From the New York Mirror. SONG OF THE FORGE.

We give below the "Song of the Forge," a spirited and powerful poem. Even compared with Schiller's famous "Song of the Bell," it remains unsurpassed. Many years ago it went the round of the papers, starting, we believe, from Blackwood's Magazine. It then took a Rip Van Winkle's nap, preserved, however, in the admiring memories of the discriminating, till, after circumnavigating the globe, it lately reappeared in the Calcutta Magazine, whence it was copied, as original, by some American journals of more taste than reading. We regret it, to preserve it in our paper, "at the long day," as we hope O'Connell, and admit too, the masterly variation of the tone, in the general description of the future course of the food-giving plough, in the dream of the mysterious wanderings of the anvil's chain, and in the soul-stirring anticipations of the flanging of the sword.

Clang, clang! the massive anvils ring— Clang, clang! a hundred hammers swing; Like the thunder-rattle of a troop's sky The mighty blows still multiply; Clang, clang! Say, brothers of the dusky forge, What are your strong arms forging now? Clang, clang—two forge the counter now— The counter of the kindly plough; Sweet Mary, mother, bless our toil; May thy broad furrow still unfold; To genial rains, to sun and wind, The most benignant soil.

Clang, clang—our counter's course shall be As many a sweet and sheltered lease; By many a streamlet's silver tide, Amidst the song of the morning birds, Amidst the low of the sauntering herds, Amidst soft breezes which do stray Through woodland hedges and sweet May, Along the green hill's side.

When regal autumn's bounteous hand With wide-aped glory clothes the land; When to the valleys, from the brow Of each resplendent slope, is rolled A ruddy sea of living gold, We bless—we bless the Plowman.

Clang, clang—again, my mates, what glows Beneath the hammers' potent blows? Clank, clank—we forge the GIANT CHAIN Which bears the gallant vessel's strain, 'Midst stormy winds and adverse tides; Secured by this, the good ship braves The rocky roadstead, and the waves Which thunder on her sides.

Anxious no more, the merchant sees The mist drive dark before the breeze, The storm-cloud on the hill; Calmly he rests, though far away In botcherous climes his vessel lay, Reliant on our skill.

Say, on what sand these links shall sleep, Fathoms beneath the solemn deep? By Africa's pestiferous shore— By many a leaguer, lone and hoar— By many a paucity western tale, By many a spring and perpetual smile— By stormy Labrador? Say, shall they feel the vessel reel, When to the battery's deadly peal The crashing broadside makes reply? Or else, as at the glorious Nile, Hold grappling ships, that strike the white For death or victory.

Harrah! Cling—clang! once more, what glows, Dark brothers of the forge, beneath The iron tongs of your blows, The furnace's red breath? Clang, clang—a burning torrent, clear And brilliant, of bright sparks, is poured Around and up in the dusky air, As our hammers forge the sword.

The sword—a name of dread; yet when Upon the freeman's thigh 'tis bound, While for his altar and his hearth, He waits for the land that gave him birth, The war-drum rolls, the trumpets sound, How sacred is it then!

Whenever for the truth and right I battle in the van of fight; Whether in some wild mountain pass, Or on some sterile plain and stern, As Marston or a Bannockburn; Or mid Swiss crags and bursting rills, The Swiss Alps, gray Tyrol's hills; Or, as when sunk the Armada's pride, It gleams above the stormy tide; Still, still, whenever the battle word Is Liberty—when men do stand For justice and their native land— Then Heaven bless the sword.

STEPHEN A. DOUGLASS'S WILL.

Know all men by these presents, That I, Stephen A. Douglas, of the city of Chicago and State of Illinois, in view of the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death, at such time as an all-wise Providence shall ordain, do hereby declare and subscribe the following as my will, which I desire all persons to respect after my death, to wit: It is my will that my debts shall be paid out of any moneys which I may have, and that so much of my property, real and personal, and of the discretion of my executors, shall be sold, as shall be necessary to pay all my debts.

It is also my will that, after my said debts shall be paid, all the residue of my property, personal and real, shall be divided by my executors into two equal parts, and that one part thereof shall belong to my two children, Robert M. Douglas and Stephen A. Douglas, and that the other part thereof—that is to say, one-half of all my property, real and personal, and of all moneys or debts due me—shall belong to, and is hereby declared to belong to, my dear and beloved wife, Adele Cutts Douglas.

