SHORT STORIES OF THE DAY.

tales.

Tom Joe, the young Indian of the Medicine Plains, was telling a tale of the day, "There was a young man who was very much in love with a young woman. But the young woman was very much in love with another young man. The young man was very much in love with the young woman. But the young woman was very much in love with another young man. The young man was very much in love with the young woman. But the young woman was very much in love with another young man. The young man was very much in love with the young woman. But the young woman was very much in love with another young man. The young man was very much in love with the young woman. But the young woman was very much in love with another young man. The young man was very much in love with the young woman." "And so the young man and the young woman lived happily ever after," said Tom Joe.

SOCIETY.

The president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, in an address before the council, said that the city was making tremendous progress. "Our population is growing, our industries are expanding, and our economy is improving," he said. "We are a city of great potential, and we are determined to realize that potential." The council agreed, and passed a resolution supporting the president's efforts.
