TO AID MISS BARTON

Council of Women Urges Favorable Action.

APPEAL TO CONGRESS

ADDRESSING MADE BEFORE THE HOUSE THIS AFTERNOON.

The National Council of Women made an address to the House this afternoon, recommending expenses of instruction in the children's schools as a public duty. The question of the public responsibility of the education of children was brought out by the Council in its address to the House. The Council declared that the present system of education was not sufficient, and that the public responsibility of the education of children must be a public duty, and that the public must be held responsible for the education of the children.

Several Ministers Presented, and the House was more than satisfied with the paper presented by the Council. The Council declared that the present system of education was not sufficient, and that the public responsibility of the education of children must be a public duty, and that the public must be held responsible for the education of the children.

A statement was made that the present system of education was not sufficient, and that the public responsibility of the education of children must be a public duty, and that the public must be held responsible for the education of the children.

The American Woman's Suffrage Association was presented by the Council, and the House was more than satisfied with the paper presented by the Council. The Council declared that the present system of education was not sufficient, and that the public responsibility of the education of children must be a public duty, and that the public must be held responsible for the education of the children.