AMID THE DEAF AND DUMB

Methods of Teaching the Deaf and Mute.

The Columbian Institution for the Deaf and Mute, a continuation of the work of the American Asylum for the Deaf and Mute, is now in process of establishment at Kendall Grove. The institution is under the charge of Dr. John B. Kellogg, of New York, who is also a director of the New York Asylum for the Deaf and Mute. It is located on a lot which can be purchased for $10,000, and which is situated in the heart of the city, near the Northern Liberties, and a few miles from the city limits.

The institution is to consist of two main buildings, a school for the deaf and a school for the mute. The school for the deaf will have a capacity of 100, and the school for the mute will have a capacity of 200. The institution will be under the charge of Dr. John B. Kellogg, who will also be the principal of the school for the deaf.

The institution is to be supported by the government and by private contributions. The government has promised to give $5,000, and the asylum has already received $3,000 from private contributions. The remainder of the funds will be raised by the institution itself.

The institution will be opened for the fall term, and will be ready for use in the spring of the following year. The building will be ready for use in the fall of the following year.
