

PRESIDENT WORRIED BY LABOR SITUATION

sumed by Judge Gary, and it is known that the President was hopeful up until yesterday that the head of the steel corporation would change his viewpoint.

The President yesterday let it be known exactly what he believed that the treaty of peace actually provides for. He summarized the high lights of the treaty through preparation of a new "ten points." This summary, issued to the newspaper correspondents on his car was the President's reply to the latest declarations of the Senators who are opposing the treaty.

What He Says It Does.

In it the President says that the treaty now before the Senate does the following:

Provides for the destruction of autocratic power as an instrument of international control, admitting to membership only self-governing nations.

Provides for the substitution of publicity, discussion and arbitration for war, using the boycott rather than arms.

Provides for placing the peace of the world under constant international oversight, in recognition of the principle that the peace of the world is the legitimate, immediate interest of every treaty.

Provides for disarmament of nations with a consequent reduction of taxes.

Provides for the liberation of oppressed peoples.

Provides for the discontinuance of annexations and the substitution of trusteeship with responsibility to the opinion of mankind.

Provides for the invalidation of all secret treaties.

Provides for the protection of dependent peoples.

Provides for high standards of labor under international sanction.

Provides for the international coordination of humane reform and regulation.

A Complete Summary.

This statement was an elaboration of the suggestions made by the President in his Minneapolis address. It completely summarized, the President said, exactly what the treaty will do when it is put into operation. His summary was designed to place before the people of the United States, he said, a complete simplified analysis of the bulky document.

BOTH SIDES READY TO FIGHT TO FINISH

With Government officials trying to avert the steel strike called for September 22, union leaders today declared there would be no turning back now unless the employers capitulated.

Other developments in the threatened walkout which was decided upon here yesterday, were:

Attorney General Palmer began a study of conditions in the steel mill districts in some of which the men charge the rights of free speech and free assembly have been violated.

John Fitzpatrick, head of the steel men's organization committee, declared he had not seen President Wilson's telegram asking postponement of the strike action until after the "round-table conference" here October 6.

The President's telegram reached the office of President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, this morning and was forwarded to Gompers, at Dorchester, Mass.

Fitzpatrick, who leaves for Chicago today, announced a meeting of the twenty-four steel union presidents next Wednesday at Pittsburgh, where strike headquarters will be established.

The Steel Corporation is also ready to fight to a finish. Corporation officials say 80 percent of the workmen are stockholders in the company, and they expect these to remain loyal, even though unionized.

IMPEACH PRESIDENT IS CRY IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Chicago is interested in the Senate opposition to the peace treaty—howlingly interested.

Not since the days of 1912, when the big auditorium here saw the birth of the Bull Moose party, has such a vast, excited, wildly cheering throng jammed that place and shouted encouragement to speakers as it worked itself into dripping perspiration last night in greeting the speeches of Senators Johnson, Borah, and McCormick.

It was sweltering hot. But men took their coats off, women wielded fans, and they jumped to their feet demanding the impeachment of President Wilson and shook the whole house as they tagged him a "quitter."

Senator Johnson left at noon today for Indianapolis, while Borah and McCormick prepared to follow different routes, confident that if the enthusiasm met in Chicago is continued, the Senate will have complete backing in making amendments and reservations to the treaty recommended by the Foreign Relations Committee.

As Johnson progressed cheerily swept in from the street. A crowd twice as big as that packing the auditorium was waiting there, and as they left the platform the three Senators crawled upon a fire-escape to repeat their speeches to the crowd there.

Johnson recited each of the principles announced by Wilson, and which he declares were beaten and abandoned in Paris. He said they were American principles. As he went on and on, "but as Clemenceau grimaced," or "Japan shook her head, who quit?" The crowd jumped to its feet and yelled back:

"Wilson!"

LONDON TO UNVEIL STATUE OF LINCOLN

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Alton B. Parker arrived here this afternoon and will unveil at Manchester on Monday the Barnard statue of Lincoln presented to that city by Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft.

He has brought with him as chancellor of the Sulgrave Institution of America a copy of the portrait of George Washington as a colonel which is now in the Virginia Military Institute and was once the property of Robert E. Lee. He is likely to visit Sulgrave Manor to present that and a check for $200,000 sent by the American branch of the institution.

E. C. MANN PICKED TO FILL LEVER SEAT

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 11.—E. C. Mann, of St. Matthews, is elected to fill the vacancy in Congress caused by the resignation of Congressman A. F. Lever, of the Seventh South Carolina district, and P. H. Stoll, of Kingstree, is elected to the Sixth district seat made vacant by Congressman Raggsdale's death.

Practically complete returns give a lead over his opponent, George Bell Timmerman, who is a follower of former Gov. Cole L. Blease, of about 800 votes, while Stoll leads his opponent by about 100 votes.

HURLEY MAKE TAKE REDFIELD'S PLACE

ness, and the President was delighted with his work.

Would Help Party Chances.

Politicians assert that when the treaty is out of the way, the two old political parties will begin to spar for the advantage in the 1920 campaign, and if business conditions are good, the Democrats will have a show to win. Mr. Hurley, Democratic leader, would do much to put the country on a free footing in the business world.

