COLLECTING STAMPS—5

Marines Raise the Flag

As World War II was drawing to a close in 1945, the Post Office Department began issuing a series of stamps honoring the heroic deeds of the Armed Forces.

Five three-cent stamps were issued. The first, and perhaps foremost, of the stamps was the Marine Corps stamp. The design incorporated the famed picture of the Marines raising the flag on Mount Surabachi, Iwo Jima. It was based on the photograph by Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal.

The Army stamp shows a parade of GIs marching down the streets of Paris under the Arch de Triomphe. Air Force planes fly above.

The Coast Guard stamp showed an invasion barge heading for the beach with an assault transport in the background.

The Merchant Marine stamp showed a Liberty ship being loaded at a pier.

To complete the drawing of the Iwo Jima picture, above, apply natural colors with crayons. Save it for your stamp hobby book.
