MIDTOWN NEW YORK By ROBERT SYLVESTER

Educational Notes

Movies may not be any better than ever, as they claim, but both the film makers and the film actors apparently are getting more and more educational. Last Sunday night our Ed Sullivan had Marlon Brando as guest to ballyhoo the film version of "Guys and Dolls." In a clocked one and one-half minutes. Marlon used the words "congruent," in used the words "congruent," in the outside of the bottle are safe for human consumption in case of atomic attack providing the outside of the bottle is carefully washed before opening."

Meanwhile, out in Santa Rosa, Calif., a movie unit on location is making a film called "Storm Center" with Bette Davis. It's a story about a small town librarian who refuses to remove a controversial book from the shelves. This rouses the town demagogue who sets fire to the library. The film makers came to the scene where they had to burn the books.

Contrary to what we've been Contrary to what we've been led to believe, an expert on movie fires named Fred Wolf reports that books are almost impossible to burn. He said copies of "Lady Chatterly's Lover" and "The Decameron" smoldered pretty good but Plutarch and Carlyle were tough to even scorch.

So this time your favorite bop musician comes back from an out-of-town gig and gets to Broadway at 9 o'clock in the morning. He gazes in awe at the crowds scurrying to work.

"Man," he says in amazement. Everybody in town must have a

A friend of this department has a youngster in grammar school and the other night asked him what his studies had been that day. The kid said the day had been devoted to learning about "rigid stands." His pop did considerable investigating before the mystery was solved. Seems the kid had been memorising:

"I pledge allegiance to the flag, and to the Republic for rigid stands . . ."

Johnny Samen, who runs a boite called the Keyboard, had a a couple of young customers the other night and overheard their conversation.

"Have you ever been to 21?"
asked the boy.

"Yes," said the gal, "my father took me."

"How could he afford it?" asked the lad.
There's nothing funny about this except the lad was Sheldon Trannen, whose mother is the sister of the founding Kriendlers of 21.

Patricia Barry, who does the TV soap opera "First Love," for-wards her own description of an alcoholic—he's somebody you can't stand who drinks as much HOLLYWOOD. - Would-be Thespians might well take a tip from a story told by William Campbell concerning his first appearance before a movie camera. The young actor gives Director John Sturges credit for teaching him how to act-and in a jiffy.

act—and in a jiffy.

Sturges was directing Spencer Tracy in "People Against O'Hars" at MGM, and Campbell was about to make his bow in a key supporting role. He was scared stiff.

"Sturges could almost see me shaking," reported Campbell. "He came over and calmly suggested that I forget all about acting, He asked me to do just two things for him:

(1) Listen attentively when Tracy talked to me and (2) answer Tracy's questions honestly and directly.

answer Tracy's questions hon-estly and directly.

"It was as simple as all that. I did just what he asked and all my fears left. And when the scene was over—I'll never forget the occasion—Tracy came up to me and said—'Say, boy, you're an actor.'"

Campbell's recollection of the turn-in-the-road incident came at an appropriate time—came at an appropriate time— for he is now being directed once again by Sturges, this time in "Backlash," at U-L. (Released by NANA)
