to be printed and strung, making more than 200,000 that have been turned out.

The appeal in the papers last evening for automobiles was answered and Mrs E. O. Goss, who was in charge of this department, said there was plenty of cars and every district was supplied with a machine.

There are one thousand boxes out or at least that many were sent out. They began to come in this afternoon and she now being counted at the Colonial Trust Co.
