The societies of the Sons and of the Daughters of the American Revolution have accepted the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Cabell to meet at their residence Monday evening, February 23. Mrs. Harrison and Gen. A. W. Greely will preside, assisted by Mrs. Cabell and a number of the officers of the societies. Admission will be strictly by cards presented at the door of 1407 Massachusetts avenue.

One of the prettiest of the private dances of the season at Philadelphia was given by Mrs. Frank Field at the Art Club. The gowns were charming and the supper was served at dainty little tables. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Wise, Mr. and Mrs. Florence Fox, Miss Lulia, of New York; Miss Shankland, of Washington; Miss Epting, Miss McLaughlin, Miss Post, Miss Reis, and many more.

Mrs. James W. Green passed through this city Friday en route for her home in Culpeper. She has been spending four months with her children, James W. Green, of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Norris, of Denver, Col. Mrs. Green thinks the West has growing prosperity. Particularly is she impressed by the city of Denver, its marvellous growth and massive structures.

One of the most enjoyable teas of the week was that given Tuesday by Mrs. Joshua Davis, of Eighth street. The house was crowded during the entire evening by callers. The Misses Geno and Ella Davis and Miss Kingsley, of Boston, assisted the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Davis, of Chicago, are in the city, and are stopping at the Shoreham. Mr. Davis, who was formerly a Washingtonian, is now engaged in the publication business in Chicago and is meeting with great success.

The gifted writer, Mrs. E. G. Wheeler, accompanied by the accomplished harpist and writer, Miss Effie Douglass Putnam, is stopping at Welcker's.

Miss Mae Harcourt gave a delightful dancing reception on Friday at her home on F street. The guest of honor was Miss Maggie O'Conner, of Buffalo.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Saxton, of Boston, are spending a few days at his former home, Kenesaw avenue, Mount Pleasant.

Dr. Thomas Taylor has gone to Philadelphia to attend the courts as an expert for the Government on wood fibres.

Mrs. M. R. Shankland returned last Friday from a pleasant visit to her sister, Mrs. Florence Fox, at Philadelphia.

Captain and Mrs. John A. Howell have returned to the city and are at their residence, 1519 Twentieth street.

Miss Elvira D. Cabell, who has been visiting friends in Virginia, will return to the city Monday next.

Miss Josie Sprigman, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. M. Shankland.

Mrs. Kearney and Mrs. Powell received a number of callers on Saturday.

A perfect fit guaranteed at Miller's, shirt makers, Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

Among the notable events of the season were the two receptions given by Mr. and Mrs. Ye Cha Yun, at the elegant residence recently purchased by Mr. Phelps by Mr. Ye Cha Yun Charge d'Affaires by order of the King of Corea. This mansion is charmingly situated on Iowa Circle, a garden of greenery, in which a statue of Gen. Logan will soon be erected. The house is four stories above a basement, with bay-windows, baths, gas, and all other modern improvements attached, thus rendering everything to be desired for a large diplomatic household. The various members with their families can be accommodated with all the comforts and privacy of separate households on the different floors. The residence stands on the northwest corner of the streets cut by the Circle at 1500 Thirteenth street. It is a mansion well adapted for entertaining large companies. The entrance is up a flight of steps set back in a yard on Thirteenth street into a spacious hall, with drawing-rooms on the left hand and an elegantly appointed dining-room on the right, with butler's pantry and kitchens beyond. A large billiard-room is fitted up in the basement. Indeed, to the ordinary observer, the house has the appearance of hundreds of other well appointed residences. But in this house there are gay Korean folding screens, hand-painted or wrought in rich embroideries in colors that defy description—real Korean specimens of decorative art that are not to be seen elsewhere. There are also great Satsuma jars in the corners and many articles of home manufacture that serve to give the place the look of home which is so dear to those far from their native land. The absence of Mr. and Mrs. Ye Wan Yung is greatly regretted by those who enjoyed their acquaintance. Mrs. Wan Yung was very intelligent and cordial and made many friends among those who were first attracted by her foreign face and native costume. Since her absence Mrs. Ye Cha Yun has been diligently picking up the language, which she is now able to speak with much grace. In adopting the American custom of giving one or two public receptions she has lost nothing of the modesty so much admired by her people. It was thought best to venture upon only two receptions this season, and the two Tuesdays preceding Lent were selected. There was no great effort made for display. Such simple decorations as growing palm trees in the hall and potted plants in the windows and on the mantels of the drawing-rooms were all. An elegant collation was served in the dining-room. Mr. and Mrs. W. Sturtevant Moore, who are naval people and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ye Cha Yun, rendered valuable aid in making all the necessary preparations, and the two receptions were very successful. All the diplomatic circle, many of the Cabinet officers and families, and prominent Army and Navy officers, with distinguished citizens, paid their respects. On Tuesday, the day being fine, the crowd was larger than during the first day. Mrs. Ye Cha Yun bore the fatigue of standing for four hours without apparent fatigue, and everybody was charmed with her pretty-spoken English and her pleasant welcome. She wore a rich pale-blue silk skirt, with a yellow brocade silk waist. She was assisted by Mrs. W. Sturtevant Moore, in a gray faille Empire gown, with a rose-pink embroidered satin front. Miss Marie Moore, daughter of W. Sturtevant Moore, wore a beautiful Nile-green crêpe. She assisted at the punch bowl. Miss Cogswell, daughter of Representative Cogswell, wore an elegant gown of white crêpe. She poured tea in the dining-room. Miss Towne, also assisting, and daughter of a naval officer, wore a charming reception gown of white silk crêpe. Among the distinguished visitors were Mr. Fung Kwang Yu, Minister and Madame Romanoff, of Nicaragua; Minister and Madame Romanoff, of Mexico; Señor and Madame Mendonça, of the Misses Mendonça, Brazil; Minister and Madame Zegarra, from Peru; the Japanese Minister, Mr. Tateno and Madame Tateno, Secretary and Madame N. Bolet-Monagos, of Venezuela; Mr. Thomas W. Cridler, Chief of the Diplomatic Bureau; the Secretary of War, Secretary Rusk; Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Rusk; Rev. Tunis S. Hamlin, D. D.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLellan, Senator and Mrs. Spooner, Senator and Mrs. Dolph, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Teller, Mr. and Mrs. Senator Stanford, Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Nettleton, Colonel and Mrs. Haywood, Mr. and Mrs. Spinola, of New York; Mrs. Harmar and Mrs. Reeseide, Mrs. John Morgan, Commodore Skeerrett, Senator and Mrs. Morrill, of Vermont; Mrs. John Sherman and Miss Sherman, Justice Bingham, Gen. Vincent, and others too numerous to mention. There were fully fifteen hundred or two thousand callers on each day that Mr. and Mrs. Ye Cha Yun received. The customs of this country and Corea differ so widely in regard to domestic habits that those who know from observation in Corea how excluded the ladies of that country live can only fully realize what a progressive step Mrs. Ye Wan Yun and Mrs. Ye Cha Yun have taken in adopting the American custom of ladies giving a public reception. Mr. and Mrs. Ye Cha Yun express themselves as delighted with Americans and the charm of novelty that invests a new country with an aggressive civilization. Mrs. Ye Cha Yun says Washington will ever be dear to her because of the tender and sad associations connected with the birth and loss of the little one asleep under the grass and flowers of Oak Hill Cemetery.

