

MANUFACTURERS RAP SECRETARY REDFIELD

Association, Meeting in Detroit, Objects to His Proposal of Probe of U. S. Factories.

DETROIT, May 21.—Secretary of Commerce Redfield was the person scheduled for the point of criticism at the hands of the National Manufacturers' Association today. Opposition to the new secretary's proposition to appoint a Federal commission for investigation of factories where wages are reduced or output curtailed as a result of the Wilson-Taft tariff law, has shown its evidence among the delegates of the manufacturers' convention throughout the three-day session. It was expected that formal denunciatory action would be taken just previous to adjournment late this afternoon.

Delegates to the convention today subscribed almost unanimously to the opinions expressed in an address by William H. Boetcker, lecturer and writer, who says that the cost of "wrong living"—indulgence in tobacco, liquor, vice, and unnecessary amusements—in the United States homes, costing $2,500 a year, each, the country's big manufacturers were absorbed by Boetcker from any responsibility in the high cost of living. "The employers side is probably the one which is most misunderstood and most misrepresented," he said. "The convention will end with a banquet tonight."

Admit Misstatements And Girl Is Exonerated

A mild sensation was caused in the United States branch of the Police Court today when Charles A. Cotterill, a newspaper correspondent and his wife, complained against a fifteen-year-old Raleigh Hobson, sister of Cotterill's first wife, appeared in the court on advice of counsel confessing to misstatements in a previous hearing of the case against the girl. Miss Hobson was treated on the complaint of Cotterill last week. She was taken from the elevator of a downtown office building and lodged in the House of Detention overnight. She was immediately exonerated by order of the court on the basis of the complainants. She had been charged by the second Mrs. Cotterill with having exonerated her in other ways.

Legislative News Up To the Last Minute

To Introduce Alaskan Bill. Senator Norris of Nebraska will introduce in the Senate a remarkable bill calculated to bring about construction of railroads in Alaska by the Panama canal force. It will permit the Panama railroad, which is Government owned, to increase its bonded indebtedness, so that railroads can be built in Alaska in accordance with the recommendations of the Taft commission, and also twenty-five freight ships to ply between Alaskan and North and South American ports.

Session To Be Lengthy. The preliminary bickering over the tariff bill in the Senate has convinced the average House member that he will have to remain in Washington all summer. Few members have hopes of getting away to the mountains or seashore before August 1 and the favorite guess at adjournment is August 15 to 20.

Wilson To Aid Leaders. It is learned today that House leaders will consult President Wilson in making up four of the important committees of the House—Foreign Affairs, Military Affairs, Naval Affairs, and Banking, and in making the Administration a success.

Underwood Sees Dentist. In addition to his troubles with committee assignments and protests on the tariff bill, Congressman Oscar W. Underwood, majority leader, is today holding a painful conference with the dentist. Mr. Underwood has been so busy for the past year that he hasn't devoted time to his molars. He took a day off today and renewed his acquaintance with the "tooth doctor."

Public Safety Bureau. Establishment of a new bureau of public safety in the Department of Labor, with a national museum of safety appliances, was urged upon President Wilson today by Representative Bremner of New Jersey, who has introduced a bill in the House for such a project.

Aims To Rush Tariff Bill. Senator Owen announced today that he would introduce in the Senate a resolution for cloture rule for the purpose of preventing undue delay and dilatory tactics on the part of Senators. He is disturbed because of the disposition of the Republican Senators to delay the passage of the tariff bill.

Progressives To Meet. The Progressive members of the House will hold a conference early next week to nominate each other for committee assignments. An agreement has been reached that the Progressives shall be given thirty-eight committee places during the Sixty-third Congress. The conference has called a conference to ascertain what the Bull Moose members desire in the committee berth line.

Relief Association To Open New Home

The Southern Relief Association is today opening its new home of the society at 1518 Thirty-first street northwest. The hours will be from 2 to 7 p. m. The invitations will include the officers and members of the society, those of the Southern Society, the Southern Commercial Congress, United States Veterans, United Daughters of the Confederacy, United Confederate Veterans, the Confederate Veterans' Association, and all other Southern patriotic organizations. All Southern people and the general public who may be interested are invited.

District Veterans to Organize Association

Former officers and enlisted men of the First District of Columbia Volunteer Infantry will meet Friday evening at the office of Congressman L. C. Dyer, where they will organize a regimental association, according to plans outlined by the executive committee, composed of Col. Richard D. Sims, president; Congressman L. C. Dyer, vice president; Capt. Richard J. Donnelly, secretary; and Sergt. W. Calvin Whipp, treasurer.

Committee Favors Bill For More Midshipmen

At a meeting of the Senate Naval Committee today, a favorable report was ordered on the Tillman bill providing that after June 30, 1913, the number of midshipmen at the Naval Academy shall be increased. The measure provides for two for each Senator, one for Porto Rico, two for the District, and one at large. Midshipmen on graduation are to be commissioned ensigns in the navy or may be assigned to fill vacancies in the lowest commissioned grades of the Marine Corps or staff corps. Assistant Secretary Roosevelt appeared in behalf of the bill. It was denied that there was any allusion to international relations in connection with the meeting today.

Protected Home Circle Visits Mt. Vernon

Nearly five hundred members of the Protected Home Circle of the District of Columbia took a trip to Mt. Vernon today. There will be a joint initiation of the Washington circles tonight. Addresses will be made by the supreme officers and there will be an entertainment in the ballroom of the Raleigh. Members of the order will assemble Thursday morning on the east steps of the Capital for a group picture. The convention will close Thursday night with a ball to be given under the auspices of the local circle in the banquet hall of the Raleigh.