It is also my will and positive direction that my said wife shall be, and she is hereby declared to be, the sole guardian of my said children, and that she shall have the possession, control, and education of them until they shall respectively arrive at the age of twenty-one years, knowing her to be the best person in the world to perform this sacred trust.

By order of the Secretary of War: THOS. A. SCOTT, General Manager. May 16—17

U. S. MILITARY ROUTE—SPECIAL NOTICE.

On SUNDAY the trains will leave the Depot at 7.10 A. M., and 2.30 P. M. for Philadelphia and New York. Trains will arrive at 6.10 A. M. and 5.45 P. M. THOMAS A. SCOTT, General Manager. May 21

PATENTED NOVEMBER 1, 1859.

ANDREW JACKSON DONELSON.—This gentleman, the candidate of the American party for the Vice Presidency in 1856, has joined the disunion party, and avowed his determination to draw, in the disunion cause, the sword bequeathed to him by that glorious old patriot, Gen. Jackson.

We chance to have before us, says an exchange, at this moment, a copy of Gen. Jackson's will, and we copy from it this paragraph: "Seventhly, I bequest to my well-beloved Andrew J. Donelson, son of Samuel Donelson, deceased, the elegant sword presented to me by the State of Tennessee, with this injunction, that he fail not to use it, when necessary, in support and protection of our glorious Union, and for the protection of the constitutional rights of our beloved country, should they be assailed by foreign enemies or domestic traitors."

An Irishman, addicted to telling queer stories, said he saw a man beheaded, with his hands tied behind him, who directly picked up his head and put it on his shoulders in the right place. "Ha, ha, ha!" said a bystander, "how could he pick up his head when his hands were tied behind him?" "And sure, what a purty fool you are!" said Pat; "and couldn't he pick it up with his teeth? To ouid Mick with your botheration!"

AN ADDITION TO THE CATHEDRAL.—A young miss, of Belfast, Me., whose acquisitions are rather beyond her four summers, was, a few days since, repeating the catechism at her mother's knee. In response to the question, "What did God create?" she said, "The earth, the sun, the moon, the stars—and stripes."

A man writing from Pensacola to one of the Southern papers, says: "Well, Grealey, you've got to fight now! By the red dogs of war, you have! Between your head and heaven no more hair grows!" "No more hair" is good. Grealey is bald as a grindstone.

Though men give you their advice gratis, you will often be cheated if you take it.

LANDLORD'S SALE.

By virtue of a warrant of distress, issued at the suit of Moore and Cissel, agents for E. C. Adams, against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of H. S. Bates, to me directed, I have seized and taken in distress all the estate, right, title, interest, property, claim, and demand at law and in equity of the said H. Straus, in and to all the stock of ready-made clothing contained in a first-class clothing, to wit: Coats, vests, pants, hats, caps, shirts, hosiery, cravats, umbrellas, gloves, shawls, shawls, counters, together with a large quantity of ready-made clothing too numerous to particularize: I hereby give notice that on Thursday morning, the 20th instant, at 10 o'clock A. M., I will offer for sale the said property, so seized and taken in distress, by public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, on the premises, on Seventh Street, No. 385, between H and I streets.

The flag will designate the place. JOSEPH F. KELLEY, Bailiff. Washington, D. C., June 18, 1861. June 19

THE UNION WILL STAND, NO MATTER WHO'S FRIEND!

CONSEQUENTLY, I shall remain in Washington, and continue to pursue my occupation of HOUSE, SIGN, and ORNAMENTAL PAINTING. Guiding in all its branches. Old Glazing promptly attended to. Painting and Ornamenting Cottage Furniture in the best style. I also call attention to the Painting of Roofs and Brick Walls.

All of the above I will do as cheap as the cheapest. I therefore solicit the patronage of my friends and fellow citizens of the District. Punctuality strictly observed, and work done in the best manner.

It is also my will that, after my said debts shall be paid, all the residue of my property, personal and real, shall be divided by my executors into two equal parts, and that one part thereof shall belong to my two children, Robert M. Douglas and Stephen A. Douglas, and that the other part thereof—that is to say, one-half of all my property, real and personal, and of all moneys or debts due me—shall belong to, and is hereby declared to belong to, my dear and beloved wife, Adele Cutts Douglas.
