LEXINGTON DAY OBSERVED

Sons of the American Revolution Hold a Celebration.

The Oration Delivered by Henry E. Davis—The Desecration of the Flag Discussed—The Influence of Thought in Our National History.

The Sons of the American Revolution celebrated Lexington Day last night at Rauscher's. A regular business meeting of the organization preceded the special exercises prepared for the occasion by the Committee on Arrangements. The assemblage was called to order at 8:20 by President Noble D. Larner and after the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Secretary Wallace Donald McLean the report of the Flag Committee was called for. Gen. Thomas M. Vincent, U. S. A., the chairman, reported that the committee had communicated with the Governors of all the States and the mayors of many cities regarding the observation of June 14 as Flag Day. From many of the correspondents replies had been received favorable to the project announced. General Vincent also reported that after due consideration his associates had decided that it would be greatly to the advantage of the organization to present to each of the school children of the District a small flag, thus reminding them of the anniversary it is proposed to celebrate. The report was adopted.

President Larner then announced that it had been intended to celebrate the 19th of April by placing a commemorative tablet on the tomb of George Clinton, a Lexington patriot, in Congressional Cemetery. This was to be done in conjunction with the New York State Chapter. The New York representatives were unable to take part in the affair at this season of the year, however, and the exercises were postponed until next December, when a much more elaborate programme will be arranged, Senator Depew and Vice President Roosevelt having promised to deliver addresses. A proposition was then made by Dr. J. W. Bayne to urge upon Congress and the Commissioners the necessity for more stringent regulations regarding the desecration of the flag.

During the debate that followed Gen. John C. Breckinridge, U. S. A., stated that most of the States in the Union had made it a serious offence to use the national emblem for unworthy purposes. Many of the members, however, did not feel that the matter had been before the organization for a length of time sufficient to allow the consideration that such an important subject demanded, and it was moved that the subject be set aside for future discussion and thorough consideration.

At the conclusion of the regular order of business President Larner introduced Henry E. Davis, the orator of the evening. Mr. Davis said that in reading and re-reading the history of the Revolutionary war he was impressed by the importance of the task the small colony had taken upon itself.

"The expression that we stand on the brink of a new century has already become hackneyed," the speaker said. "Looking at the great achievements in art, science, literature and mechanics that have revolutionized the world during the last fifty years we wonder what has caused it all. To my mind we find that at the bottom of this great improvement is thought—continuous thought. But what of that period when the Colonies of America had just freed themselves from monarchial rule, when the men of genius in Europe were trying to find a cause for the political revolution of feeling; when France was in the throes of a mighty uprising; what was the thing that ruled men and nations? Action.

"Lying deeper than thought, greater than the action itself, was the feeling that spurred men to do deeds that made the world's forgetters with their fame! As Tennyson so eloquently expresses it: 'The heart was touched.' Thus it was at Lexington, at Concord Bridge. When Paul Revere made that momentous journey through the country from Boston to Concord and Lexington, 'the fate of a nation rode that night.' Did the farmers consider the right or wrong of the proposition made to them and consult in their calmer moments as to the way in which they should act. No! There was something deeper and more powerful than thought. Action inspired the patriots that fired the shot which went round the world.

"It was that inexplicable thing that touches the heart, that reaches the soul, and impels men, for the time being, to forget everything and march to a common defence."

In a brilliant peroration the speaker mentioned the fact that within a stone's throw of the place in which he was speaking, in the tower of the Unitarian Church, corner of Fourteenth and L Streets, rested a bell which had been first hung in the building in which is now held the sessions of the Police Court.

"Many years ago it was the home of the Unitarian congregation of the District. This bell, when molded, was named Paul Revere, in honor of the patriot of Lexington. When John Brown was executed this bell was the only one in the South that was sounded. All through the day the solemn tones echoed throughout the city. It seemed a fitting sequence to the words of Brown—'Prepare for action.' Hanging on the dividing line between the North and the South, the Paul Revere bell sounded a note of warning."

At the conclusion of Mr. Davis' speech a quartette including Jacob Scharf, George Scharf, William A. Domer, and Louis Weaver sang several selections which were warmly applauded. J. P. Earnest then proposed that a vote of thanks be given Mr. Davis and the members of the quartette. The motion was unanimously adopted, after which the members of the order and their guests retired to the supper room, where a buffet lunch was served. Among those present were:

ENGLAND'S NATIONAL DEBT.

