

Braves Play Like Real Champions in Clash with Giants

Tesreau and Matty Both Driven from Mound by Batters of the Hub.

CONNOLLY HAS BIG DAY WITH STICK

Stallings Takes Chance with Cub Pitcher in Second Game, After Winning First.

By HEYWOOD BROWN.

A team with a future men a team with a past at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and the result was a score of 1 to 1, and the second was an eight-inning tie.

Yet Boston went too far. The invaders hammered Tesreau and Mathewson out of the box. They caught off-balance Hank Gowdy stole second while the pitcher held the ball and later tried to take third in the same fashion.

But when he got up everything else, George Stallings tried to down McGraw's men with a pitcher who is not yet old enough to shave the Giants took a terrible revenge. Suddenly taping a store of hits which had been so long looked on as the season the Giants hammered Paul Strand, nineteen years old, out of the box and then hit little Crutcher hard.

A Team of Midgets. Seemingly George Stallings has sent his scouts to look at the leagues of Lilliput for the Braves, hiring a big battery man here and there, are one of the smallest teams which ever sat on a diamond.

Joe Connolly is hardly half a head taller than Jimmy Ford, the mascot of the Polo Grounds, and yet what did Joe do? The first eight times he came to bat he got a hit, and on each of these occasions he earned his passage with a hit.

One of his drives was a home run, one was a triple, one was a double and the other four were merely singles. Connolly hit the facade of the upper stand in right field, but both times the ball bounced back to the diamond and was ruled in play.

Stallings will not rest nor will his regulars. Dick Rudolph, who had pitched twice within the last seven days, was sent to the mound for Boston against Tesreau, who held Boston helplessly when he last faced the team. This time he lasted for just two innings. A double by Evers and a single by Connolly were responsible for the first run.

In the second inning the count was raised to four. A pass to Smith, a single by Gowdy, and a sacrifice fly by Matty and Evers and Bescher's muff of Connolly's fly were grouped in the scoring of the three runs.

Barry Scouting at Polo Grounds

One of the most interested spectators during the double-header between the Giants and the Braves yesterday was a black haired young man who sat close to the diamond just back of the plate. He carried a notebook in which he made frequent entries, but the results of his observations will not appear in any newspaper to-day.

The man who was interested in trying to determine just what sort of ball would puzzle each of the Boston batters. Against the name of one man Barry marked nothing. He will have to come another day to discover the weakness of Joe Connolly.

Perhaps the latest ebb of the Giants' retreat was revealed in the third inning when Fletcher started to throw to second, thinking he had a chance for a force out, although no man was approaching the base. The outfielder tapped his head and his admission made it unanimous.

In the latter half of the fifth the Giants set themselves to the task of making up the lost ground, and in two innings they tied the score. It was not until the sixth inning that McGraw's men had showed this year.

An error by Moran, a pass to Stock, Merkle's single, Meyer's sacrifice fly run, and a double by Fletcher and the real fury of the fusillade was disclosed. Doyle bunted and his opening was followed with hits by Burns, Fletcher and Stock.

At this point with two runs home Strand was lifted and Crutcher took his place. Merkle's single scored Fletcher and Stock. No more runs were forthcoming, although Meyers and O'Toole both singled.

The scores follow: NATIONAL LEAGUE. NEW YORK N. L. 5, Boston 4. BOSTON: 1. Evers, 2. Evers, 3. Evers, 4. Connolly, 5. Whitely, 6. Schmidt, 7. Smith, 8. Smith, 9. Smith. BOSTON: 1. Tesreau, 2. Tesreau, 3. Tesreau, 4. Tesreau, 5. Tesreau, 6. Tesreau, 7. Tesreau, 8. Tesreau, 9. Tesreau.

Stallings Tries Youngster. With the first game won George Stallings called upon Paul Strand, the youngest member of his team, to pitch the second. The youngster, Matty, was the opponent of the old. Youth will be the rule.

AMERICAN, HOWEVER, MAKES A HIGH RUN

Melbourne Inman, the world's champion at English billiards, cut down Willie Hoppe's lead 268 points yesterday afternoon in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor, where the two men are playing a 6,000-point combinatorial match at American and English billiards for the world's championship.

In the evening session Inman continued to gain on Hoppe, scoring 811 points against Hoppe's 591. He went over to Hopson, the referee, and whispered nervously for a moment. Then he asked his brother for a foot rule and carefully measured the distance between the top cushion and the "top" discarding it. It was an eighth of an inch too near the top rail.

"I knew there was something wrong, you know. I'll measure the table myself next time," said he, and then proceeded to increase his total by leaps and bounds.

Inman showed traces of temper just after Hoppe had completed his tenth inning with a run of 61. He went over to Hopson, the referee, and whispered nervously for a moment. Then he asked his brother for a foot rule and carefully measured the distance between the top cushion and the "top" discarding it. It was an eighth of an inch too near the top rail.

MADE IN AMERICA

Many American buyers of foreign cars have been influenced largely by habit. But invariably their first purchase of a Packard has shown them the superior worth of the American-made car. In large proportion, they have been converted because they have realized in the Packard an expression of their own thought and taste, coupled with the superlative quality in performance on the road.
