

MRS. W. C. STORY SCORES VICTORY ON THIRD BALLOT

New York Candidate for President General of D. A. R. Receives 600 Votes. RECEIVES LONG OVATION

New President General of Society Promises to Bring About Unity and Progress in Future.

Mrs. William Cumming Story of New York, was yesterday elected president general of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, receiving 600 votes, to 48 for Mrs. John Miller Horton.

Mrs. Charles B. Bryan, the third candidate for the office, had retired at the beginning of the morning session, and of the few votes which had stuck to her Mrs. Story got enough to win a notable victory.

The results of the third ballot, bringing to an end the balloting for president general and vice presidents general, were announced at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Story Given Ovation. At once there was an ovation for Mrs. Story. The women whose enthusiasm had intermittently been given during the five days of the twenty-second Continental Congress of the D. A. R. stood and cheered. It was several minutes before parliamentary order was restored.

Mrs. Story to Come Forward, a score of prominent Storyites having made a request for their candidate's appearance upon the platform. Mrs. James G. Dunning, the regent of Massachusetts, and Mrs. James Laddell Buel, the regent of Connecticut, were the committee, who escorted Mrs. Story to the stage.

Mrs. Story responded with thanks to the delegates who had stood by her so faithfully, and with a promise that she would discharge her duties faithfully.

PNEUMONIA CURE IS DISCOVERED

Rockefeller Research Institute Scientist Announces Preparation of Serum. METHODS ARE EXPLAINED

Obstacle Which for Years Has Baffled Physicians in Treating Disease Is Overcome.

New York, April 18.—A serum for the cure of pneumonia has been developed at the Rockefeller Research Institute in this city and will soon be given to the public, according to an announcement made by Dr. Clarence McWilliams, one of the medical experts attached to the institute.

It was later learned that the disease, whether caused by one form of bacillus or the other, follows the same general type of progress, rendering them similar to all outward appearance, but it was found that a serum which would cure pneumonia resulting from one species of bacillus would not cure or appreciably affect the other form.

By subjecting mice to injections of the sputum of pneumonia patients, the form of disease from which they were suffering was determined and then the proper serum was administered.

This determination can be made within twenty-four hours and the particular form of disease is quickly and easily injected into the veins. It is hoped to combine the serums within a short time, to obviate the necessity of waiting to analyze the sputum before making the injection.

Flat denial that James M. Lynch, president International Typographical Union and leading candidate for the position of Public Printer, either suggested or wrote the editorial in the Washington Journal, the so-called President Wilson a "high-browed near-statesman," was made yesterday by J. W. Hays, secretary-treasurer of the typographical body and editor of its official organ, the Typographical Journal.

GLOVER AND SIMS ENGAGE IN SETTO IN PUBLIC PARK

Washington Banker Attacks Representative as Result of Long-standing Quarrel. INCIDENT IS NOW ENDED

Southern Lawmaker Has Not Knocked Off and Bank President Is Unscathed.

Pistouffs in fashionable Farragut Square yesterday climaxed the long-standing feud between Representative Thetus Sims of Tennessee, a former member of the House District Committee, and Charles C. Glover, president of the Riggs National Bank of this city.

Mr. Glover was prevented from finishing his work by the interference of Sherman Allen, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Capt. Charles E. McAllister, of the revenue cutter service. Admiral Dewey and Secretary of War Garrison also were passing through the park just in time to get a glimpse of the bout.

Mr. Sims made no attempt to strike back, according to his own version. Mr. Glover verified this statement. According to Mr. Sims, the banker struck him only once. Mr. Glover says he got in two good wallops "with the open palm of my right hand."

Mr. Glover is sixty-three years old, but a very active, athletic man. He is about five feet ten and weighs around 150 pounds. Thetus Sims is sixty-one, a little shorter than Mr. Glover, but of good weight, although he carries a considerable part of it under his vest.

The affair was described to The Washington Herald by both Mr. Glover and Judge Sims. Their stories are considerably at variance, but the main facts of the altercation, as related by them, agree. When the country club at Massachusetts and Nebraska Avenue, late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Glover said:

"As I was leaving my town house this morning on my way to my bank, I saw Sims waddling across Farragut Circle. I crossed over to where he stood and said, 'This is Mr. Sims, I believe.' He replied, 'Ah, yes, I know him. I looked him squarely in the face and said: 'I want to tell you to your face that you are a contemptible liar; yes, a miserable liar, contemptible liar. I mean to show you just what I think of you.'"

POPE STRONGER; HAS QUIET DAY

Takes Nourishment and Bronchial Affection Is Less Troublesome. DIRECTS WORK FROM BED

Condition Still Precarious, Say Physicians, and Another Relapse Is Feared.

Rome, April 18.—Pope Pius continued his remarkable rally, and is reported to be steadily improving tonight. While this news has cheered Rome, it has not tended to restore the confidence of the Vatican as to the ultimate recovery of the Pontiff.

