A bird's-eye view of the famous "Lost Battalion," heroes of the Argonne, upon their return to the United States. The men are lined up on a New York street after leaving the S. S. America.

French troops of the allied forces arriving at Archangel, Russia, aboard a British warship.

Miss Isabel Villiers of Boston, Mass., the first woman to enlist in the Signal Corp, returns from France with gold chevrons. She won the commendation of her officers by her steadfast devotion to duty.

Paderewski, Polish premier, in Paris, with members of his staff.

American soldiers, on leave in Paris, visiting the gallery of battles in the Palace of Versailles.

The congressional mission in Belgium hears shocking stories from children orphaned by the Huns. The photograph was snapped at St. Ann's Orphanage, Brussels. The children saw their mothers and fathers placed against a wall and shot.

Representatives of many nations attend the Red Cross conference at Cannes. Henry P. Davison of the American Red Cross is seated in the center foreground.