THE EVENING TIMES, WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, AUGUST 14, 1890.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS WARMLY DEFENDED

Captain Peck Refutes the Charges of Cruelty in the Philippines.

ANTI-IMPERIALISTS UNFAIR.

 Allegations Defended by Most Patriotic Women.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF THE WEEK.

WATERDOWN, N.Y., Aug. 16.—Capt.

James B. Peck, who commanded Capt.

Peck's regiment of the Twenty-First Regiment, N.Y.S.V., in the Five Years' War, entered Washington to-day from New York, where he had passed the week. Capt. Peck, who is a grandson of Lieut. Col. Peck, of the First N.Y.V., was engaged in the war as a private in the Thirty-sixth

Regiment, N.Y.V., and afterwards went into the Fifty-Fourth Colored Regiment, and was afterward promoted to the rank of first lieutenant.

He has been in the Philippines for the past four years, and has been fighting with the American troops in that country.

He was in the battle of the Bataan Peninsula, and was wounded in the arm.

The ball was removed at Fort St. Philip, and Capt. Peck

was sent to the hospital at Fort Leavenworth, where he has been recovering ever since.

He was in the battle of the Bataan Peninsula, and was wounded in the

arm.

The ball was removed at Fort St. Philip, and Capt. Peck

was sent to the hospital at Fort Leavenworth, where he has been recovering ever since.

He was in the battle of the Bataan Peninsula, and was wounded in the

arm.

The ball was removed at Fort St. Philip, and Capt. Peck

was sent to the hospital at Fort Leavenworth, where he has been recovering ever since.

He was in the battle of the Bataan Peninsula, and was wounded in the

arm.

The ball was removed at Fort St. Philip, and Capt. Peck

was sent to the hospital at Fort Leavenworth, where he has been recovering ever since.

He was in the battle of the Bataan Peninsula, and was wounded in the

arm.

The ball was removed at Fort St. Philip, and Capt. Peck

was sent to the hospital at Fort Leavenworth, where he has been recovering ever since.

He was in the battle of the Bataan Peninsula, and was wounded in the

arm.

The ball was removed at Fort St. Philip, and Capt. Peck

was sent to the hospital at Fort Leavenworth, where he has been recovering ever since.