Women Ask Wilson To Attend Reception

Mrs. W. A. Cullop, first vice president of the National Women's Democratic League, Mrs. E. F. Taylor, second vice president, and Mrs. W. F. Dennis, historian, called at the White House today to see President Wilson. They invited the President to attend a reception to be given by the league, June 2.

Ebbitt Hotel Case Goes to Jury Today

Counsel for George F. Schutt, proprietor of the New Ebbitt House, who is on trial before a jury in the District branch of the Police Court, charged with selling liquor after midnight in the case of his hotel are making final arguments in behalf of their client today. The case will be given to the jury to decide later in the afternoon.

Two Damage Suits Begun Against Car Companies

Two damage suits were filed against the Washington Railway and Electric Company in the District Supreme Court today. Loretta A. Lannahan sued for $25,000 for injuries alleged to have been received as a result of a defective platform at "New Cut Road" station on August 10, last. Ignatius Gurck asks $10,000 damages, claiming he was injured as a result of a street car starting before he had alighted.

The Best and Fairest Savings Plan Ever Put Out By Any Bank Anywhere

The Munsey Trust Company's savings account plan is framed on strictly new lines. It is a plan that brings to the savings depositor over four per cent, as interest is compounded every three months. Moreover, the rules governing savings deposits are liberal in spirit and fact.

They contain no penalty provisions that deprive a depositor of so much as a single day's interest. Here are the rules and regulations governing savings accounts:

1. The Munsey Trust Company pays four per cent on savings accounts. Deposits may be made on any business day in the year, and will begin drawing interest on the first day after deposits are made, provided the deposits are in cash. If made in checks or drafts or money orders or express orders, interest will commence when the drafts or kindred form of deposits have been collected. This may take one day, or perhaps several days, depending upon the origin of the draft—how far from Washington.

Savings deposits may be drawn out on any business day in the year, and without penalties causing a loss of so much as a single day's interest. "Savings deposits," however, presuppose that the money is to remain in the bank for a considerable period. The Munsey Trust Company fixes arbitrarily upon six months as the shortest time on which it will allow interest at the full savings account rate of four per cent. On money drawn out that has been in the bank less than six months, the interest rate will be three per cent instead of four.

In other banks—most other banks—no interest is allowed on savings accounts running less than six months. But The Munsey Trust Company will allow interest at the rate of three per cent on every day, save the day of deposit, that the money is in the bank if drawn out in a shorter period than six months. It will allow four per cent if it remains in the bank six months or more. Interest will be added quarterly. This means that interest will be compounded on savings accounts four times a year, as against twice a year in all, or nearly all, other savings institutions.

2. Any sums of money from one dollar up will be accepted as a savings account, but interest will not begin until the sum of ten dollars has accumulated. Savings accounts may be opened with as small a deposit as one dollar, and whenever additions have brought the account up to ten dollars, then interest will commence, and at four per cent, subject to the above conditions.

When an account that has exceeded ten dollars drops below ten dollars, interest will cease during the time it is below ten dollars. Money will be received for savings accounts in sums ranging from one dollar to five thousand dollars, but no savings account will be allowed to exceed five thousand dollars except on special arrangement.

3. A pass book will be furnished to every person opening a savings account in The Munsey Trust Company, and on this pass book will be entered the amount of the deposit and the date on which it is made. Whenever additional deposits are made, they must be entered on the pass book. Whenever money is withdrawn, the withdrawal entry must be entered on the pass book. No money will be paid out except a record of the payment is entered on the pass book. This pass book is the receipt of the depositor for his deposit, so should be preserved with greatest care.

4. If a pass book is lost, immediate notice must be given to this bank. If it has not been recovered within thirty days after such notice, a duplicate pass book will be issued to the depositor, provided The Munsey Trust Company be held harmless on account of the issuance of the duplicate pass book. When a pass book has been destroyed, or is alleged to have been destroyed, and proper notice to this bank has been made, a new pass book will be issued on conditions that this bank be held harmless for such issuance.

5. The Munsey Trust Company reserves the right to close all savings accounts on thirty days' notice to depositors, in which case interest will be figured at the rate of four per cent, whether the deposits have been in the bank six months or less. The company reserves this right for the reason that it may be found desirable from time to time to either increase or decrease the rate of interest, dependent upon the money market. Presumably, however, this will not happen often, and may not happen in a very long time, if at all.

The Munsey Trust Company also reserves the right, on thirty days' notice to depositors, to change its rules and regulations pertaining to the relation between depositors and itself.

Certificates of Deposit

The Munsey Trust Company will issue certificates of deposit in place of issuing a pass book, when so desired. The company will also issue certificates of deposit for any length of time and any amount of money, whether for one month or one year or five years or ten years, the interest rate to be mutually agreed upon between the depositor and this bank.

No other bank or trust company anywhere of standing and strength has a savings account plan that in any way compares with this plan of The Munsey Trust Company. No other bank of big capital and real substantiality pays four per cent and compounds interest quarterly.

And no other bank of real responsibility gives the savings depositor so square a deal in its scheme of allowing interest without time penalties that may rob him of interest altogether.

Most or all other Washington banks allow three per cent on savings accounts—three per cent to our four. Moreover, they compound interest twice a year while we compound it four times a year.

These other banks, all or nearly all, have rigid time rules governing Savings Accounts, while we have the most liberal rules—rules as liberal for the small man as for the big man—rules that do not impose the penalty of entire loss of interest when the savings depositor draws out his money at his pleasure or according to his necessities.

The Munsey Trust Company, with its fully paid in capital of two million dollars, and a surplus of one hundred and fifty-two thousand dollars is as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar.

As all capital stock carries a responsibility equal to its face value, our two millions of capital means with our surplus a guarantee to the depositor of over four millions of dollars.

FRANK A. MUNSEY, President.
