Behind the News

Hoover Accepted Convention Bid With Warning Not to Permit Stampedes in His Direction.

CLEVELAND, June 30—Delegates convention were made for Secretary Hoover, who presided over the gathering, and this was not what Secretary Hoover wanted to do. He complained that the convention was not properly organized, and that they were not properly prepared. He also complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

Secretary Hoover was very much impressed by the way the convention was conducted, and he was very much impressed by the way the delegates were behaving. He was very much impressed by the way the convention was being properly conducted, and he was very much impressed by the way the delegates were being properly behaved.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.

The more trouble Secretary Hoover was in, the more he wanted to make the convention properly organized, and that they were properly prepared. He complained that the convention was not properly attended, and that they were not properly behaved. He also complained that the convention was not properly conducted, and that they were not properly met.