

Mrs. R. S. McConaughy, EDITRESS AND PROPRIETOR. CLAYTON, DEL.

Saturday Morning, Aug. 17, 1867.

Secretary Stanton.

The removal of Secretary Stanton so long talked of has at last been accomplished by that renegade, A. Johnson...

A dispatch to the New York Herald says: "Secretary Stanton, it is alleged, received information of a scheme for the raising of the military organizations in the late Rebel States with a view of making a new assault on the Government...

"BARKING.—One of two little pups have been barking occasionally through the columns of this paper since the 1st of July at Clayton, at a number of gentlemen in this county in the hope perhaps that a morsel might be thrown to them by the editor. Poor little dogs! They may be hungry, but we suppose they will have to bark on. The gentleman said that one of the dogs was snapping and snarling at them for a number of years, but that the other had the pups can't bite, and we suppose they will hardly stop long enough to notice the kennel or rest in the kennel."

Democrats of Delaware who are opposed to the Sausbury rule, what do you think of the above? We cannot look upon it as anything else than a gross insult to all true Democrats, and were one of the large party styled little pups by this Sausbury clique, we would call upon our friends to organize at once and make these big dogs feel our power. They should know that we had got old enough to open our eyes and maintain our rights. We would have men of principle to govern us and not gamblers and lottery dealers. We want to see this fight out. Our columns are open for all who may wish to take part in it. Go in, friends, we will stand by you and see fair play, and if necessary lend a hand; for ours is an independent sheet if it is a "feminine one."

Tuesday last was the heaviest peach day in the history of the Delaware Railroad. 80 cars passed over the road for New York, and 30 for Philadelphia—whole number, 110 cars. The Company should vote "???" of the Times, a gold watch!

DROWNED.—Edward T., son of Wm. Lea, Esq., was drowned while bathing in the Brandywine last Wednesday evening. He had gone into the water with Isaac Thomas and Richard McClure, and while swimming towards the shore suddenly sank from exhaustion or some other cause. The attention of his companions was attracted by some noise, and they hastened to his assistance; but being poor swimmers they were forced to let go their hold of him, and he sank to rise no more in life. His body was recovered a short time afterwards. He was about 16 years of age.—Rep.

THE CORPS.—The continued wet weather has done much injury to the wheat crop, many of the farmers not having had completed harvesting it. The straw looks black, and is rapidly becoming rotten. The wheat and potatoes are growing finely on the high lands, but are suffering considerably on the low ones. It is therefore feared that there will be little over a half crop of the former, while the latter are likely to suffer from the rot. Great injury has been done to the early peaches, the rain causing them to rot very soon. The only way to get peaches into market is to pick them while quite green.

(For the "Clayton Herald.") To Whom it may Concern.

We notice that the Delawarean calls the CLAYTON HERALD "a little dog in a paper." Well, suppose it is? We can positively say, and tell the truth, that its editor is the only person who controls a newspaper in this State who has the moral courage to expose the damnable corruption of political parties. She has done more than any other editor in the State would have done, notwithstanding one or two have been offered pay to do the same, while she does it free of charge and for the moral interest of the people. Not even the editors of that little woolly-headed thing in Wilmington, the Daily Commercial, would ever have dared to do such a thing, as much as they blow away with such cowardly—away with such cowardly and negro-idolizers. All praise to the CLAYTON HERALD, and honored—its pure—its fearless—its high-minded editor. The person who is afraid to do a publisher's duty, should be kicked out of the State or the bottom of some river. Mrs. Editor, fling out your banner of defiance—unflinchingly, and let it wave in bold relief in the faces of such miserable carrion maggots. Tell them to their teeth that you will do as you please, in spite of all their cowardly threats. Why, you may take a drag-net and a pair of oyster-tongues, and drag and take in from one end to the other, and you will find a more corrupt gang than these very fellows. Hoist your flag, with this motto: "Honor and purity, or death and obituary for forgetfulness." We are to your aid, if necessary, with an army of not less than one thousand as good Democrats as ever stood up.

JACKSONIAN DEMOCRAT.

(For the "Clayton Herald.") LETTER FROM SIMON SNOOKS.

"Ye little pups, why bark ye so, 'Whist! we're so high, and you're so low." The above closes an article—editorial—under the caption of "Barking," in the last issue of that classical sheet, the Delawarean, printed and published at Dover, Delaware, by James Kirk, Esq. It was established solely to promote the interest of the Sausbury family, and is supported chiefly by the public printing. No Clerk of either branch of the Legislature dares give the printing of their journals to any other paper than the "Sausburian," misnamed Delawarean.

Mr. Kirk, tool for the immaculate Sausburys, "and rather be a dog, and bay the moon." Then he says you are a lick-spittle for the family. We want no crumbs; refused our bone at the general distribution of France, Broadfoot & Co. Yes, we were offered one, the same time the family got theirs, and have proof of it, necessary and oral produce the evidence, both written and oral. But not like the "Jacksonian Democrat," we do not propose to make a great breach of the law, and do these little "pickings." The offer was made to us in good faith, and we think there is such a thing as "honor among thieves."

