PITTSBURGH (TNS) A new step in the development of the National Gallery of Art, which is based on a gift of $10,000,000 from Mr. Andrew W. Mellon, was announced today by Mr. John G. Johnson, who is in charge of the project. Mr. Johnson said that the museum will be erected on the site of the old Philadelphia Museum of Art, and that the work will be carried forward as soon as possible.

The museum is to be built on a site which has been selected by Mr. Johnson and his associates. The site is a large one, and will accommodate a large number of works of art. The museum is to be built in stages, and the first stage will be completed within the next few years.

The museum is to be a permanent home for the National Gallery of Art, which is now located in the old Philadelphia Museum of Art. The gallery is one of the largest and most important in the United States, and is the home of many fine works of art. The museum is to be a permanent home for the gallery, and the works of art will be exhibited in it for the benefit of the public.
