Striking a Happy Medium May Solve Picture Problem

By Mollie Merrick

HOLLYWOOD, May 4 - A young man, who has made a name for himself as a solution expert, has so far had no solution to the problem of how to restore to the public a sense of genuine emotion in the movies.

"It'll be impossible to do," he said. "A lot of people have been looking for that one solution for years, and they've been wrong. The only way to do it is to go back to the basics. You can't just throw a new story at the audience and expect them to feel as if it's real."

Don't Miss This Titillating New Mystery Serial Pic - "Nimbo - The Elusive Digger" - at the Fox on Friday, May 7th, at 8:15 P.M.
