Death of Jim Sullivan a Stunning Blow to Track and Field Athletics.

BOSTON BRAVES SHOW NO BREAKING SIGNS

Racing Season Comes to an End Full of Promise That the Worst Is Now Over.

By HERBERT.

When James E. Sullivan, one of the founders and for many years the controlling force in the Amateur Athletic Union, was cut off in the prime of life last Wednesday, track and field sports lost a constant worker and stanch supporter, and every believer in clean athletics a true friend. It is hard to realize that this big-hearted, masterful man will no longer stand the brunt of the fight for the highest standard in amateur sports, will no longer be the guiding spirit in the organization work so necessary to proper representation at the Olympic games, and will no longer be the champion for the schoolboys and their playgrounds. His sudden death was a stunning blow, a sickening shock.

It was my privilege to know Jim Sullivan intimately, and much good thereof came to me. His influence was broadening, his enthusiasm for all clean, wholesome, manly sports was infectious. Track and field athletics were his particular hobby, and his acquaintance was as wide as the two poles and his understanding as deep as the sea. Jim Sullivan has been misunderstood, harshly criticised and at times almost abused; but, knowing the man as I did, I can say boldly, from the experience of fifteen years, I never knew him to do an unfair thing or to pass hasty judgment. He worked constantly with a purpose single to the betterment of a sport to which he had devoted so much of his life, and to the day of his death was ambitious to broaden its scope and elevate its standing.

Well I remember what amounted to practically the last words he ever spoke to me when I was having a chat with him in his office, several weeks ago. "You can't preach too eloquently or too often, George," he said, "on clean sportsmanship in athletics. The standard must be high, and rules must be made to enforce this standard; but, remember this, all of us make mistakes, and it doesn't pay to judge too harshly unless all conditions are thoroughly understood." Jim Sullivan was a stickler for the rules, but realized full well the many pitfalls in the path of promising athletes, and believed in tempering justice with mercy. Many a man has gone out of his office with a keener understanding of the rights of others and a fixed determination to work in the good cause. He had the happy faculty of the true organizer and great executive in being able to enlist the enthusiastic support of those about him by the very enthusiasm by which he put his own shoulder to the wheel.

It may be years before another athletic Moses comes forward to take the place of such a useful, inspiring leader, but the works of James E. Sullivan will live after him. His influence long will be felt on track and field. His untiring energy, his unselfish devotion in the cause of true amateur sport is bound to have a lasting effect, while the playgrounds of the Amateur Athletic Union, even the International Athletic Federation will ever stand as monuments to this man of high athletic ideals. The sporting world, as well as his many friends, have reason to mourn the loss of Jim Sullivan. This fighter, this man, was loved and respected.

Another week has slipped by and the Boston Braves have not "cracked." It seems almost beyond the limit of human endurance, this long sustained flight of the house of Stallings, but enthusiasm and confidence do much to relieve the stress of constant fighting, and the Braves seem to be happily imbued with these qualities. With the end only three weeks off, the advantage lies with Boston. There is no gainsaying this fact, but the struggle is far from over, and the cause of the Giants is anything but hopeless. Baseball is a sport of many strange kinks and unexpected turns. The Braves, if anything, have an easier week in store than the Giants, but the "breaks" in baseball oftentimes come when danger seems furthest away and—hope springs eternal.

The Cincinnati Reds did not furnish the kind of opposition last week to lend much encouragement that the Giants have found themselves and had begun their long delayed sprint for the wire. There is no question, however, about the players being roused to the needs at hand. The world's series swag has served to do this where all of McGraw's rousing or pleading failed. It may be too late to get going again with the Braves hanging on so grimly, but it will not be for the want of trying. The need for whip and spur has passed. It must not be forgotten that the Giants and Braves must clash in five games, and at the Polo Grounds, just before the season ends. It looks now as if that series would tell the story.

