GEORGE Q. CANNON'S DEATH.

The Mormon Church Apostle Passes Away in Monterey, Cal.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—George Q. Cannon, senior apostle of the Mormon Church, and for many years a conspicuous figure in the commercial, financial, and political affairs of Utah, died at an early hour this morning at Monterey, Cal.

Several weeks ago the Mormon leader came to California, hoping that the climate of the coast would restore his failing health. He engaged a cottage in the old town of Monterey, where, it was thought, the bracing air of the ocean would prove beneficial to his impaired physical condition. When Cannon's condition became critical his family were notified by telegram and his three sons, Col. John Q. Cannon, ex-United States Senator, Frank J. Cannon, and Hugh Cannon, came on here and were present at his death.

"The end was very peaceful," said Col. John Q. Cannon; "he passed away without a struggle during the early hours of the morning. While we were still hopeful to the last, there was every indication that he could not survive much longer, and his physicians ascribed his death to bronchitis and enlargement of the heart. He had been troubled with some affection of the heart for months, but the illness which terminated in his death dates only from his return from Honolulu. When he got back to the highlands in Westchester he began to be troubled with a cough, which grew worse and resulted in bronchitis." Cannon's fortune is estimated at several millions, as he was a large shareholder in all the Mormon corporations and in the Union Pacific.

THE LONDON CENSUS.

Destitution and Overcrowding in Many Quarters of the City.

(From the London Telegraph.)

There are grim problems connected with the census. In Whitechapel, probably the most congested district in the whole of the metropolis, the numbering of the people is no light task. In Whitechapel are comprised, also, Spitalfields, Mile-End, New Town, Aldgate, the Tower, Old Artillery Ground, and Norton Folgate, an area of 460 acres, with an estimated population of 80,000. Great clearances have been made, huge mansions have been erected, plague spots have been eliminated, but, nevertheless, today in Spitalfields 200 persons are crowded to dwell upon every acre, and in Whitechapel 300.

The census will show whether these estimates are correct or below the mark. In the midst of all this congestion the apartment enumerators are now leaving the blue schedules and are entering all sorts of homes, the character of which can best be guessed from the vivid descriptions of the Rev. W. H. Davies, who declares:

"From one of my parochial buildings I have seen through the window a window of a house four men and six women retiring for the night in one room, the rent of which is 8s. a week—all of them respectable, hard-working people, and the majority of them sleeping in beds upon the floor."

Who would be the head of the household to fill in the schedule in such a case? There will be many the kind, for the same local clergyman says:

"I have had a number of cases of one or two typical alleys and houses in my parish. In one alley there are ten houses—fifty-one rooms—nearly all about eight feet by nine feet—and 24 people. Six instances only do two people occupy the room, and in other rooms the number varied from three to nine. In another court, with six houses and twenty-two rooms, were eighty-four people, again six, seven, eight, and nine being the number living in one room in several instances. In one house with three stories and five people, one room containing nine persons, one eight, two seven, and another six."

For these forty-five people there is one office, and in one office, and all tenement houses the washing for the family must be done by the aid of a pail, which is put upon the stove and serves for a copper on washing days. There are practically no ovens and such a thing as a home-made rice pudding is unknown to the children. At one of our Christmas teas about 20 poor children were assembled. After tea as they sat together, I asked: "How many of you live in a one-roomed home? Every hand but seven went up. How many live in a two-roomed home? Seven hands went up. How many live in three rooms? A number." All but twelve. So that with the exception of those twelve children all the rest were practically homeless, the wretched contents of a "furnished room" not being the property of the tenant, and the rent of 1s. a day or more being paid. In the great majority of cases, daily."

That's What We All Think.
(From the Yonkers Statesman.)

See Excite—We had to cut up some of the stage money and use it for snow in that winter scene, last night.

Foot Light—is that so?

"Yes, and the comedian said he thought it about time we had some sort of change in the weather."

MANY 'ROOKIES' DESERT.

The Men Fear They Would Not Go to the Philippines.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 12.—Nearly two hundred newly enlisted soldiers of the Fourteenth Cavalry Regiment, recruiting here, have deserted. The only reason assigned is that they were disappointed, believing that since Aguinaldo had been captured the new regiment would not be sent to the Philippines.

