

NO BURDEN PUT ON RIGGS BANK, SAYS WILLIAMS

Replies to Charge He Required Bank to Do Unnecessary Work.

CHALLENGES M'FADDEN

Seeks to Have Representative Summoned by Senate Committee.

Bookkeeping methods of its own were responsible for the difficulty experienced by the Riggs National Bank in carrying out the instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury, John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, told the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency yesterday.

Mr. Williams was charged by Frank J. Hogan, attorney for Riggs Bank, with having burdened the bank with the task of compiling unnecessary and expensive statistics.

The information requested was necessary in carrying out certain plans of the Treasury Department," Williams declared, "and was required of National banks in several of the larger cities of the United States."

Answers Categorical. Warned that he might be held guilty of any charge left undenied, Williams went categorically into the various charges brought against him by Hogan, submitting a voluminous mass of affidavits, reports of bank examiners and excerpts from the testimony submitted during the suit brought by the Riggs Bank against the Treasury Department.

The Comptroller asked Senator McLean, chairman of the committee, to summon Representative McFadden to appear before the committee to repeat charges against the Comptroller made on the floor of the House.

Senator McLean said he would notify McFadden the hearing would be held Monday or Tuesday but declined to summon him to appear.

Denies Showing Favoritism. With an emphatic denial of having favored the Commercial National Bank because of his friendship with its former vice-president, Comptroller Williams completed his response to Hogan's charges.

Charges of using his influence to prejudice various government officials against officers of the Riggs Bank, made by J. J. Darlington, of the Riggs Bank, were discussed and denied by the Comptroller.

Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney, formerly counsel for the Secretary of the Treasury, will appear tomorrow morning's session of the committee.

At an earlier session, Hogan said Untermyer, in his capacity as counsel for Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams, had tried to renege the charter of Riggs Bank if the suit against the secretary would be dropped and certain officers would be reinstated.

Williams denied having authorized such a proposition.

HAYWOOD IS FREED ON $15,000 BAIL BOND

Chicago, July 26.—Orders for the release of W. D. (Big Bill) Haywood, I. W. W. leader, from Fort Leavenworth prison, were issued here today by the clerk of the circuit court of appeals, following approval of bonds offered.

Haywood obtained his release, pending hearing of arguments for a new trial. A total of $15,000 worth of property and Liberty Bonds were scheduled to cover his bond of $15,000. Twenty-seven thousand five hundred dollars were furnished by William Gross, Lloyd, Montgomery, Chicago Socialist.

CHARGE ICE DEALER HERE HOARDS STOCK AWAITING PRICE RISE

Heurich Ice Company, stated yesterday that no ice famine of alarming proportions, threatens this city.

The lack of ice will be felt greatly in the Atlantic and New England States," Mr. Ganzwisch said, "for they depend largely on natural ice. Very little natural ice comes into Washington, manufacturers meeting all needs with their product."

"The demand during the summer of course, is greater than usual, and delivery facilities may be, to a degree, inadequate. Other than that, Washington, by conservation of ice, has nothing to fear."

Committee on Conservation. A committee on conservation was appointed by the District Commissioners yesterday morning, following a conference with Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer. The members are: Dr. Fowler, chairman; W. B. Westlake, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations; Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employees; S. A. Kimberly, manager of the American Ice Company, and R. H. Ganzwisch, manager of the Heurich Ice Company.

The first step taken in ice conservation was the rationing of users of large amounts of ice to 15 per cent of their customary supply. Not more than twenty-five pounds to a customer will be sold at ice platforms this morning, owing to a rule made yesterday.

"The manufacture of ice cream will not be affected perceptibly, officials of the Chapin-Sacks Company say. Commissioner Brownlow declared that householders would be given first consideration in the matter of ice, but emphasized the need of conservation.

"Citizens should employ all means at their command to save ice," he said. "The strictest economy absolutely will be required to carry the city safely through the remainder of the hot season."

Urges Bonds to Build Tunnel. New Brunswick, N. J., July 26.—State Comptroller Newton A. K. Bugbee, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, urged here today that the proposed New York-New Jersey tunnel be financed by a bond issue.

Pity the Poor Judges Who Had to Pick The Prettiest of These Water Nymphs

Here are some of the fair participants in the costume and beauty contest at the Tidal Basin Bathing Beach yesterday.