August Belmont and his associates in the Jockey Club have reason to be satisfied with the further steps taken this year toward the rehabilitation of thoroughbred racing. Incidentally, the breeding industry in this country, which has been sadly in need of propping, has taken on a fresh impetus. The sport, which began at Belmont Park on May 26 and ended at the same place on Saturday, has been conducted along sound lines, and altogether has been maintained at a reasonably high standard. There has been lacking to a large extent older horses of high class, but the quality of this year's crop of two-year-olds has been of a kind to lend much promise for another year, and it seems only a question of time when conditions once more will be normal.

Herman Conkling assures me that enough horses have been promised for the five-day meeting at the Empire City track beginning to-morrow to insure some excellent sport. Most of the leading stables, of course, will be shipped to the Maryland tracks, but enough owners have promised their support to the meeting here, from all accounts, to give those who cannot go far afield a further taste of racing. The meeting deserves support.

Football mobilization has been completed, and the first skirmishes are at hand. Cornell will open the season against Ursinus on Wednesday, while Yale, Harvard, Princeton and most of the other colleges and universities will take the gridiron on Saturday for their first engagements. Interest in these early season games is confined largely to the coaches, players and critics as a means of throwing some light on possible strength or weakness. The real fillip to the sport, however, will not come until the days grow shorter and the world's baseball series is over. This may be said: The outlook was never brighter for an active campaign and an interesting season. There are fifteen big games now to only four or five several years ago, and the first of these will come tumbling along about the middle of October.

Most everybody picks the Philadelphia Athletics to win the world's series, but most everybody thought that the American polo team would beat the English invaders, that Maurice E. McLoughlin would win the national lawn tennis championship, that the Giants would romp home in the National League pennant race, that R. Norris Williams, the conqueror of McLoughlin, would beat Church for the intercollegiate lawn tennis championship, that the American golfers would make a good stand on English links, that the Davis Cup would stay in this country, that Hans Wagner would go on batting .300, that the Washington Senators would give the Athletics a fight. Connie Mack must look alive. 'Tis a year of strange happenings.

George M. Church deserves much credit for beating Williams on Friday. There was power to his game and much finish, but the fall of another champion was disconcerting. Anything is possible in this year of grace nineteen hundred and fourteen—even Charley Brickley may lose the cunning of his good right leg in dropping goals from the field.

The passing of Franch Chance brings to mind the needs of the Yankees. A manager is wanted with the brains of a Connie Mack, the genius of a McGraw and the skin of an elephant.

Frederick B. Alexander, who handled the junior metropolitan lawn tennis championship on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, last week, did much for the future of the game in this country. The tournament brought out boys whose game showed remarkable promise, needing but the ripening experience of years to place them well up in the ranking list. Alexander himself was startled by the form shown and expressed his confidence that from among these youths will be developed the players who will fight for the Davis Cup in the years to come. In carrying off the chief honors in singles Harold Throckmorton, the Princeton interscholastic champion, fulfilled the predictions of those who have before this noted the excellence of his game, but others, even younger than he, gave evidence that they will have to be reckoned with in the near future.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb felt out of place as a trailer in the American League batting list, so he banged out enough hits in the last six days to take his old place at the front—a place he is quite likely to hold in his present mood. The pitchers just love Cobb.

The challenge of the Federal League for a part in the world's series has fallen on deaf ears; but the toes of organized baseball are still aching from a good deal of trodding thereon.

These mutterings of a city series between the Giants and the Yankees is a sad commentary on the fighting qualities of some fans. 'Tis a world's series, not a city series, that should be anticipated at the Polo Grounds.

CAN'T BEAT THE IRISH

German Oarsman Jumps Overboard, but His Crew Loses.

An eight-oared crew composed of Irishmen won a close and exciting race with a German crew over a one and a quarter mile course in the annual club regatta of the Metropolitan Rowing Club, held on the Harlem River yesterday.

Harry Hart, rowing at No. 7 in the German boat, was seen to fall back in his seat at the end of the first mile, his oarlock having been broken. To relieve the weight in the boat he jumped overboard.

