LITTLE FELLOWS IN BIG BATTLE

ATTELL IS MADE FAVORITE

Batting to a Hot Win—Bell Has Walkup Like home—Horne and Schrock.

By CHIP.

CHICAGO.—For the last 14 days, featherweight champion Burns, who will defend his title July 2 at the White City Park, has been having an especially difficult time in securing exhibitions, as most managers are afraid to book him for fear of losing money. But the answer to the problem of getting opponents for Burns is coming from Burns himself. This is an invention of his manager, Frank Schrock, who is quite clever in this line of work. Schrock is quite sincere when he says that he has been able to get better opponents for Burns, not only because of the 15,000 fans who go to see Burns’ fights, but also because of the fact that he doesn’t have to pay them any money. The manager says that he has been able to get quite a few opponents in this way, and that they have all been very happy with the results.

Responsibilities As Manager Seriously Affect Usefulness As Player.

WORRIES ABOUT THE TEAM

Failing Too Much Attention to the Other Men Causes Him to Lose Flair.

By THOMAS E. RIECE.

One of the most important questions that face the baseball manager today is the one which deals with the attention that the manager should give to his players. There is a general feeling among managers that they should give too much attention to their players, and that this is causing the team to lose its flair. This is a mistake, as it is the manager’s job to give the players the best possible chance to succeed, and this can only be done by giving them too much attention.