Madame de Barrios gave a superb fancy dress ball at her residence in New York on Friday of last week. The floral decorations were ideally beautiful. The first of the suite of drawing-rooms was decked with yellow daffodils and orchids; in the second the flowers were La France and Catherine Mermet roses; the third room was adorned with St. Joseph lilies and roses. Mr. Antonio Barrios led the cotillon, dancing with Miss Amalia Aparicio, sister of Madame de Barrios. The hostess, costumed as Cleopatra, wore pink satin festooned with jeweled gauze. She had fringes of jewels around the low neck and short sleeves of her corsage. Her Egyptian head dress of gold was set off by sapphires, rubies, and diamonds. Supper was served at small tables in the conservatory and dining-room.

The marriage of Miss Anna Francesca Cowie, daughter of Col. George Cowie, and Mr. Robert Allison Shortwell, of New Orleans, took place at the bride's home, 1518 O street, at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Hamlin in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride. Paymaster Cowie gave his sister in marriage. The wedding was of the most quiet description owing to the serious illness of Col. Cowie, who insisted that there should be no postponement of the ceremony.

Mrs. John Keyworth leaves to-morrow morning to visit friends in Philadelphia, and will be absent about ten days.

The correct styles in full-dress shirts at Miller's, shirt makers and ladies' and gentlemen's outfitter, Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