The Reduction Interrupted by the South African War.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The London correspondent of the "Evening Post" has this to say regarding the progress of England's debt:

"With the new British Government loan of probably £50,000,000 near at hand, it will be interesting to recall the past history of the British debt. In September, 1815, when peace was signed at Paris after Waterloo, the debt of Great Britain amounted to £900,456,845, and was certainly the largest debt owed by one nation at that time. No other country has ever shown such huge indebtedness except France, the funded debt of which now exceeds 1,000 millions. But in the case of France it must be remembered that a certain proportion represents outlays for the development of the railway system, and which in time will bring some relief to its treasury.

"Undaunted by the magnitude of the amount owed, British Parliaments set themselves to work, after the Peace of Paris, to bring about a reduction. By persistent efforts in this direction they paid off in the succeeding eighty-four years more debt than any other country in the world excepting the United States. In that period the debt redemption amounted to about £274,000,000 sterling, and this was effected in spite of £20,000,000 being raised in 1835-6 for compensating owners of slaves in the colonies, £11,000,000 in 1848 for the Irish famine, and £39,500,000 in 1855-7 for the Crimean war.

"The progress of debt reduction, except by these relatively slight interruptions, was not arrested until the war with the South African Republics broke out. Since that event issues of debt by the British Government have been numerous and considerable in amount, raising the aggregate, funded and unfunded, to by far the largest total since 1888. Briefly summarized, the result of these operations may be set forth as follows:

National war loan	£30,000,000
Exchequer bonds	24,000,000
Treasury bills	13,000,000
Floating debt	6,750,000
Total	£73,750,000

"Of these issues, the most important is the national war loan, which was offered for subscription at 98½ per cent in March, 1900, and the stock of which is not redeemable until 1910. Of the Exchequer bonds ten millions are redeemable in 1903, and fourteen millions in 1905. In reference to these issues it may be remembered that of the ten millions maturing in 1903, and which were offered last August, the United States took one-half, by arrangement with the Chancellor of the Exchequer. This course of procedure was very unusual on the part of the British Ministry, and so much criticism has centred round the operation that it is doubtful if it will be repeated.

"The Treasury bills are all for short dates, ranging from three to twelve months, but the last few renewals have been for the longer of these periods. The floating debt consists of sums borrowed from the Bank of England, the Bank of Ireland, and various Government departments, such as the National Debt Commissioners and the savings bank authorities. Adding these recent debt creations to the amount previously outstanding, we get a total present debt of the United Kingdom of 708 millions, or more than double that of the United States. The outlay in connection with the war has not been wholly covered by these operations, and a further large sum will certainly have to be raised within a short time.

THE POLICE MYSTIFIED.

An Unconscious Man, Bruised and Scalded, Found in a Freight Car.

The condition of Frank Robinson, who was found lying in an empty freight car at the Anacostia yards early yesterday morning by Policeman Branson, of the sub-station, and who was removed to the Washington Asylum Hospital suffering from badly scalded legs and a bruised and cut head, was reported as little changed last night. After recovering consciousness during the afternoon Robinson was able to give the surgeons his name, although he was unable to state how he received his injuries. He claims to be a mechanic by trade and says his home is in Fall River, Mass. He again became unconscious last night.

How Robinson's legs were scalded puzzles the police, as there is no hot water within a mile of the place where he was found. Robinson is about thirty-five years of age, and although his clothes were somewhat torn, as though he had been in a scuffle, he was well dressed. He cannot recall anything that happened to him, and was unable to tell what he was doing in the car.

The vicinity where Robinson was found is frequently infested with tramps, who, fearing arrest, will not cross the Anacostia bridge, and make the woods their headquarters until they can catch an outgoing freight. It is more than likely, according to the police version of the affair, that Robinson was a victim of tramps.

AN ART STUDENT MISSING.

A Massachusetts Girl Thought To Have Committed Suicide.

BOSTON, April 19.—Lila Caldwell, twenty years old and prepossessing, an enthusiastic art student, is thought by her friends to have committed suicide while despondent. Miss Caldwell left her home in Medford last Monday morning, and absolutely no trace of her can now be discovered.

Miss Caldwell came to Boston two years ago to gain an art education. She was penniless. Her struggles for a living were of the hardest. At one time she swept and cleaned the Grundman studios in return for a small room in which she could sleep and get her own meals. She made friends, and among them was the family of J. S. Wyckoff, of Medford, who gave her a home and every opportunity to continue her studies. Miss Caldwell is small and slight, of dark complexion and reserved in her manner.

TO IMPROVE TENLEYTOWN

The Northwest Citizens' Association Discusses Plans.

Regular Meeting Poorly Attended—Resolutions to the District Commissioners—Manufactories Advocated—A Plea for Good Streets.

