

BERGER DEFIANT WHEN UNSEATED

Voigt of Wisconsin Casts Lone Vote in Favor of Socialist.

Victor L. Berger, Socialist Congressman-elect from Wisconsin, was excluded from membership in the House of Representatives last night by a vote of 209 to 1.

Berger was specifically charged with having violated the espionage act by conspiring to interfere with the operation of the Selective Service act and other preparation for the war.

He now is under sentence of twenty years in prison, imposed by the Federal court in Chicago.

The one negative vote was cast by Representative Edward Voigt, Republican, of Wisconsin.

If there was any doubt in the minds of the other members, it was swept away by Berger's own speech.

For more than an hour Berger belittled the government, ridiculed the President, severely arraigned Congress and the Republican and Democratic parties and assailed the Federal court in which he was convicted.

"I take back nothing that I said in my speeches and articles," Berger shouted defiantly. "Under the same circumstances I would say and write it all over again, only I would make it a great deal stronger."

The espionage act was characterized by Berger as an infamous measure passed at the order of American autocracy and declared that it had been used not to punish spies but to hound citizens whose opinions differed from those of the administration.

Arraigning the administration, Berger said it made a specialty of hypocritical phrases and adjectival, tyrannical acts. Except for England, he asserted, America is the only civilized country which has political prisoners.

"Victor L. Berger is a living example of the old saying, 'a leopard cannot change his spot nor the Ethiopian his skin,'" said Representative Monahan, Republican, of Wisconsin.

"It would be no more unpatriotic and un-American to put the Kaiser in the White House, Hindenburg in charge of our armies and von Tirpitz in command of our navies at an hour when we were at war with Germany than it would be to vote to give Victor L. Berger a seat in the House."

Chiropractic Association

In selecting a chiropractor you can ascertain his standing in the profession and thus know something of his ability by asking him if he belongs to the "Chiropractic Association of the District of Columbia." If he does, you can rest assured that he is a graduate of a REAL school and competent to care for your needs. The association found that out before admitting him to membership.

The chiropractor who applies for membership in the "Chiropractic Association of the District of Columbia" must present a diploma from a recognized school (recognized by the twenty-seven State boards and the American Association of Chiropractic Schools and Colleges), he must pass an examination equivalent to a State board examination and demonstrate his ability as a chiropractor by giving adjustments.

This accounts for the fact that twenty of the Washington chiropractors are all that have been found qualified for membership.

There is only one national association, The Universal Chiropractors' Association.

Consult classified section of telephone directory under heading, "Chiropractic Association of District of Columbia," for chiropractors properly qualified.

Mack, president of the club, addressed the members on the friendly feeling that existed among the members and pointed out the splendid influence that such a strong body of men and women could have upon their fellow employees.

At the conclusion of the dinner an entertaining program of music, songs and vaudeville acts was enjoyed, the assembly closing with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

At the recent annual election of officers of the club the following were named for the ensuing year: F. E. Mack, president; William Davies, vice president; Frank P. Scott, secretary; Clifton F. #### Attorney Miller Files Motion Seeking Retrial Three Defendants in "Shoot-Up."

Picturesque details relative to the "shooting up of Pierce street" on April 26, last, which were related in Justice Stafford's court, Criminal Court, No. 2, early last week, may be re-told if Attorney Robert L. Miller's motion for a new trial for Bryant C. McMahon, "Happy" Lee and Benjamin Butler, the three defendants in this case, is granted.

Attorney Miller filed his motion for a new trial yesterday and decision is expected to be given in Justice Stafford's court Saturday.

If the motion for the new trial in this case is not granted McMahon, Lee and Butler, the latter two of whom are colored, must each face thirty-year sentences in the penitentiary.

According to the testimony which convicted this trio, bullets from their guns were responsible for injuring three passers-by in the vicinity. It was the contention of the defense that the injured persons were hit by bullets from guns in the hands of other persons who participated in the affray.

TRACTION MEN URGE MARYLAND INCREASE

Increase in cost of material, heavy wage raises and high operating expenses were cited by W. F. Ham, president of the Washington Railway and Electric Company, as reasons for asking increased fares in Maryland, to correspond to the recent increase in the District. Officials of the company testified yesterday before Interstate Commerce Commission, declaring the electric lines never had been a paying proposition but were taken over mainly to develop suburban districts and feed the city lines. None of these lines, they claim, show a surplus above operating expenses. They also mentioned the loss of the Eckington car barn by fire in February, only partially covered by insurance. They ask an increase of one cent per zone in Maryland and would raise the price of commutation books about 30 per cent. A decision will be rendered this week.
