PROCEEDINGS OF COURT.

NEW CASTLE, Nov. 28.

Court opened at 10 o'clock. Judges Comery, Houston and Wooten on the bench.

Levi Bird, counsel for Daniel Creeden who was convicted for selling liquor without license, yesterday afternoon applied for a new trial on the plea that the case was brought up in his absence. The application was granted.

Thompson & Co. vs. Wm. Silver. There was no defense. This action upon a promissory note. Verdict for the plaintiff to the amount of $527.85.

Andrew Crumlish vs. John Shaw. This was also an action on promissory notes. Verdict in favor of plaintiff to the amount of $80.46, principal and interest.

Andrew Crumlish vs. Rachel M. Scholl and John I. Scholl, action on promissory note. Verdict for plaintiff to the amount claimed $90.44.

The cases against John Smuek for selling liquor without a license were continued over until next term, and the witnesses discharged.

State vs. Dennis T. Maguire, for assault on John L. Richards, on the 20th of September. The State abandoned the case upon hearing the evidence of the first witness, and upon the decision of the Court that the police officer had no right to arrest the man unless he was committing a breach of the law or had a warrant.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty without leaving the box.

Wm. C. Ellason vs. James Lecompte. Action to recover amount on promissory notes. Lore for defence and Rodney for plaintiff.

AN APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC.

It being the desire of the Board of Trustees of the First Presbyterian Church to have a new and beautiful cemetery attached, we deem it most proper to solicit for it the kind attention of all who are interested in it as a place of family interment. And we cannot feel that such a solicitation will meet with an affectionate and generous response, and especially so at the present time. Because in the first place the grounds (excepting a few lots under private care) so long neglected have been cleared up with considerable toil and expense, and now, though not finished, presents at least a green and clean appearance.

The place is capable of improvement of being made one of the most beautiful and attractive in the city. It ought to be made so because of the prominent central position it occupies.

It is the resting place of many of the relatives and friends of the oldest families of Wilmington. It is often visited by persons from a distance who carry away good or bad impressions according to what they see.

The little brick church on the premises is soon to pass into the hands of the Historical Society of Delaware, and a proper respectability demands that the grounds adjacent be kept as handsome as possible. Many persons who have the remains of friends there—feeling the force of these claims—have not only signified their readiness to respond to them, but have urged us to present them in this public manner.

Very respectfully and obediently, F. B. DeVAL.

International Exhibition

The American Industrial Palace at the Centennial Grounds.

The largest, grandest, and most complete Exhibition in the World.

Thirty-eight States and Territories, and all principal Foreign Countries represented in the Immense Display.

The great Main Building filled with Exhibits, representative of every Department of Education, Art, Science, and Industry.

Among the many attractions, special attention is called to the most magnificent and most life-like representations of the kind ever on exhibition. The Jahnmaker, an admirable illustration of a German life, and the wonderful mechanical landscape, in the northwest corner of the Agricultural Department, a most ingenious piece of mechanism. The New England log cabin picture the simple habitations, customs, and manners of our forefathers, the glass works, in which the manufacture of glass is fully illustrated. One of the most attractive features of the exhibition, the Indian encampment, showing the home life of the Red Man. The colored quartette, who sing the quaint plantation songs and hymns of the South, with all the melody and feeling characteristic of their race. The elevators, which a fine view of the park and city can be seen from.

Recitals on the Grand Roosevelt Organ Every day at 2 and 4 p. m.

Grand Promenade Concert Every Saturday Evening.

The Summer Tourist will find no resort possessing greater interest than this, which quite rivals the exhibit in the Main Building last year.

Admission Tickets, Price 25 Cents. Children, 10 Cents. Admit also to the complete Exhibition of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, in Memorial Hall.

FIFTH EDITION.

LOSS OF BRIG ELLEN F. STEWART.

Steamer Isaac Bell, from Richmond, brought to New York on Saturday the crew and two officers of brig Ellen F. Stewart, of Philadelphia, lost off Hatteras. The names of the rescued were, Chief Mate John H. Limbuz. Second Mate John Mc. Carthy; Seaman Jeremiah Weyman, of Warren Me., Jules Hollebroque, of Nantes, France; Thomas Thompson Smith, of Norway, and George W. Faulkner, of Niagara Falls, New York. The Captain, Charles Miller, was lost; The Ellen F. Stewart sailed from New York Sept. 1st for Trinidad, where she arrived in due time, discharged cargo and left for the Ragged Islands; received a cargo of salt and proceeded Nov. 2 for Philadelphia. From the first day of the homeward voyage until the final act there was a succession of troubles and storms. The ship was strong, however, and buffeted the waves successfully. On the third day out the wind, which had been increasing in violence, developed into a perfect hurricane. Sails were reefed and everything made fast on deck. Life lines were stretched fore and aft, and the quarter-masters were lashed to the wheel. The gale worked the sea into furious mountains, and the decks were deluged with the mighty waves that poured in quick succession over them. It was not possible that the vessel could stand through the storm, and it was utterly impossible, of course, that a life boat could be launched. Their only chance was to get her before the wind and sea, and after hours of toil this was accomplished. Under bare poles and before the storm the vessel pitched and rolled until the shape of a lull. The ship was put about, sail was made and for a second time the homeward voyage was begun.

Through two days and two nights more the vessel pitched and rolled until the deck and hull were flooded with the water that poured over her bows. On the 8th another storm was met, which lasted through the night and part of the day following, which was the 9th of Nov. Toward evening the winds lessened in force, and during the night almost died away.

