

ROY ROGERS CALLS TURNS FOR RODEO SPLASH PARTY

NE good television turn deserves another try. That's why Roy Rogers' underwater rodeo, a highly diverting and successful show of last season, will be done again this Sunday night on NBC.

"The Second Annual Aquarodeo," with Roy and Dale Evans, his wife, as hosts and narrators, is not a repeat.

It is a new show done more ambitiously than the first, with improved techniques in underwater photography offering more exciting closeups of the skin-diving cowboys in action.

Originating at "Marine-land of the Pacific," the full-hour show in color will present the underwater cowboys roping, riding and wrestling sharks, sea turtles and whales. Trained porpoises and seals will provide the comedy relief for an unusual presentation.

What about Roy's famous horse, Trigger?

He'll be tethered out of camera range. No flippers for him. It's not in his contract.