The missing soldiers are nearly all young recruits, and were from all companies of the new regiment, which now numbers about 800 men. Yesterday was their first pay day, and the deserters came to the city, many attempting to exchange their uniforms for civilian clothing and boarding freight trains for a number of purchased tickets to nearby cities. Tonight it was learned a number of them passed through St. Joseph, Mo., and a detachment of regulars were sent to bring them back.

It is said the officers will promise not to try the recruits for desertion if they return within ten days. The exact number of the men missing is not known. This evening the number reported absent, with-out leave was 180. There has been some feeling of dissatisfaction among the new men on account of the desertion, but the regiment. Less than a hundred horses have been received for the regiment, but the men have been kept busy driving out horses.

Deserters have been sent in every direction to locate the rascals, but it is believed nearly all of them will be found and returned to the post.

TRAVELS OF A DOG.

A Journey From Minneapolis to London and Return.

(From the Minneapolis Tribune.)

Morgan N. Swift of New York is at the Hotel. Mr. Swift represents a wholesale millinery house. He had an experience this morning that has been puzzling to him all day. While walking from the hotel over to Niagara Avenue, he passed a lady who had with her an extremely good-looking fox-terrier. Mr. Swift's attention was attracted to it, because it closely resembled a pet terrier he had owned a year ago. The harder Swift looked at the dog the more firmly conviction was forced upon him that it was the same dog.

In order to demonstrate the truth or falsity of this theory, Swift turned around and whistled in a peculiar way. Immediately the terrier stopped, cocked its ears and looked all about in an effort to locate the whistler. Then the New Yorker called "Dido, Dido—here, Dido," and the dog ran to him, jumping about, and manifesting its great joy in an unmistakable manner.

The lady called her pet by another name, but the dog refused to budge from Swift's heels. The situation was embarrassing. Swift approached the lady, and bowing, enquired how long the terrier had been in her possession. She replied that her husband had bought the dog in London about six months ago, bringing it with him to Minneapolis as a pet for his daughter.

Swift was nonplused. There was no possible question concerning the identity of the dog, but the person in whose company he had found his pet was most evidently a woman of position and refinement. In fact, the present home of the terrier is with one of the best-known families in Minneapolis.

The lady handed Mr. Swift her card and told him that if he desired to discuss the ownership of the animal he could do so with her husband at the latter's office. Swift agreed to this solution of the difficulty, but both parties had reckoned without the terrier, which insisted upon following Swift and would not be coaxed into going a step farther with the lady.

There was nothing for it, at last, but to leave the terrier in Mr. Swift's charge. He agreed to call on the supposed owner and to take the terrier with him.

In discussing the matter Mr. Swift said there was no doubt in his mind as to how the dog had reached London. It had strayed away in New York, been picked up by some tourist, and taken to London, where it had, in all probability, been lost again to the hotel. Mr. Swift, however, declared his readiness to reimburse the innocent purchasers to the extent of their expenditure and a determination to take the terrier back East with him, as he was a large shareholder in all the Mormon corporations and in the Union Pacific.

ORIGIN OF FAMILY NAMES.

later was replaced by "son." As early as 1021 they occur in a deed—Gamelon and Gwingselon. Much later such surnames descended in the family as Wilison, Johnson, Williamson (Williams), etc. Then came names derived from places and locality, as York, Winchester, field, hurst, wick, wood, hill, moor, sted, gate, brook, beck, barrow, bottom, grange, hall, spence (a yard), either with the prefix "at," as Atwood, Athill, Atmoor, etc., or with the suffix "man," as Millman, Yatesman, etc.

Names from occupations were common, as Smith, Carter, Taylor, Collier, Fowler, Hunter, Bowyer, Butler, Steward, Chamberlain, Porter, etc.; from personal qualities, as Long, Short, Strong, Stout, etc. Names from the animal kingdom were early and general, as Fox, Wolf, Buck, Bull, Colt, etc.