On the left are a number of the girls running to their places in line. Below are the winners in the contest. From left to right: Miss Dorothy Buckley, honorably mentioned; Mrs. Audrey O'Connor, winner of loving cup for beauty; Miss Muriel Gibbs, honorably mentioned, and Mrs. Grace Fleishman, winner of loving cup for costume.

Further below is another view of Miss Buckley in the costume she wore.

D. C. Mermaids in Beauty Contest Draw Big Crowd

Eighty would-be contestants in the costume and beauty contest at the Tidal Basin Bathing Beach yesterday dropped out when they saw the bathing suits worn by some of their sisters.

Honorable mention for beauty was made of Miss Dorothy Buckley, who appeared in a beribboned suit of red, white and blue. Miss Muriel Gibbs, also wearing a tricolored costume, received honorable mention for it.

There were 100 entries in the contest, until most of the girls lost heart, or grew jealous of everything. The rest, garbed in attractive bathing apparel, braved a sweltering sun to parade before the judges and before the greatest crowd in the history of the bathing beach.

It was with difficulty that the bathers walked up and down the stretch of beach before the judges because of the numerous spectators who surged against the line of life-guard, stretched the entire length of the promenade.

A battery of motion picture and "still" cameras was trained on the fair contestants before, during and after the contest. Even when the decisions had been rendered, difficulty was experienced by the camera men, for the spectators, getting beyond control of the guards, rushed forward to congratulate or condole with the contestants.

A battery of motion picture and "still" cameras was trained on the fair contestants before, during and after the contest. Even when the decisions had been rendered, difficulty was experienced by the camera men, for the spectators, getting beyond control of the guards, rushed forward to congratulate or condole with the contestants.

Officials of Contest. L. Gordon Leach and C. W. O'Connor arranged the contest.

The judges were H. K. Bush-Brown, sculptor; Misses Virginia Lee and Dorothy Sawyer, Clifford K. Berryman, artist, and George Julian Zolnay, sculptor.

Tri-colored Costumes. A black and white bathing suit worn by Mrs. Grace Fleishman, 5 Iowa circle northwest, scored prize for the most attractive suit. A silver loving cup was given to Mrs. Fleishman.

London's 2,000 policemen guard more than 4,000 miles of streets and roads and at least 1,250,000 houses and shops.

President certain Senate will ratify pact without change.

The question was raised in committee whether the United States will get any of the money to be paid by Germany in reparation. Lodge was instructed to ask the President whether an agreement for division of the 200,000,000 gold marks to be paid by Germany had been made by the allies. This agreement is provided for in Article 227.

President certain Senate will ratify pact without change.

Chicago, July 26.—John Mahan, pioneer newspaper man, is dead. Mahan was for fifty-one years editor of the Muscatine, Iowa, Journal. During this period he established a record as a fighter for reform.

May Get No Data. After reading the President's letter, Senators said there was no assurance this information would be forthcoming.

Chicago, July 26.—John Mahan, pioneer newspaper man, is dead. Mahan was for fifty-one years editor of the Muscatine, Iowa, Journal. During this period he established a record as a fighter for reform.

After reading the President's letter, Senators said there was no assurance this information would be forthcoming.

Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Colored boys who buried a freight car did not require a police warning. When opened, their bodies proved to be shrouds for the dead. Oh, b-b-b-oy!

Committee members last night explained the reference to Article 227 in the President's letter by saying

Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Colored boys who buried a freight car did not require a police warning. When opened, their bodies proved to be shrouds for the dead. Oh, b-b-b-oy!

Committee members last night explained the reference to Article 227 in the President's letter by saying

Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Colored boys who buried a freight car did not require a police warning. When opened, their bodies proved to be shrouds for the dead. Oh, b-b-b-oy!

Committee members last night explained the reference to Article 227 in the President's letter by saying

Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Colored boys who buried a freight car did not require a police warning. When opened, their bodies proved to be shrouds for the dead. Oh, b-b-b-oy!

Committee members last night explained the reference to Article 227 in the President's letter by saying

Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Colored boys who buried a freight car did not require a police warning. When opened, their bodies proved to be shrouds for the dead. Oh, b-b-b-oy!

Committee members last night explained the reference to Article 227 in the President's letter by saying

Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Colored boys who buried a freight car did not require a police warning. When opened, their bodies proved to be shrouds for the dead. Oh, b-b-b-oy!