In the morning there was almost a dead calm; the waves were mountainous yet, however, and the vessel rolled almost on her beam ends. As day broke over the scene, the sky cleared, and as the brig mounted the crest of the waves the crew were horrified to see the foam dashing on the inner diamond reefs, off Hatteras. The vessel was tossed in the top of the sea and drifted helplessly towards the rocks. Each successive wave brought them nearer and nearer the black line, and the men could do nothing but stand and wait for the now almost inevitable end.

The ship now rapidly began to go to pieces, and each succeeding wave carried away some portion of her frame. By twelve o'clock but little remained of the hull, and the masts followed each other over the sides, the men clinging to them. About one o'clock the vessel was seen by the Paucio, of Galveston, with a cargo for New York. They were taken good care of, and on Saturday morning were taken from the brig by the steamer Isaac Bell.

The Ellen F. Stewart was a A. 1 vessel of 395 tons register, built at Wilmington, Del., in 1860, by Messrs. W. & A. Thatcher, and was owned in Philadelphia.

Mr. TILDEN TALKS.

WHAT HE THINKS OF MATTERS AND THINGS—HIS PROPOSED CONTEST. According to a New York paper ex-Governor S. J. Tilden was stopped on the street in New York recently, by a friend, and the following conversation took place:

"What do you think, Governor, of the policy President Hayes is pursuing?" "I think he is chilling the fanaticism in the Republican party."

"Is he breaking up the party in your opinion?" "He will have no party very soon," replied Mr. Tilden; "he will in three years from now have no more support than a corporal's guard."

"Then you think, Governor Tilden, that he will alienate from his support both Democrats and Republicans?" "I think so. The South appears to be disposed to pat him on the back and urge him forward in his work of reconciliation, but will they stand by him?"

"What do you suppose they will do, Governor?" "Well, I supposed they will do as they always did, support none but a true-blooded Democrat that will represent them."

"Then you think that these ovations to President Hayes in the different Southern States were assumed for a purpose? Were insincere, in fact?" "It was all humbug," replied Mr. Tilden, with emphasis, "It can't be that these Southern Democrats will accept an administration which they must know is founded on fraud, and which is Republican in spite of everything."

"But they do accept it, Mr. Tilden."

"Yes, they do accept it, but you know the present administration is falling to pieces and where it will end Heaven only knows."

"Do you purpose prosecuting your right to the presidential chair?" "Certainly, I do," answered Mr. Tilden spiritedly. The country knows that I was legally elected President, and this American people is too intelligent to forget that one glaring and paramount fact. If the voice of the nation be not realized in the serious question of electing its supreme ruler then you may calculate on bitterness of feeling that will not be assuaged until the wrong is righted. The people who supported me feel to-day that their votes were given in vain. They feel that they might as well have cast their suffrages for a dummy, and they number so large a portion of the population of the whole country that it is an unwise experiment to trifle with their rights. As for as I am concerned it is of little consequence; but I tell you one of the gravest principles in representative government is involved, and if the people do not see to it the matter will be subject for deep regret to coming generations."

"What do you think of the action of the Senate in the case of the Southern Senators?" "Well, as I said before, the Administration and the Republican party are going to pieces. Mr. Hayes has no color, and the Republican party has no policy."

"You appear, Governor, to feel a distrust of the Southern support of Hayes?" "Humbug," responded the Governor, sententiously, "you can't mix oil and water."

A LONG FAST. FORTY-TWO DAYS WITHOUT FOOD—A MAN WHO LIVED ON WATER.

Skeptics who insist that the forty days' fast in the wilderness was a physical impossibility will not be prepared to believe that Dr. Tanner of Minneapolis, Minn., has lived on water for forty-two days. He states that he was anxious to prove that human life could be prolonged without the use of any nourishment whatever, and began his fast under the eyes of an associate physician, who examined him frequently and kept a record of all the symptoms. For forty-two days he remained without food, taking a walk every day in the open air and a swallow of water whenever inclination prompted. On the fortieth day he walked out to Lake Cedar and drank too much cold water, in consequence of which the action of his heart was weakened so that not the faintest trace of pulsation could be discovered at the wrist. These symptoms soon disappeared, and on the last day of his fast, although he had lost eighteen pounds in weight, he felt so strong and well that he was confident that he could hold out for two weeks longer. On returning to his feed he ate sparingly at first, but soon had to blunt the edge of an enormous appetite. Whereupon, and unto much more of like import, he is willing to make oath and affix his seal.

A CASE OF CONSUMPTION.

EAST STONEHAM, Oxford county, Me., May 12, 1873.

Messrs. Seth W. Fowle & Sons:

Gentlemen—I feel it my duty to write a few words in favor of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. In the early part of last winter I took a severe cold, and shortly afterward a distressing cough was added to it. My friends did everything they could for me, but without avail. The best physicians had been consulted but they could not relieve me, and my cough continued with me all through the winter, with increasing severity. I spit blood three or four times a day, and my friends, considering my case hopeless, gave me up as a confirmed Consumptive. I was in this condition when I heard of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I began its use, and before I had taken half a bottle of it my cough and all my other troubles left me, and I was cured. I feel so truly indebted to this great remedy for what it has done for me that I send you this voluntary testimony, hoping it may be the means of inducing others who are suffering as I was, to make use of it. It is the best remedy for lung complaints that I ever heard of and I am constantly recommending it to my friends.

Yours with respect, MRS. MELISSA M. BALL.
