WASHINGiON LEADERS' HOBBIES VARIED AND NOVEL

Laddie Boy, White House Pet, Interviewed

By THEODORE TILLER

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 10 - Laddie Boy, the white house pet, has been interviewed at the White House by Secretary Denby and other officials.

Laddie Boy is a cherished pet of the President and is often seen accompanying the President on his daily walks.

The President said, "Laddie Boy is the most popular pet in the White House. He is always welcome and makes everyone happy."

Laddie Boy is a small dog, white in color, with a friendly appearance. He is often seen playing with children and adults in the White House.

The President added, "Laddie Boy is not only a pet, but also a symbol of the White House. He represents the warmth and friendliness of our government."

Laddie Boy is kept in the White House, where he is well taken care of by the staff. He is a popular pet among the staff, and is often seen accompanying them on their daily activities.

Laddie Boy's favorite activity is playing fetch with his master, the President. He is also known for his love of tennis, and can often be seen playing with a tennis ball at the White House.

Laddie Boy is a symbol of the American people, and is loved by everyone who sees him. He is a true ambassador for the White House and the United States.