The annual ball at the Mexican Legation on Monday night was the most brilliant event of society during the season. The spacious house was a veritable bower of beauty from the upper floors to the basement. At the foot of the broad stairway, on the newel-post, stood a white azalea bush covered with bloom, and the stair-rail was wreathed in smilax; in the upper hall palms filled the corners. The bed-rooms and sitting-rooms on this floor were utilized as cloak and dressing-rooms. Going below, the mantels banked with maidenhair ferns and set with choicest roses. In the dining-room, which on this occasion was utilized as one of the parlor suite, the massive sideboard was hidden under a bank of ferns and bloom with La France roses. But the ball-room presented the most attractive picture of the florist's art. The columns were wreathed with green and tulips and Easter lilies. The broad mirrors that line the walls on all sides were half concealed beneath curtains of smilax, looped high, while the mantel was banked with tulips, roses, blue, and other cut flowers. The Marine Band was concealed behind an evergreen screen. Minister and Madame Romero received in the main drawing-room. Madame Romero wore a rich trained gown of white and silver brocade, with a collar of pearls, and diamond pendant. A comb and cluster of diamonds sparkled in her dark hair. At her waist was a jeweled girdle. She wore a rich black silk, with a bracelet of gold beads, and white slippers gilded beneath her gown as she opened the ball with the gentle grace of movement that characterizes the Mexican dance. This graceful dance was repeated several times during the evening. Madame Romero's partner was Mr. Pacheco. Others dancing in this opening quadrille were Mr. and Miss Ross Thompson, Mr. Morales and Miss Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Mendonça, Mr. Leonard and Miss Amalia Mendonça, Mr. W. H. Chambers and Miss Greer, Mr. Edward Menard and Miss Reynolds, and Mr. Staley and Miss Scranton. The attendance was not so large as at previous balls and the absence of a crush rendered it all the more delightful. Supper was served in the brilliant rooms in the basement in Demonet's best style. Nearly all the foreign ministers were present. The gowns of the ladies were notably rich and elegant. Madame Mendonça wore a gown of white satin and diamonds; Miss Mendonça, black chiffon, with crimson sash; Miss Amalia Mendonça, pink gauze over pink silk; Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Romero's mother, shrim-pink silk and diamonds; Madame Guzman, black Spanish lace and diamond ornaments; Mrs. Soulé, violet silk and black lace; Miss Soulé, pink crêpe; Miss Gordon, of St. Paul, black lace; Miss Miller, of Baltimore, white crêpe; Mrs. Ye Cha Yun, white satin and brocade; Mrs. Walball, black velvet; Miss Lankes, white crêpe; Mrs. White gauze; Miss Bloom, white crêpe; Mrs. Howard, white gray crêpe, diamond necklace; Mrs. Logan, gray faille. Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop, of Boston, were with her. Mrs. Lothrop wore a rich gown of bluesatin, with panel of white, studded with gay little butterflies embroidered by hand; at her throat was a diamond cross. Madame Suarez wore corn-colored brocade, with turquoise bead trimming. Mrs. Spinola, of New York, wore a rich black silk, with white brocade front, ornaments diamonds; Miss Whitford, white lace, with violets on the bodice; Mrs. Daisy Moore, white crêpe; Mrs. Greenleaf, of Minnesota, a Paris gown of old-rose satin, with white satin petticoat, heavily embroidered and veiled in lace; her ornaments were diamonds. Mrs. Frank Stewart Osborn, of Chicago, wore a Felix gown of yellow brocade combined with heliotrope, and ostrich feather trimming. Mrs. Gen. Banks, old-rose satin, with brocade train; Miss Gorman, cream silk, with poppy-red flowers brocade on it, velvet ribbon garniture; Mrs. H. F. Gillumam, of New York, Nile-green silk, veiled in black net, ornaments diamonds; Mrs. L. C. Nevil, of New York, white brocade, with black velvet train and diamond ornaments; Mrs. Randall, black lace; Miss Armstrong, pink silk; Mrs. Seney, blue brocade; Mrs. Zegarra, old-gold brocade, diamond ornaments; Mrs. Guttridge, white lace, ponapadour collar; Mrs. Gorman, white and blue brocade; Mrs. Haddock, pink crêpe; Miss Davis, white brocade; Mrs. Rutherford, white satin; Miss Wilson, white over gold; Mrs. Evan Thomas, violet crêpe; Mrs. John B. Henderson, white lace; Miss Rice, heliotrope crêpe, with pearl passementerie; Mrs. Bigelow, white silk, with brocade train; Miss Scranton, white silk; Miss Bigelow, corn-colored crêpe; Miss Green, pink silk, and Mrs. Gen. Lee, black lace and white satin. Among others present were Mr. and Mrs. Keim, Mrs. Sturtevant Moore, Gen. Schofield, Mrs. Andrews, Senator and Mrs. Frye, Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. Pickett, and Mrs. George Pickett.

The Short Story Club met last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. F. R. Burket, 713 H street northwest. Mrs. G. Crandell, the president, occupied the chair. A portion of the Georgetown Orchestra opened the exercises with a classical instrumentum, and the minutes being read and approved, Mr. T. G. Hill pleased all his hearers with a song, Miss G. Withington, the author for the evening, then, in distinct and pleasing articulation, read her story, entitled "An Electrical Study." This was decidedly among the best yet given to the Short Story Club, and stamped the writer as a rare success in this difficult line of composition. Mrs. Robey, on special urgency, gave a beautiful and patriotic address. The violinists, Messrs. E. P. Upham and G. F. Finckel, again proved themselves masters of those most difficult instruments, the violin and viola, and then Miss Louise Graves recited "A Coast Survey," Mrs. A. E. Beall, "A Picture," by Austin Dobson; Miss L. Smith, "The Gobblins," by E. F. Hart, "The Ragged Man," and Miss Annie M. Hertford, "Heartsease." Mr. Hill sang "Sweet Jennie Lee," Mr. J. H. Whitaker read an original poem, "The Thunder-bow," and Mrs. M. D. Lincoln showed she had kissed the Barney Stone by the way she flattered the club on its growth and literary success. Proposals for membership being disposed of, the club adjourned to meet on Wednesday, February 25, at Mrs. Crandell's, No. 610 H street.

Mr. George Biddle, of Cambridge, Mass., whose society readings are the most popular in Boston and New York, is to pass a week in this city during Lent, the guest of Mrs. C. C. Kelly, of 1235 I street.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever. Miller's shirts are beautiful. Made on the premises, Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.
