Delaware Is Free Of Road Fatalities As Holiday Closes

Much Intended Travel Was Led By Snow And Ice; Fifteen Were Hurt In Crashes.

Delaware came through the holiday weekend without a traffic fatality. Eleven other accidents led to the hospitalization of 15 people.

The Delaware State Highway Department reported 11 accidents involving 15 people. All but one of the accidents were caused by sliding conditions.

The winter storm that swept through Delaware on Saturday and Sunday led to a surge of homebound travelers who were not in the state on the weekend. The department reported that 11 accidents involving 15 people were caused by sliding conditions.

Among the accidents were two that led to the hospitalization of three people. In one accident, a car slid off the road and hit a tree. In the other accident, a car hit a guardrail.

The Delaware State Highway Department said that the winter storm had caused the highway system to be slippery in many areas. The department said that it had deployed more than 1,000 workers to clear the roads.
