Fine Claret and Old Berkeley. At this season of the year many persons indulge in the claret and other pure liquors to build up that tired feeling which naturally comes over us during the heated season. While it may be necessary, and the majority think and feel so, it is also eminently essential that we should only drink the purest, wisest and lightest to obtain these desirable goods it is well that we should know where to purchase them. We would advise that, in order to get what you want and pay for it at the old, reliable and experienced liquor-dealer, Mr. James Tharp, at 818 F street northwest.

QUIET GENEROSITY.

The Unostentatious Liberality of a Prominent Washingtonian. The following card, headed "A Gift for the Seminary," and dated at Westminster, Md., June 7, over the signature of J. T. Ward, president, appears in a Maryland paper.

"It will be gratifying to our friends to learn that through the generous kindness of Mr. Samuel Norment of the M. E. Church of Washington and a brother of our own church of Frederick City (who had previously contributed liberally for finishing the interior of the annex), I have the means in hand for furnishing all the new rooms for occupancy in September and for painting the exterior of the entire building. The donors have the sincere thanks of myself and all concerned. May the Lord bless and reward them!"

Mr. Norment has given away in the past twenty years to churches, colleges, charities, seminaries of learning, asylums and other institutions a large amount of money in a quiet, unostentatious manner. He is assisting in the erection of the Winfield Memorial Church, now being built at Little Rock, Ark., to the memory of his brother-in-law, the late Rev. Dr. A. R. Winfield. Such liberality is to be commended, especially when not confined to any particular sect or denomination.

"The Peacemaker"

A Boston paper tells of an old burying ground in a southern New Hampshire town where there is an interesting group of seven tombstones. Each of six of them marks a little strip of earth where rest the remains of one of the wives of one man, and the seventh is the grave of the Blue Beard himself.

The epitaphs of the wives are short and simple enough, but the fifth bears, underneath the name and record of the woman's birth and death, these words: "The Peacemaker." One can only speculate as to what the circumstances were under which she exercised her benevolent art; but no doubt she had to be a peacemaker to enable her husband to get along in any sort of comfort with all his deceased wives' relations. But the epitaph on the husband's tombstone is a gem. It reads thus: "Rest, Weary Pilgrim."