Names from towns and boroughs became frequent as surnames and eventually family names with the Norman Conquest, when there was not "a single village in Normandy that has not surmamed some family in England." The prefix "de" was generally dropped about the time of Henry VI, in the fifteenth century. In the thirteenth century, owing to the general custom of assuming surnames from places, a proverb ran: "In Ford, in Ham, in Ley, in Ton The most of English surnames run."

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

In Uric Acid or Gout Poisoning, Gout, Rheumatism, Stone, and All Uric Acid Conditions.

John V. Shoemaker, M. D., LL. D., Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in the Medico-Chirurgical College of Philadelphia, etc., in the New York Medical Journal, June 22, 1899:

"The BUFFALO LITHIA WATER is doubly efficient in Rheumatism and Gout. It dissolves Uric Acid and Phosphatic sediments, as well as other products difficult of elimination, while at the same time it exerts a moderately stimulant effect upon the renal cells, and thereby facilitates the swift removal of insoluble materials from the body. Without such action insoluble substances will precipitate in the Kidneys and Bladder. The intense suffering produced by Stone, together with consecutive pyelitis and cystitis, are avoided by prompt elimination.

"Unquestionably, although the speedy removal of Uric Acid and other products of faulty tissue change is of conspicuous benefit, yet to PREVENT their formation is a service still more important. This service is BUFFALO LITHIA WATER when it corrects those digestive failures which are responsible for the production of deleterious materials."

The late Hunter McGuire, M. D., LL. D., formerly President and Professor of Clinical Surgery, University College of Medicine, Richmond, Va., and Ex-President of the American Medical Association, says:

"BUFFALO LITHIA WATER as an alkaline diuretic is invaluable. In Uric Acid Gravel, and indeed in diseases generally dependent upon a Uric Acid Diathesis, it is a remedy of extraordinary potency. I have prescribed it in cases of Rheumatic Gout which had resisted the ordinary remedies with wonderfully good results. I have used it also in my own case, being a great sufferer from this malady, and have derived more benefit from it than from any other remedy."

Dr. P. B. Barringer, Professor of Physiology and Surgery, University of Virginia: "In more than twenty years of practice I have used Lithia as an anti-uric acid agent many times, and have tried it in a great variety of forms, both in the NATURAL WATERS and in TABLETS. As the result of this experience I have no hesitation in stating that for prompt results I have found nothing to compare with BUFFALO LITHIA WATER in preventing uric acid deposits in the body. My experience with it as a solvent of old existing deposits (calculi) has been relatively limited, and I hesitate to compare it here with other forms to their disadvantage; but for the first class of conditions above set forth I feel that BUFFALO LITHIA WATER STANDS ALONE."

Dr. Thomas H. Buckler, of Paris (formerly of Baltimore), SUGGESTOR OF LITHIA as a SOLVENT FOR URIC ACID, says: "Nothing I could say would add to the well-known reputation of the BUFFALO LITHIA WATER. I have frequently used it with good results in URIC ACID DIATHESIS, RHEUMATISM, and GOUT, and with this object I have ordered it to Europe. Lithia is in no form so valuable as where it exists in the carbonate, the form in which it is found in BUFFALO LITHIA WATER, nature's mode of solution and division in water which has passed through Lepidolite and Spondumne Mineral formations."

Dr. J. W. Mallet, Professor of Chemistry, University of Virginia, extract from report of analysis of Calculi discharged by patients under the action of BUFFALO LITHIA WATER, Spring No. 2:

"It seems on the whole probable that the action of the water is PRIMARILY and MAINLY EXERTED upon URIC ACID and the URATES, but when these constituents occur along with, and as cementing matter to Phosphatic or Oxalic Calculus materials, the latter may be so detached and broken down as to disintegrate the Calculus as a whole in these cases, also thus admitting of Urethral discharge."

James L. Cabell, M. D., A. M., LL. D., formerly Professor of Physiology and Surgery in the Medical Department of the University of Virginia, and President of the National Board of Health, says: "BUFFALO LITHIA WATER in Uric Acid Diathesis is a well-known therapeutic resource. It should be recognized by the profession as an article of Materia Medica."

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER is for sale by Grocers and Druggists generally. Testimonials which defy all imputation or questions sent to any address.