Cardinal Merry del Val issued the following bulletin tonight: "His Holiness has spent a tranquil day and has rested well. His temperature is 57.3. The bronchial affection has been materially ameliorated, and his general condition is much improved."

J. P. MORGAN, JR., CHIEF HEIR TO FATHER'S ESTATE

Widow and Daughters Each Devised Life Income on $3,000,000. EMPLOYEES REMEMBERED

Grandchildren, on Parents' Death, to Receive Interest on Bequests, While Relict Receives Property.

New York, April 18.—J. Pierpont Morgan is made his father's chief heir, succeeding as residuary legatee to the bulk of the fortune of the financier under his will, according to information made public today.

Not even the members of the family, to whom the will has been read, know yet the extent of the fortune which Mr. Morgan left, according to reliable information. No accurate estimate of the figure, it is said, can be made until after the estate has been appraised, the work of which, unofficially, is already under way.

To Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, the widow, is left the income of $3,000,000 for life, the principal on her death to revert to the estate. In addition Mrs. Morgan also gets the bulk of the Morgan real estate at 215 Madison Avenue, as well as the country place at Highland Falls, N. Y.

To Miss Anne Morgan a similar monetary bequest of $3,000,000 is made, the income from this amount to be paid to her during her life. Should she marry and leave children, it is provided that the principal, on her death, shall revert to the children, but should she die unmarried or childless the full amount of the principal, it is provided, shall revert to the residuary estate. Under no conditions would it be possible under the will for Miss Morgan's husband to inherit the money.

To Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, formerly Laura A. P. Morgan, and Mrs. W. Pierpont Hamilton, who was Juliet T. Morgan, the income of $500,000 is devised separately, with the proviso that upon their deaths the full sum in each case shall go to their children.

Employees Receive Bequests. For the rest, two employees of Mr. Morgan, who served him faithfully and upon whom he relied particularly—Miss Belle DuCosta Greene and Mrs. Ada Thurston—have been generously remembered. Miss Greene and Miss Thurston served Mr. Morgan in his wonderful library, where the priceless manuscripts, first editions, rare books, and in recognition of their services, special bequests of $15,000 each are made.

MILITANTS FIGHT ON SHAFT TOP

Battle with Police on Pinnacle of the Famous Fire Monument. HURL MISSILES AT CROWD

Suffragettes Stop Traffic for Several Hours, Before Driven from Position by "Bobbies."

London, April 18.—Militant suffragettes today took possession of the famous Fire monument in the fish market, district of London, just south of London Bridge, and for several hours rained suffrage literature and missiles upon the crowds beneath, stopping all tram, vehicular, and foot traffic in the streets.

The women alternated their cannonade of pamphlets with screams of "Votes for Women" and "Victory or Death," while the fish vendors in the streets below, enraged at the tie-up of business, replied in that kind of language which has made Billingsgate famous the world over.

By making a concerted attack, police managed to storm the narrow stairway leading to the top of the monument, but there another difficulty beset them. The women refused to descend the steps, and one woman declared she would commit suicide by hurling herself from the top of the tower if any policeman laid hands on her.

Flaming peaceable measures ineffectual, the officers made a sudden rush, each grabbing a woman. The scene then became one of the wildest confusion. Shrieking, biting, kicking, and struggling, the women were laboriously carried down the stairway to the street. In their rage the women scratched the policemen's faces, bit their hands, and tore their uniforms. The women, with hair down, dresses torn, and hysterical from rage and excitement, continued to make a demonstration in the street, and bystanders had to help the police officers with them.

The cases of George Lansbury, former M. P., and Flora "General" Drummond, charged with inciting members of the Women's Social and Political Union to lawlessness, were today adjourned until April 23.

BRVAN CLARK FEUD IS ENDED AT 'LOVE FEAST'

Friends Bring Secretary of State and Speaker of House Together at Luncheon. BOTH MAKE STATEMENTS

Meeting Is Engineered by Representative Bell—Former Estranged Men Shake Hands.

Champ Clark and William J. Bryan have wept on each other's shoulders and made up. After elaborate negotiations, covering several days, the two were brought together at a luncheon yesterday afternoon for the first time since the falling out at the Baltimore convention, which resulted in the overthrow of Clark's boom and the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. The hands, broke bread together, and issued statements.

The Secretary of State said, in effect: "You were all right, Champ; it was the company you were keeping that I objected to."

The Speaker, in his statement, conceded nothing, but said that Mr. Bryan now has done all that he can to repair the injury inflicted at the Baltimore convention.

Here is the Bryan statement: "My meeting with Mr. Clark has served to clear up a misunderstanding as to my exact position toward him at the Baltimore convention. I have tried to make it clear to Mr. Clark. I have always regarded, and do now regard him, as a good, clean progressive Democrat. If my language at Baltimore created any impression of my words or acts, for I did not intend to reflect upon either the personal or political integrity of the Speaker, it is my earnest wish that there may be cordial co-operation between the State department and the Speaker in carrying out the policies of the administration."