For several days it has been reported that the President would name some quiet, easy-going man, without aggressiveness, to mark time until March, 1921, but the Hurley story came today and swept that idea away. Others mentioned in connection with the vacancy to be created by Mr. Redfield's resignation are Edward F. Sweet, now Assistant Secretary of Commerce; Norman Davis, one of the financial advisers to the American delegation at the peace conference, and Clarence M. Woolley, of the War Trade Board.

Redfield's Future Uncertain.

Secretary Redfield denies today that he is to head a foreign credit clearing house, to be organized in New York, but argued that such a thing would be jolly fine if the peace treaty were ratified.

"There is no basis in fact," said he, "for the statement published in a New York paper today that I have been selected as the executive head of a foreign credit clearing house. No far as I am informed no such organization exists, no one is authorized to extend such an invitation on behalf of any organized body, and no such invitation, therefore, has come to me. So far as my own action is concerned, however, nothing further can be said than was stated by me last week—that I am considering several matters which have been suggested to me, none of which has reached a decisive stage."

"The subject of foreign credits being raised, however, it is proper to state that the most great need of the country today is peace. The energies of our industry and commerce are choked at the source, so far as their outreach into the great world is concerned, because we are still at war. There rises before the United States a unique opportunity both to serve the world and to earn great and deserved rewards for itself, but we cannot take up that opportunity in any adequate way until we have peace."

DROWNS HIS WIFE TO WED ANOTHER

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 11.—Interrupting his game of solitaire in a cell in the county jail at Pinckneyville, Ill., sixty miles southeast of here, William Porter Wroten told, with not a tremor in his voice, how he had drowned his wife in the presence of their two children, so that he might marry Mary Brown, a sixteen-year-old country girl.

Mary Brown, Wroten's bride of three weeks, who is also in prison, sobbed out her love for Wroten and announced her determination to stick by him to the end.

"I've known little Mary for fifteen years," Wroten said. "When I was just a youngster they lived on a farm adjoining ours. I love her better than anything in the world."

"Tuesday, July 7, I guess it was, my wife asked me to take her swimming to Calum creek. While we were drifting along my wife turned and said to me:

"Wouldn't you rather Mary was with you?" I asked. "Yes, I would."

"We got to the creek and put the children on a blanket. My wife didn't have a swimming suit, but put on some overalls and a jumper. When we got to the water she asked me again if I didn't wish that Mary was with me instead of her, and I said I did. Then she got hysterical and came toward me, and I hit her in the jaw with my fist, knocking her under the water. She came up, but I didn't make any attempt to pull her out. She came up and went down again until she had come up three times, then she didn't come up any more."

"Then I called for help. I told neighbors that I had been swimming down around the bend of the creek, and that when I came back I saw bubbles coming up on the water, and I knew my wife had been drowned. I didn't see Mary until twelve days later. Then we decided to run away and get married, which we did."

Uncle Joe Cannon, a member of the committee, saw the admiral's condition and ran to the floor of the house asking for a doctor. The deliberations were halted while the speaker asked if there was a doctor in the gallery or on the floor. A physician was summoned finally. The admiral's condition is not serious.

FOOD FAMINE TO FOLLOW EMBARGO

Washington Has Only 48-Hour Food Supply, Merchants Say.

An embargo on foodstuffs coming into the District of Columbia, because of the many thousands of visitors and soldiers coming here next week, will put Washington in a precarious condition.

"Washington is only from twenty-four to forty-eight hours ahead of starvation," declared William G. Carter, of Golden & Co., today. "If we fail to receive our regular supply of foodstuffs each day, we shall have a serious situation here. I had not anticipated that the movement of troops and visitors in the city would affect the supply here, but if it does Washington will soon learn how much hoarding prevails here."

At the freight offices of the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads it was learned today that arrangements are being made not to seriously delay the shipment of perishable goods into the city, or shipments in less than carload lots. It was said that a delay from two to seven days on non-perishable freight, including canned goods, coal, lumber, etc., was anticipated.

"I think there is little cause for alarm," said Charles J. Columbus, secretary of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. "I am advised on carload freight the railroads will do their utmost to permit their coming and going, and am assured there will be no interference with less than carload freight, particularly perishables."

BLIND PRISONER BECOMES TYPIST

OSSING, Sept. 11.—Charles Cossum, former lawyer and blind prisoner of Sing Sing, for whom Gov. Alfred Smith has signed a pardon, has lately learned to operate a typewriter. It was announced today, and hopes to earn his living by typing as soon as he is released from prison. Cossum was taught to operate the typewriter by the touch system.

In the two years he has been in prison he has had no occupation, and prison attendants and inmates took an interest in him and showed him how to run a typewriter. His blindness is the result of a self-inflicted wound. He tried to kill himself by shooting himself in the head while in his office in Poughkeepsie. This act led to the discovery by the authorities that he had stolen funds and securities entrusted to him by clients. Cossum is the only blind prisoner ever confined in Sing Sing.