The monthly meeting of the Northwest Citizens' Suburban Association was held last night in Templars' Hall, Tenleytown, with C. C. Lancaster, President of the association, presiding and John W. Chappell acting as secretary. Although but few of the members attended the meeting, owing to the inclemency of the weather, resolutions of great importance to the citizens of Tenleytown and that vicinity were introduced and adopted.

The first resolution was introduced by Louis P. Shoemaker, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the association, asking that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be called upon by a committee from the association and requested to notify the presiding officer of the association, before acting upon any complaints or grievances of a general public character over which the association exercises its influence. The resolution in conclusion says:

"This request is made for the purpose of ascertaining the sentiment of our people, and also to assist the Commissioners in the performance of their duties." The resolution was adopted unanimously.

Mr. Shoemaker, acting in the capacity of Chairman of the Executive Committee, also introduced a resolution, which was later adopted, asking that the efforts of all members of the Northwest Citizens' Association be exercised to encourage the establishment of manufacturing and business enterprises in certain portions of the District of Columbia, and that public sentiment, so far as possible, be invoked to accomplish this result. The resolution, in part, is as follows:

"We firmly believe that manufacturing and business undertakings should be encouraged in the District, not only to attract business men, capital, and enterprise, but to increase our population, furnish adequate employment for our young folks who are annually graduating from the public schools, and encourage others to reside here. Also to utilize considerable territory along our river front in South and East Washington, along the railroad lines; to cause the construction of buildings and thereby greatly augment our taxable values and annual revenues, and by such action the city of Washington, in our opinion, would become a larger and more important city in every respect."

Another resolution presented by Mr. Shoemaker asked the members of the association to do all in their power to remind Congress of the fact that the extension of streets in the northwest section of the city, especially in the vicinity of Rock Creek and the Zoological Park, is a great necessity. The resolution was adopted and it was ordered by the president of the association that a copy of the same be forwarded to the Commissioners of the District.

J. A. Finch presented a paper setting forth the bad condition of the roads in the vicinity of Tenleytown. It was as follows:

Whereas the county roads in the northwest section of this District are usually, and in many cases, are the only means of travel for the citizens of this section, as well as the general public, and though necessity requires that they should be kept in the best condition, many of them have been wholly neglected, scarcely a dollar having been expended upon them by the District authorities during the present year.

Be it resolved, now, That the Northwest Citizens' Association earnestly appeal to the Commissioners to have sufficient public funds set aside and expended without further delay in putting these roads in first-class condition, making them acceptable to the many property owners and a pleasure to the general public.

This resolution, which was by far the most important introduced during the association's session, was immediately adopted, and there is no doubt that in a short time some action will be taken by the Commissioners. During the downpour of rain last night the roads were in such condition that it was hardly possible for a pedestrian to walk, much less drive a horse over them. A copy of the resolution introduced by Mr. Finch will be sent to the Commissioners at once.

Mr. Hooper read a resolution in regard to the issuance of a pamphlet containing pictures of many beautiful houses in the northwest section of the city, by the circulation of which it is hoped that the population in and about Tenleytown can be increased. Copies of the book will also be placed in the District room at the Pan-American Exposition.

To add in the same direction, C. C. Lancaster, President of the association, introduced a resolution asking the members of the association to show their appreciation of the work of the "Suburban Citizen," a local newspaper, which recently printed considerable literature in its columns in regard to Tenleytown real estate, accompanying the same with pictures. The appreciation, he said, could be shown by securing 2,000 copies of the paper, for distribution through the States. The cost of the papers to the association, he said, would be $30. Mr. Lancaster's resolution was adopted.

The meeting was brought to a close by the reading by Mr. Lancaster of a paper addressed to Commissioner Macfarland, by W. L. Crounse, Chairman of the Committee on Telephones, asking the Commissioner to grant the Bell Telephone Company the right to extend its wires through to Tenleytown, in order to establish an exchange station at that point. No action upon the matter was taken by the association.

FOR PORTO RICO'S BENEFIT.

Governor Allen Urges That the Isl. and Receive the Import Duties.

SAN JUAN, P. R., April 19.—It is learned here that Governor Allen is urging President McKinley, in case of Porto Rican tariffs being abolished, to construe the Foraker law so that foreign import duties will be paid into the Porto Rican treasury instead of the Treasury of the United States.

The revenue from foreign imports comprise four-fifths of the total customs receipts. The duties collected during March amounted to $87,758, of which $19,859 was collected on imports from the United States.

NEWS FROM ALEXANDRIA.

