NOWS THE DAY OF THE DEBUTANTE
BY SALLY JUIN

The autumn season has brought a number of balls to the city, and although the frivolities and novelties of the summer season are gradually fading, the quest of the eligible young ladies and gentlemen still continues, and those who have waited patiently through the summer months are now finding their opportunities among the gaiety and pleasure of the fall season. Among the many balls that have taken place, there has been one that has attracted considerable attention. The debutante season is at its height, and many young women are making their first appearances in society. The season is one of great social activity, and it is a time when the eligible young men and women come together to make their introductions and form new acquaintances.

The debutante season is a time of great excitement for those who are entering society for the first time. The young women, who have been brought up in the refined and elegant atmosphere of the upper crust, are eager to make their mark in society. They are dressed in their finest gowns, adorned with diamonds and pearls, and their every movement is watched by the社交ites who have been waiting for this moment for many years.

The debutantes are accompanied by their chaperons, who are responsible for ensuring that the young women are treated with respect and kindness. The chaperons are usually the young women's closest friends or relatives, and they are there to provide guidance and support.

The debutante season is also a time when the eligible young men are looking for their future wives. They are introduced to the eligible young women through their social circle, and it is a time when they can form new friendships and possibly find their future partners.

The debutante season is a time of great social activity, and it is a time when the young women are looking for their future partners. They are introduced to the eligible young men through their social circle, and it is a time when they can form new friendships and possibly find their future partners.