

Clean Sweep Predicted For Democrats in 1956

By ISABELLE SHELTON
Democrats are going to make a clean sweep in 1956, winning the presidency, "at least 60 more seats in Congress and a lot of State offices," Representative Michael J. Kirwan of Ohio predicted yesterday.

The Ohioan, who is chairman of the House Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, spoke at a luncheon of the Woman's National Democratic Club honoring the States of Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

"The only one I can see now that the Republicans can put up (for President) is poor old Tom Dewey again," Mr. Kirwan observed.

"But that's no disgrace," he added. "We put up Bryan three times."

Declining farm income is going to be one of the chief issues for the Democrats next year, the Ohioan believes.

"All we have to do is remind farmers that farm income was $3 billion a year when we took over the Government in 1933, and $33 billion a year when we turned it over to the Republicans in 1935," he said.

Farm income had begun to slip in the last year of the Democratic regime, the Congressman acknowledged. "But Harry Truman set up a committee to study what should be done about it. When the Republicans came in they tossed out the committee."

"We know who created the prosperity we have today," he continued. "We took over the country when there were millions in the breadlines and it was facing economic ruin. There were $4 million people at work when we left office."

Republicans "have tried to stop or destroy every project for the good of mankind," the Ohioan added. "Even the things they are bragging about now, like expansion of social security and increasing the minimum wage, are just additions to programs Democrats started — programs Republicans fought in the beginning."

Noting that the Republicans apparently plan to run on a platform of "peace and prosperity," Mr. Kirwan commented:

"If things keep going like they have been going since Geneva, that is going to be a pretty poor slogan for them by next summer."

Membership Tea

The Sisterhood of Temple Sinai will hold a membership tea and Oneg Shabat at 1 o'clock tomorrow in Madison House, 1330 G street N.W. All prospective members and those already enrolled in the sisterhood are invited.

Rabbi Balfour Brickner will speak briefly, as will Mrs. Irving Schiller, president of the sisterhood. A cantata written by Mrs. David Kushner also will be presented.

To Receive Museum Gift

The National Board of Management of the National Society, Children of the American Revolution, will meet today in the national headquarters of the Daughters of the American Revolution administration building.

New museum cases for the C. A. R. Museum will be formally presented and accepted by Mrs. E. Stewart James of Gloucester, Va., national C. A. R. president, and Mr. Roland W. Charles, Jr., of Washington, junior national vice president.

The cases, which have already been set up in the museum, have on exhibit articles formerly belonging to the society's founder and first national president, Mrs. Daniel Lothrop of Massachusetts. They also contain such historic articles as a silver spoon given by a Revolutionary War soldier to his little daughter in 1789, a silver mutton holder from Louisiana and a disciple's pitcher dating from around 1788.

The pieces of this pitcher were unearthed during the planting of an orchard in 1862 on land which is now occupied by the Walter Reed General Hospital Annex in Forest Glen.

The Library-Museum also contains some of the children's books Mrs. Lothrop wrote under the pen name of Margaret Sidney. One of the projects of the C. A. R. this year is to collect the remainder of her books.

The cases are being presented jointly by Mrs. Earl Cecil Moses, of Kansas, first national vice president of the C. A. R.; Mr. Arthur E. Malory of Georgia, in honor of his wife, and Mrs. Carl H. Giroux of Washington, in honor of national presidents who served from 1928 through 1955.