A double gig brothers' race resulted in an easy victory for George and Charles Froelich over two other crews.

The summaries follow:

Medley race—rowing across river and swimming back to start—Won by J. T. P. Callahan; John Schultz, second; Frank Bagge, third.

Double gig, brothers' race, five-eighths of a mile—Won by George and Charles Froelich; Walter and Herbert Hendrick, second; Hubert and Robert Hyland, third.

Froelich. Semi-finals—Daino and Gauss defeated R. Hyland and R. Pillot; Bagge and Callahan defeated Ryan and Indelkofer. Final tilt—Daino and Gauss defeated Callahan and Bagge.

Eight-oared shell race, Germans vs. Irish; one mile and a quarter—Won by the Irish crew (A. Corbett, stroke; J. Ryan, No. 7; J. Cloonan, No. 6; J. Wilson, No. 5; J. T. Callahan, No. 4; R. HALL ADVANCES BY BEATING MAHAN

Thirty Lawn Tennis Players Spend Day of Rest on the Courts.

WORTH, GROESBECK WIN THEIR MATCHES

Field Narrows Fast in Annual Tourney of West Side Tennis Club.

By FRED HAWTHORNE.

Sunday is ordinarily a day of rest, but not for the weary lawn tennis player, and that is why about thirty of them did their stint of matches yesterday in the annual tournament of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, where Classes A, B and C are trying to discover who is the best man in each division.

With an overwhelming entry list chafing at the barrier on Saturday, the opening day of the annual club championship, it was necessary to run off as many matches as possible yesterday in order to clear the slate.

Only one match was played in Class A, and resulted in the defeat of Lyle E. Mahan, the former Columbia University champion, by W. Merrill Hall, the playing-through champion, at 6—3, 6—3.

Hall's deep and powerful forehand drives, played with a decided top on the ball, paved the way for his victory against his tall opponent. Try as he would, Mahan seemed unable to put up an efficient defence against those penetrating drives, many of which eluded him by inches as they nicked the lines. Hall is now bracketed in the semi-finals of the lower half with Hugh Tallant.

In Class B H. C. Worth and George S. Groesbeck advanced to the round before the semi-finals. Worth encompassed the defeat of L. H. Fitch, at 7—5, 6—2, going to the net to win his points, while Groesbeck's steadiness under fire upset the calculations of J. D. Gengler, who succumbed at 6—1, 6—2.

E. L. Satterlee, Francis Rogers and E. T. Crilley, in Class C, the "baby class," reached the round before the semi-finals by noteworthy victories over formidable opponents. Satterlee defeated F. C. Fuller in a three-set match, at 3—6, 7—5, 6—2, showing superiority in his shots for placement.

Rogers went through A. C. Scott's defence in rapid fire order, vanquishing his opponent at 6—1, 6—1. Crilley found stiffer opposition in Edwin M. Leask, of the 7th Regiment, only winning after the set score had gone to 7—5, 4—6, 6—2. The first stages of the struggle were practically even, and it was only after the military man's strategy had been offset by a shortage of wind that Crilley was successful in executing a flanking movement on his opponent, whereby he took the last set and the match.

The club members will continue play to-day, but will have to face a rival attraction in the form of the annual women's tournament for the metropolitan championship, which begins this afternoon.

The summaries follow:

Class A singles (second round)—W. Merrill Hall defeated Lyle E. Mahan, 6—3, 6—3.

Class B singles (second round)—C. G. Herman defeated Dr. E. M. Alger, 6—1, 6—1; A. S. Dunham defeated W. Black, 11—9, 6—2; J. T. Harrison defeated F. C. Newcomb, 8—6, 1—6, 6—1; M. Ackerland defeated Dr. J. W. Travell, 6—2, 6—3; J. D. Gengler defeated W. D. Bourne, 6—2, 6—2.

Third round—H. C. Worth defeated L. H. Fitch, 7—5, 6—2; George S. Groesbeck defeated J. D. Gengler, 6—1, 6—2.