ALEXANDRIA, April 19.—The first legal proceedings in the affair between Mayor George L. Simpson and the Board of Police Commissioners were enacted today, when Corporation Attorney Gardner L. Boothe rendered his legal opinion in the three salient questions which have caused the mayor and commissioners to lock horns. The following were the questions: Whether the mayor was empowered to detail an officer to collect licenses; whether the commissioners had authority to set aside the sentence of the mayor on an officer found guilty of an offence, review the case, and pass their own judgment upon it; and if the mayor has power to appoint a man of his own selection to be stationkeeper.

In the opinion of Mr. Boothe the mayor has a right to detail a policeman to collect licenses, and he quotes the last section of the ordinances of the city council imposing taxes on persons, etc., which especially provide for it. In reply to the second question Mr. Boothe is of the opinion that the commissioners have power to reopen such cases, and he quotes Judge James Keith's opinion when the same question was submitted to him by the counsel of a former mayor. His reply to the last query, which is considered the most important of all, is as follows:

"In reply to this question I would say that the mayor is the chief executive officer of the city, and that it is his duty to see that the laws of the State and the ordinances of the city are faithfully executed; hence, although the board of police commissioners has power, under the city charter, to prescribe rules and regulations for the police force, these rules and regulations must not be such as will prevent or hinder the proper enforcement of the State or city laws, and it would, of course, be against the letter and the spirit of the law to place an officer at the stationhouse who would be incapable of attending to the duties of such a position. Subject to this qualification, however, I am of the opinion that the board of police commissioners has power to prescribe rules for the placing of men at the stationhouse."

The case is now in the hands of Mayor Simpson's attorney, and he will await an opinion in the matter before announcing his determination.

Miss Esther S. Dempsey, daughter of P. J. Dempsey, died suddenly at 1 o'clock this morning, at the residence of her parents, 217 South Fairfax Street. Deceased had been in ill health for some time. MR. BRICE TO APPEAL.

The New York Councilman Trying to Escape Jail.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Stewart Miley Brice, the councilman, has paid the fine of $473 that was imposed on him for refusing to obey a mandamus ordering him to vote for the Hall of Records bond issue in 1899, but he does not want to spend the ten days in jail that Justice Scott has decreed he must, in order to be thoroughly punished for his action.

Today his counsel made application to Justice Scott for a reargument of the case, basing the request on certain papers that were handed up. The justice, after considering the papers, refused to grant the reargument.

This leaves Mr. Brice technically committed to the Ludlow Street jail, but the justice will grant an appeal to the Appellate Division, which will act as stay, and Mr. Brice may never be called on to serve his sentence.

THE MOONSHINER A WOMAN.

A Surprising Discovery by New York Revenue Officials.

NEW YORK, April 19.—On the third floor of a dirty, ramshackle tenement in the East Side today the internal revenue officers of this district discovered a moonshine still owned and run by a woman. She had six children and the whole place showed traces of such abject poverty that Commissioner Shields and Col. Frank G. Thompson, the head agent of the revenue service, decided that it would be unjust to hold the woman in custody and she was released on her promise to appear before the Commissioner tomorrow morning.

The still was at 62 Division Street. Just why Colonel Thompson had reason to believe that it was there he is not willing to tell, but he went to the place this afternoon with two of his deputies and, smashing in a door, found the whole apparatus. There were six fifty-gallon hogsheads full of sugar and under the bed in the corner of the room were two complete copper stills and all their attachments. They were capable of an extreme production of 100 gallons at a distillation. The whisky sells ordinarily at $1.40 a gallon.

There was no one in the apartment when the officers broke in, but after two hours a prepossessing woman about forty years old entered. She had a brown shawl over her head and a bright red waist, and regarded the strangers in her home with mingled indignation and fear.

"What's the matter?" she asked the janitor in German.

"You ought to know," he replied.

The woman stepped back out of the door and closed it.

"Who was that woman?" asked Colonel Thompson.

"That woman," repeated the janitor, grinning; "why, she's the woman you're after."

Colonel Thompson ran out into the hall, but the woman was nowhere in sight. He ran into Division Street and saw a woman in a brown shawl running toward the river. He caught her in the middle of the block. When she felt his hand on her shoulder, she stopped short and glared at him:

"Now you have me," she said, "what will you do?"

Colonel Thompson led her back to the tenement. She told him frankly there that the still was hers, and said very simply that she ran it to support herself and her six children. She was Annie Rappaport, a widow, she said. She had just one loaf of bread and a piece of meat in the house.

The woman said she got the still and the apparatus from two cousins of hers who had a still in Brooklyn for a year or more and left it to her when they went abroad last March.

The woman promised Commissioner Shields to come before him tomorrow after she had arranged for the care of her children.
