Famous Veteran That Swing Around Horn Is Center of Interest

FLAGSHIP "CALIFORNIA" by virtue of the San Diego trials, now occupying the top of the Pacific Fleet, has been designated the "Horned Angel," for the purpose of luring the attentions of the British fleet to this country. The 20,000-ton ship is described as a heavy cruiser, a ship of war which is intended to give offense and not to receive it. It represents the latest in the line of vessels designed for the defense of the country.

The British fleet is also expected to make some changes in its organization, and the new vessels will probably be named the "Horned Maiden." It is reported that the British fleet will consist of 10 cruisers, four battleships, and two monitors, and that the fleet will be commanded by Sir Robert W. B. Admirals Head, C. H. N. and G. H. G.

The British fleet is expected to arrive off the coast of Southern California early next week, and will probably be anchored near the mouth of the San Diego Bay. The exact date of the arrival of the British fleet is not known, but it is expected to make the voyage from England in less than two weeks.

FLEET IS POLISHED FOR TAFT'S VISIT
Atlantic Squadron First Will Pass Under Eye of Navy Secretary

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—The first division of the Atlantic Squadron, consisting of the cruiser "Kearsarge," under Rear Admiral Hooper Oates, commander, and the battleship "New Mexico," under Rear Admiral William Barbour, commander, will pass under the eyes of President Taft at 1 P.M. today.

The "Kearsarge" will be accompanied by the destroyers "Champlain" and "Baltimore," and the mine-sweeping vessel "Mesaba." The "New Mexico" will be accompanied by the destroyers "Woonsocket" and "Woonsocket." The "Kearsarge" will be commanded by Captain W. B. Oates, and the "New Mexico" by Captain W. B. Barbour. The "Kearsarge" is a 14,000-ton vessel, and the "New Mexico" is a 12,000-ton vessel.

The fleet will pass under the eyes of President Taft at 1 P.M. today, and will then proceed to New York Harbor, where it will be inspected by the President.

LABOR OFFICIAL PROVES HARD NUT
Santa Barbara Walnut Growers Are Bested in Tit With Commissioner

Santa Barbara's walnut growers have been trying to get their way in the matter of the walnut crop, and have been met with a determined resistance by the United States Commissioner of Agriculture. The growers have been attempting to get the Commissioner to issue a proclamation declaring the walnut crop to be a public property, but the Commissioner has refused to do so.