Class C singles (second round)—P. M. Hall defeated H. P. Farrington, 4—6, 6—0, 6—3; J. F. Kenny defeated E. D. Hubbard, 6—2, 6—3; A. C. Scott defeated H. Townsend, 6—2, 7—5; D. L. Weaver defeated Dr. Francis W. Shine, 6—3, 4—6, 6—0; R. M. Stockwell defeated L. J. Carruthers, 6—3, 6—0.

Third round—E. L. Satterlee defeated F. C. Fuller, 3—6, 7—5, 6—2; Francis Rogers defeated A. C. Scott, 6—1, 6—1; E. T. Crilley defeated Edwin M. Leask, 7—5, 4—6, 6—2.

WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND

Firemen Turn the High Pressure on Police Nine

A Three-Run Rally in the Seventh Wins Lively Game—18,000 Fans Out.

The baseball players of the Fire Department team had to apply the high pressure hose before they were able to extinguish the hopes of the fighting "cops" of the Police Department in their annual baseball contest at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, yesterday. The score was 12 to 8. It was the opening game of a series to decide the championship of the city and the ownership of "The Chief" cup, and 18,000 spectators filled the lower and upper grandstand.

Both teams were nervous and played rather loosely during the early innings. However, toward the end they settled down and worked many clever plays. Six misplays were charged to the firemen, but only two of these allowed runs to be scored. The "cops" had a total of four blunders, which also gave their opponents two runs.

A batting rally in the seventh inning, which netted three runs, decided the issue for the firemen.

Officials from both departments were on hand to watch the contest, among them being Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, Fire Chief John Kenlon, Police Inspector Dillon, of the Borough of Brooklyn, and Police Inspector Dwyer, of the 3d District, Manhattan. Both teams had their bands on hand to enliven the proceedings. Several thousand police occupied the right side of the grandstand, while the firemen were grouped on the left. The band of the Street Cleaning Department sat behind the home plate and also kept things lively.

Arthur Romer, the policemen's pitcher, who has refused several major league offers, was the first selection for his team, but he was no puzzle to the rival batters, as they drove him to the bench in the seventh inning after they had scored three runs. Romer was wild from the outset, issuing free passes with a willing hand and making two wild pitches. Alexander Armet took up the hopeless task and pitched well.

George Lynch, of Truck 29, was hit freely by the "cops" during the first five innings, but then tightened up. He kept the rival batsmen hitless for the next two innings, but was found for one each in the eighth and ninth innings. The guardians of the peace had runners on second and third in the ninth inning, with only one out, but Lynch easily retired the next two batters.

McAvoy drove out four singles and a triple in six times at bat for the firemen, while Tiencken and Malcolmson each made three hits for the "cops." The second game between the teams will be played at the Polo Grounds next Sunday afternoon.

GIANTS GET OFF TO SEVEN-RUN LEAD

Have No Trouble in Beating Perth Amboy Nine—Beatty Shows Up Well.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Sept. 20.—Jumping off to a seven-run lead in the first two innings, the young Giants sent down here by McGraw to-day had no trouble in defeating the Perth Amboy players by a score of 12 to 4.

Several of the colts played an exceptionally brilliant game, and a running catch by Mike Donlin was one of the features of the game. Desmond Beatty, the Giant shortstop, played a great game at the bat, getting three singles and scoring four runs. McGill, a local player, bounced a ball over the fence for a home run.

YANKEES FALTER IN THE TENTH

E. Walker's Single Brings Victory to Browns After Two Are Out.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 20.—The Yankees made their first appearance here to-day under the management of Roger Peckinbaugh, and were defeated in a ten-inning game by a score of 3 to 2.

The Browns led until the eighth inning, when Hartzell's double, Cook's triple and Cree's double scored two runs and put the visitors in the lead.

St. Louis tied the count in the last half of the eighth. In the tenth E. Walker, with a single, drove in Pratt with the winning tally after two men were out.
