

BASEBALL VETS WITH CAUCUS FOR FAVOR

Democrats Fear That Quorum Will Dwindle Today When Two Teams Start.

Unless the lure of the baseball park causes too much of an exodus from the chamber and breaks a quorum, the House Democrats will continue their wrangling this afternoon over the Underwood tariff bill.

The caucus reconvened at 1:30 o'clock. But Chairman Palmer was by no means confident that the party convulse could continue until 6 o'clock, as planned. In fact, the caucus will be adjourned at 4 o'clock, and the House Democratic leaders are aware that the baseball season opens today, and an adjournment will be taken if it is impossible to keep a quorum at the Capitol.

Prior to convening of the caucus today the tactics and the names of players of baseball were compared, and it was estimated that the batting average of the tariff is .100 and of the sport at the ball park .342.

Members of the Ohio delegation before going to the caucus this afternoon held a caucus in the office of Congressman Sherwood and tried to reach an understanding on the subject of the wool bill.

Badly Split.

The Democrats of the delegation are badly split, and no concerted plan of action was mapped out. Several members are willing to stand by the free wool section of the Underwood bill and others want to fight for at least a 15 per cent duty. It is improbable that the delegation can present a solid front in caucus.

Congressman Broussard of Louisiana announced today that he would offer in caucus, when the sugar schedule is reached, an amendment providing for a 25 per cent reduction in the present rates on sugar, but eliminating the Underwood proviso that sugar shall be free after three years. The Louisiana members have practically decided to make the 25 per cent duty on the sugar tariff bill, but they will fight to the end against the slogan for free sugar after three years.

Congressman Broussard or some other member from Louisiana or from South Carolina will also offer an amendment for a reduction of only 25 per cent of the duty on rice. In the Underwood bill, rice suffered a 50 per cent cut. It is not anticipated, however, that efforts to change these rates will be successful.

The caucus today resumed consideration of the second schedule in the bill, schedule B. The first schedule, referring to chemical duties, was dropped out amendment by the caucus yesterday afternoon. Vanilla beans were passed over at the request of Congressman Raker.

Numerous amendments were offered and defeated, and it is believed that the Underwood bill, despite opposition here and there, will stand the test in the caucus and will go the House just as it was drawn.

Congressman Underwood, the majority leader, displayed his indignation upon three occasions yesterday, or rather the caucus demonstrated that it is for Underwood and his program. First, the caucus approved the selections of the Ways and Means Committee for the several committees which are to be appointed to conduct the actual routine business of the House.

Again Victor.

Again, Mr. Underwood was triumphant when he suggested that the sense of the caucus be tested on the proposition that all the committees ought to be appointed by the majority. The proposition and before the tariff bill is completed, Congressman Saunders, of Virginia, offered a resolution to appoint standing committees at this time and later withdrew it when it became apparent that the caucus is for the Ways and Means Committee in its program of delay. The talk of the holding of a "club" over the rank and file diminished.

Congressman Thompson of Oklahoma who raised a rumpus in caucus Tuesday last, was again in the minority. The Ways and Means Committee had too much work and too much power. He thought a separate committee on tariff duties should be named. Mr. Underwood invited the Oklahoma man to make a motion to that effect in order to ascertain how the caucus felt. Mr. Thompson decided he would not.

Legislative representatives—sometimes called "lobbyists"—of great manufacturing interests swarmed about the House chamber today, when the Democrats resumed their tariff caucus. Continuing their fight for higher duties on many articles, slashed in the Underwood bill, the manufacturers' representatives held continual low-toned conferences with Congressmen in the Capitol corridors.

Resume Conference.

With the Underwood bill so far impervious to assault, the Democrats met this afternoon to resume consideration in secret caucus of the tentative bill, paragraph by paragraph.

Pittsburgh plate glass manufacturers were represented in force today at the House, protesting against the tariff cuts on their rough and polished products. New Jersey glass and earthenware manufacturers also were present, pleading for most tariff protection.

The House postoffice was inundated with mail to Congressmen, mostly appeals in connection with tariff duties.

Congressmen opposing the sugar tariff proposed by the House managers are said to be organizing a letter-writing campaign of protest among Southern cane growers. They are supporting the amendment to the Underwood bill proposed by Congressman Broussard of Louisiana. He proposes a reduction of about 25 per cent on the tariff on Louisiana gradually dwindling to 5 per cent by 1915.

Efforts to amend the Underwood bill in caucus have failed so far. The nearest approach was that of Mr. Webb of North Carolina, to put castor oil on the free list. Webb said castor oil upon "the poor man's greatest medicine." His amendment was defeated, however.

Senate Finance Body

Has First Meeting to Consider Tariff Bill

The Senate Finance Committee held its first meeting today to consider the details of the tariff bill. The committee met at 11 o'clock in the old rooms of the Finance Committee. The bill was read and prolonged its session until about 1:30. The chemical schedule was under discussion and various details with respect to this schedule were talked over.

Palmer Favors Change

In Banking Lien Law

An amendment extending to national banks the privilege of loaning money on real estate security, was introduced into the House today by Congressman Mitchell of Pennsylvania. Palmer said he would not press the amendment to the existing national banking laws unless the tariff was discussed, but that any national banking legislation which was effected, would contain his amendment.
