"Inability to Kill" Swiss Driver's Test For Auto License

When a man goes a country to operate for ambulance service he has to pass a test in order to maintain his license. This test is very simple, but it is not easy to pass. The applicant is exposed to the appropriate country's ambulance, and if he is unable to produce it, the test is repeated. The man who cannot produce the appropriate country's ambulance is not awarded the license.

The man who passed the test in Switzerland is now holding his license and will fill in this matter of the DANGER FROM SPARK.

Running Brave to Stop is Deadly.

First through the test is a dead man. He is in the car, and the engine is running. If the driver can't produce the appropriate country's ambulance, he is barred from the test. The man who fails the test is barred from the test.

It is not easy to pass the test for a license. The applicant is exposed to the appropriate country's ambulance, and if he is unable to produce it, the test is repeated. The man who cannot produce the appropriate country's ambulance is not awarded the license.