Here is the Clark statement: "It is beyond the power of Col. Bryan or any one else to correct the injustice that was done at Baltimore. The few of the Presidential nomination was a small thing, as compared to the injury done by Bryan's attitude in the eyes of the world. But in his public statement he has done what he can to remove the injurious impressions that were created by his Baltimore speeches. I feel that for the good of the country, it is only fair that I have publicly declared time and time again, that all personal or selfish considerations must give way to the duty that all Democrats owe to our party and to our country."

Bryan's statement had been submitted to Clark, and Clark's to Bryan and each had been read, O. K'd, by the other before the formal reconciliation. A few hand shake took place. The reconciliation of the Comptroller and the Speaker took place at a luncheon, given by Bryan first in a private dining-room at the New Willard, and then at the State Department and asked for by Mr. Bell. The lunch was a particularly favorable position to act as negotiator. He had acted as a temporary administrator of Democratic convention in Denver in 1908 which nominated Col. Bryan. At Baltimore he was for Champ Clark until the very last gun was fired. At Baltimore Bryan put Bell on his blacklist because he had formed the impression that he was favoring the "interests."

POLICE TAKE FIVE AS CIGAR STORE BANDITS

LYNCH NOT AUTHOR OF TYPO EDITORIAL

Editor of Printers' Journal Denies that Candidate for Public Printer Wrote Words.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 18.—Editorial in Typographical Journal of October, 1910, about which you asked James M. Lynch to write the editorial in the Washington Journal, the so-called President Wilson a "high-browed near-statesman," was made yesterday by J. W. Hays, secretary-treasurer of the typographical body and editor of its official organ, the Typographical Journal.

Flat denial that James M. Lynch, president International Typographical Union and leading candidate for the position of Public Printer, either suggested or wrote the editorial in the Washington Journal, the so-called President Wilson a "high-browed near-statesman," was made yesterday by J. W. Hays, secretary-treasurer of the typographical body and editor of its official organ, the Typographical Journal.

Opponents of Mr. Lynch for the job as head of the Government Printing Office unearched their printer's ink in the Washington Typographical Journal in October, 1910, and intimated that Mr. Wilson, then candidate for Governor of New Jersey, would not receive much support from printers. The editorial was regarded as a death blow to the Lynch candidacy by opponents, who claimed also that Mr. Lynch either wrote or inspired the story.

WITNESSES TESTIFY IN McCLEARY'S BEHALF

Former Prisoner on Stand Says Defendant Was Kept in Solitary Confinement.

Rockville, Md., April 18.—Testimony in the case of Norman E. McCleary, who is on trial in the Circuit Court here for the murder of Mrs. Nannie E. Henry at Hagerstown last August, was to the effect today that he was almost delirious as a result of the treatment which he is alleged to have received in the "third degree" methods which is claimed was used to force a confession from him.

This testimony is absolutely denied by and contradicted by United States Assistant District Attorney Hawken, who said he had no recollection of any such case, and had, in fact, his (McCleary's) own admission that this was the case.

Among other statements made on the witness stand, Frank D. Wagman, counsel for the defense, said that McCleary had told him he had been kept in a dark room, and that he was promised to go in with the other prisoners if he confessed. McCleary also told Wagman, according to witness, that "he knew how to confess."

FLANDERS TRIAL POSTPONED

Big Crowd Present in Court at Hearing in Georgia Case.

Swainsboro, Ga., April 18.—People from miles around came here early today and competed with villagers for places in the courtroom at the trial of Mrs. Fred Flanders. Nearly 300 venturers were summoned, but considerable difficulty was anticipated in making selection, because of the extensive family connection of Mrs. Flanders, her dead husband, and Dr. W. J. McNaughton.

Mrs. Flanders is charged with complicity in the murder of her husband by arsenic poisoning two years ago. Dr. McNaughton, an admirer of the beautiful widow, is at Savannah under death sentence for the murder. He may be summoned to testify for the prosecution.

Counsel for the State asked for a continuance, because of the absence of material witnesses, until the July term of the Superior Court. This was granted, and the case postponed.

MARTIN SENDS MESSAGE FROM SWISS RESORT

"Missing" Broker Wires to Friends to Cease Inquiries as He Is Safe.

London, April 18.—The last act in the farce prepared by Joseph Wilberforce Martin and his friends was played when telegrams were received from Martin dated Vevey, Switzerland, saying: "Both Scoteles inquiries. All well. Writing. 'J. W. MARTIN.'"

Both Scotland Yard men and Detective Burns believe the message to be genuine. Detective Burns states that he is now retiring from the case, as all interest ceases with the discovery of Martin alive.

Burns says that he has received an answer to a cable message he sent to Memphis, Tenn., but he declined to disclose the nature of either question or answer.
