SALVATION ARMY PLANS THREE FREE EXCURSIONS

The local division of the Salvation Army under the direction of Adjutant W. F. Bartlett, will, in a few days, begin the soliciting of funds with which to provide outings for poor families during the coming summer. Already three such excursions have been planned by Adjutant Bartlett, the first to be given on Tuesday, July 2, when 500 poor mothers and their children will spend the day at Washington Park. The two other excursions will be byrolley to parks and groves adjacent to the city. Adjutant Bartlett hopes for liberal contributions to the worthy cause. At least $300 is needed. The adjutant says an itemized report will be published showing how every cent of the money is disbursed.

That needy families of the city may be supplied with free ice water, the Army has placed a water barrel in front of its barracks at Fourth and King streets. Should the service be appreciated Adjutant Bartlett says he will locate other barrels in other sections of the city where he believes they would be most appreciated during the warm weather.

Woman's World

MISS LOUISA D. HORSLEY.

She Nominated Secretary Taft For President Thirty-eight Years Ago. If William H. Taft should ever be nominated and elected president of the United States, there is in Cincinnati a quiet, inconspicuous little woman who, although she has been a wage earner for nearly twoscore years, would in all probability figure as the unofficial guest of honor at the inaugural ball and all other attendant festivities. The little woman is Miss Louisa D. Horsley, an old schoolteacher of William H. Taft, who nominated him for president thirty-eight years ago. Next month Miss Horsley will celebrate her fortieth anniversary as a teacher in the Cincinnati public schools.

It was about thirty-eight years ago she had among her pupils in the A intermediate grade of the Mount Auburn public school twelve-year-old Willie

MISS LOUISA D. HORSLEY.

Taft. His home was within a stone's throw of the schoolhouse, and the old homestead still stands there. At that time the Mount Auburn school where Miss Horsley is still teaching consisted of but three rooms, over one of which she presided. Just how well she did so is indicated by a story told by one of her "boys," a classmate of Willie Taft.

"We were all sitting around the stove one day toward the close of the year," he said. "Will Taft was there. Miss Horsley had been talking to us as she often did. She said that she was pleased with what we had accomplished, but that we could do lots better if we tried. 'One of you boys could likely be president. Why not try?' she said. 'I remember the incident well,'" said Miss Horsley recently when reminded of the incident, "and I would certainly be exceedingly pleased to see William Taft occupy the place for which he is so well fitted."

Work as Punishment.

Unless a mother wants to heap up trouble for herself and the child now and later on it is better never to punish by making the culprit perform a certain amount of work, says Hilda Richmond in the Housekeeper. There are mothers who keep certain disagreeable tasks for little sinners, just as some cities compel their offenders against public peace to repair roads or break stone. This is risky business, since it gives the child the impression that it is a misfortune to have to work.

A grown man says he hates the very sight of an onion bed because his mother made him weed the tiny plants every time he was naughty when he was a child. Onion weeding is tedious, back breaking work at best, but when it is done as a punishment it becomes horrible. A bright penny, a special treat in the way of a big orange or a trip to the pond to fish would have sent the boy whistling to the onion bed determined to conquer or die, but to be chained there, so to speak, with a smattering sense of his woes makes him recall those days yet.

Some mothers put the little girls to bed when they are restless and in mischief, but the only thing accomplished is to make the little fingers loathe the needlework. I have seen rebellious little girls making buttonholes all over a piece of old goods as punishment for some wrongdoing. The work was wasted because the mother threw it in the wastebasket the minute she was satisfied with the effort, and the children only turned out good work in order to be released.

Solitary idleness is better than work as punishment. Often when left to themselves the children would gladly take their books or work, but they always resent being ordered to work to atone for their sins. A long, quiet think will make them penitent, while hard work only makes them feel injured and gives them the lasting impression that all work is disgraceful.

SENATOR RICHARDSON TO SPEND SUMMER ON YACHT

Special to THE EVENING JOURNAL. DOVER, May 27.—Senator H. A. Richardson, who returned home from his Washington labors last evening, is preparing for his summer cruise in his swift cabin yacht, the Priscilla. The Priscilla arrived in her moorings here on Saturday evening, having left Annapolis at 10 o'clock that morning in charge of E. T. Helte, of Dover, with Captain Dean, of Washington, as the pilot. The motor machinery worked well, the boat averaging over twenty miles per hour. William Maag, of Dover, accompanied the crew. The boat will leave for Thousand Islands about July 1 for the summer.

BOY WHO PLUNGED THROUGH TAR BARREL LOSES SKIN.

Special to THE EVENING JOURNAL. GEORGETOWN, May 27.—John Ellingsworth, the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ellingsworth, had the misfortune to fall in a barrel of tar during a horse sale at the stables of John H. Truitt here yesterday. The little fellow was standing on the barrel when an untamed pony was brought out of a stall for sale. The animal became excited at the large crowd of people standing in front of the stable, and the boy, fearing that the pony might jump on him, jumped around the barrel-head until it gave away, precipitating him into the tar, in scraping the tar off, the boy lost much of his skin.

Paris Patterns

GIRL'S AND CHILD'S APRON. Paris Pattern No. 2386

This dainty little all-cover apron, which might be used for a dress for very small child, during the warm days of Summer, is developed in sheer white Irish dimity. The body portion is very full, gathered into the yokeband at the front and back and finished with a deep hem. Satin ribbons in smart bows on the shoulders hold the garment in place, and two narrow rows of seam beading ornament the yoke-band. The model is adaptable to any of the sheer white materials and would be particularly pretty in cross-barred dimity or serim. For a child of 6 years the apron requires 2 3/4 yards of material 27 inches wide, or 1 3/4 yard 50 inches wide; 1 1/2 yard of braid to trim.