Committee members last night explained the reference to Article 227 in the President's letter by saying

Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Colored boys who buried a freight car did not require a police warning. When opened, their bodies proved to be shrouds for the dead. Oh, b-b-b-oy!

London's 2,000 policemen guard more than 4,000 miles of streets and roads and at least 1,250,000 houses and shops.

WILSON DOUBTS YANK CRUELITIES

In Letter to Representative, Wilson Minimizes Charges Before Committee.

Cruelties inflicted on American soldiers in American military prisons in the Paris district which have precipitated a Congressional investigation, are placed as "one or two" by President Wilson in a letter to Representative Dalling.

The President's statement is in direct conflict with statements made by Gen. March, Chief of Staff, last Wednesday before the House subcommittee which is investigating the abuses, in which he admitted that there had been a number of instances in which American soldiers in prison camps in the Paris area had been cruelly mistreated.

Mr. Wilson's letter was written in reply to one addressed to him by Representative Dalling, which read in part:

"I have had called to my attention a newspaper article containing a statement of a worker of the Knights of Columbus, named John W. Kehoe, to the effect that during your stay at Paris, Mrs. Wilson, in visiting Base Hospital No. 57, saw wets on the arms of a patient. The patient, a soldier, is reported to have told Mrs. Wilson that he would not have been in the hospital but for the treatment he had received at La Roquette prison. The article goes on to say that Mrs. Wilson told you of the occurrence and that as a result you had those in charge of the prison brought up on charges and removed."

Representative Dalling asked the President to furnish him with the names and rank of the guilty men so that he could learn from the War Department what punishment had been meted out to them.

Declares Article Inaccurate. The reply of the President read: "The newspaper article to which you refer in your letter to me of July 21 was entirely inaccurate. Mrs. Wilson saw no evidences of violence on the patient whom she met in Base Hospital No. 57, and her inquiries brought out the fact that whereas one of the prisoners by the American army in Paris had been delivered over to them in a very bad condition, the conditions had been rapidly corrected, and such harsh treatment as had been practiced in one or two instances had been promptly checked."

Recalls March Admissions. "I am very much surprised at the last part of the President's reply to my letter of inquiry, particularly in view of the admissions of Gen. March at the hearing before the House subcommittee on Wednesday. It will be recalled that Gen. March submitted official cablegrams, reports and records showing that a condition exists, rivaling that of Siberian prison camps and much worse than conditions which existed in German prisoner of war cages."

"In the farcical trial of Lieut. 'Hard-boiled' Smith alone, over fifty soldiers were summoned to testify as to brutal and inhuman treatment received at the very same prison I wrote the President about and Farm No. 2."

"Whisky Special" Sold. Clarkdale, Miss., July 26.—The "Whisky Special," captured recently on the Mississippi River and sold at auction yesterday, being bought in at $50. About $12,000 of liquor constituted the cargo.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

Never too Old to Be Coquette. Hartford, Conn., July 26.—Girls will be girls. Mrs. Frieda Katz held a birthday party and tried to make out it was only her hundredth. The family gave her away. She is 106.

MORTGAGES CATTLE TO REACH SON'S SICK BED

Hoboken, N. J., July 26.—Mortgaging two horses and a cow to raise money for the expenses of the trip from Texas to Hoboken, Mrs. William Hammond, of Gorman, Texas, arrived today at the bedside of her

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

MORTGAGES CATTLE TO REACH SON'S SICK BED

Hoboken, N. J., July 26.—Mortgaging two horses and a cow to raise money for the expenses of the trip from Texas to Hoboken, Mrs. William Hammond, of Gorman, Texas, arrived today at the bedside of her

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

22-year-old son Ruel, who is critically ill in St. Mary's Hospital. The boy, who is the oldest of eleven children, had telegraphed his mother asking her to come to him as he was afraid he was not going to get well. Nurses and friends at the hospital contributed to a fund to supply the devoted mother with a new dress, hat and shoes to replace the garments she wore on her hurried trip to her son's bedside.

Seventh and Eye Streets House & Herrmann Seventh and Eye Streets Open Until 6 P. M. Daily—Closed All Day Saturday

JUST see what you can save by buying here. We don't have special bargain days—but every day we give you the benefit of reliable qualities. That's what we call SERVICE.

It's to your advantage to Buy Refrigerators Here

The Alaska Refrigerator Co.'s line is one that we feature—but we have others of recognized standard quality. Your choice is sure to be satisfactory. Any size you want. Every type that is practical.