We do not expect those distinguished gentlemen members of our party or the Democratic party, viz: Sausbury brothers, will notice these "little dogs." They really have not the time. The people are thinking, will next be acting—when Sausbury-like they will shake the political pillars about their heads, and these will be weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth among the big dogs of the "Sausbury family." The writer of this is as true a Democrat, so far as voting the Democratic party, and supporting its principles, platforms and measures, as Jefferson its founder, and for reward ask nothing, receive nothing, expect nothing. He is like "the family"—the coston or back, the hat on our head, the shoes on our feet, the shingles on our roof, were not bought and paid for with funds either received from sales of office, or commissions from lottery managers.

And further, we will say that we had rather see the Sausburys confined in office during their natural lives, than this State should pass into the hands of the Republican party. Of "two evils," we shall always try to "choose the least." But we see no necessity of this sad alternative.

The Democratic party of this State had an existence, and was firmly established by the justice of its principles, when these Sausburys were delving in their pockets elements as dogs of hell in the "Hope" forest. The party grew and waxed strong, under the control and guidance of other hands than theirs. Before they were not disgraced in the councils of the nation; all Democrats of the State were looked upon as a band of Spartan brothers, working for our common end, i. e., the establishment of their principles and the overthrow of defunct lingering tyranny. Such things as "right wings" and "left wings" among the ranks were unknown. If any member of the party differed with others, he was not ostracized and read out of the party, but fraternally they reasoned together, and made common cause against their political enemies. The political wire-wiring and intrigues of to-day was then unknown at our State capital, the rewards were shared among the victors alike (Marcus style). It is an old saw, that "what has been done can be done again." There are enough Democrats of the right stripe in Delaware to sweep away this "Sausbury coloweb," defeat the Republicans, and restore our State government to the hands of good and pure men, and it will be done; time works wonders; the hand writing is on the wall. You fit from the spoils of office, stand from under! or the fangs of the blind pups may enter your filthy carcasses before you are aware of it, and then what a scene of official corruption will flow from the wounds! It will be hard on the pups, but won't the big dogs squirm some too? Is it not the duty of the Governor to put on such high airs, as he has seen him eat humble pie. He is too lately elevated for us to forget where he came from. We know he has plenty of his native dignity, but still his exaltation must not forget that he is mortal—a man, born of woman, whose days are short and full of political corruption and intrigue. We have seen his honor spreading himself on what he considered his biggest leg, and have thought with that child of nature, Burns—

"To could some giftie spirit give us, To could ourselves as others see us. But cheek goes a good way now-a-days; it is a good working capital; it often a man's only friend, and you must not press it too hard. Forbearance ceases to be a virtue in many things. We have seen the Governor swaggering around in his political megalomania, in his imperious manner (peculiar to himself), and have thought of the words of the "Bar of Avon." "As would make angels weep." Will enact such deeds Before high Heaven, As would make angels weep." Promenade all! A revival! SIMON SNOOKS, one of the blind-bus canini-bus.

(For the "Clayton Herald.") LETTER FROM DOVER.

DOVER, DEL., August 10, 1867. THIRD CHAPTER. TO THE BOOK OF SAUSBURYS. And mine slaves begin to open their eyes, and they are ready to devour them, and may the Jack Daws and Swamp Snipes take their harp to the tune of:— The Sausburys eat "little dogs." But their stomachs will not hold them. Mrs. Editor, be truly for you "little dogs." Mrs. Editor:— On looking over your correspondence, on Saturday morning, we let our eyes fall upon one which denounced you and "your helpers" in the most bitter terms, and stating that they (the author) would not scruple to shoot you, and the rest included; and he also said that "if he could look through the wall he would find himself in h—l." We will just here state to the blind fool, that we have found ourself in h—l ever since there has been a Sausbury man in office in Delaware. He says he is "Sausbury to the life." We believe him, or at least as far as "illusions" are concerned, for any one with half sense will perceive in an instant that he is some festering scab or slimy scum of the filthy Sausbury brigade. So far as shooting us is concerned, we let him proceed; to arm himself with knives, carbines, rifles, shot-guns, swords, pistols, &c., &c., and if he should be killed, we will be glad to see his funeral procession, and we will fight him with knives, pistols, pop-guns, or anything else he may name—yes, we will fight him with common Elder-squir, we saw him the other day in the hotel, so beastly drunk that he did not know whether his name was Sausbury or not, and he was on us there, but we knew at the same time that ten cents worth of whiskey, or the promise of throwing his arms around the neck of some nigger, would settle it with him or any other Sausburyite.

Allow us to congratulate you on the editorial in the illustration and the editorial article in question. It was just like that; it fitted as up like a charm. Your remark was very earnest where you stated that "we were towards these such threats," for "the Sausburys" will notice these "little dogs." He was once known to run from his shadow in the open day-light, for nearly two miles, and swears to this day that it was the devil after him. Well, we don't wonder at it, for he stole three or four head of sheep just below our town, not long since. We don't know how far the "little pup" is in the Sausbury platform: "We will pay these much, steal the rest. If then or any of our tools get into difficulty, we are the law-drivers, and can be they deliver. If you should kill a man (colored), we will not make any effort to bring thee to justice." We don't know how far the "little pup" is in the Sausbury platform: "We will pay these much, steal the rest.
