GREAT WARSHIP TAKES MAIDEN DIP IN OCEAN

Delaware Successfully Launched From Newport News Shipyards

One of Four Fighting Craft Which Will Form Invisible Squadron

NEWPORT NEWS, Va.-Feb 4.—The newest fighting battleship was successfully launched from the hands of her builders, the Newport News shipyard.

The launching was witnessed by many people. Among them were Minister Secretary of War Haskell, Sen. of the Committee on the Senate, and Miss Florence Smith of Sears and Roebuck Company of Portland, Me.

The launching was followed by a visitation of the vessels. Compliment was extended to the builders, greatly enjoyed by all.

Northern Alberta

The Nebraska is to be carried as a new vessel and as a new ship. The purpose of any known vessel of its class, will be to protect it from injury and to have the greatest possible range of action.

Newspaper printers will have a right to use this story, but are not to sell it for profit.

There is a dispute between the Northern Maine and the Nebraskans over the ownership of the vessels. The Northern Maine is the owner of the Nebraskans, and will have to pay them for the use of the vessels.

The Nebraskans have asked for a transfer of ownership, but the Northern Maine have refused, saying that they are not willing to give up their rights in the vessels.

It is expected that the Northern Maine will soon be on the way to New York to take possession of the vessels.

The wounds of the Nebraskans will not interfere with the comfort of the Northern Maine, who have been using the vessels as they have been able.

The Northern Maine have told the Nebraskans that they will have to leave the vessels, and that they will not be permitted to use them as they have been doing.

The Nebraskans have refused to leave the vessels, and have said that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Northern Maine have said that they will have to leave the vessels, and that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Nebraskans have refused to leave the vessels, and have said that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Northern Maine have said that they will have to leave the vessels, and that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Nebraskans have refused to leave the vessels, and have said that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Northern Maine have said that they will have to leave the vessels, and that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Nebraskans have refused to leave the vessels, and have said that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Northern Maine have said that they will have to leave the vessels, and that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Nebraskans have refused to leave the vessels, and have said that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Northern Maine have said that they will have to leave the vessels, and that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Nebraskans have refused to leave the vessels, and have said that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Northern Maine have said that they will have to leave the vessels, and that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Nebraskans have refused to leave the vessels, and have said that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.

The Northern Maine have said that they will have to leave the vessels, and that they will not be parted with the vessels until the Northern Maine have paid for their use.