UNITED STATES MAIMED SOLDIERS' LEAGUE

I

THE United States Maimed Soldiers' League, composed of veterans who have lost an arm or leg in action, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF NAVAL VETERANS

The United States Maimed Soldiers' League, which was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

SOME PROMINENT GRAND ARMY POSTS AND THEIR COMMANDERS

The Grand Army of the Republic was formed on October 17, 1866, as a result of the United States Maimed Soldiers' League. The organization included veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

LADIES OF NAVAL VETERANS

The United States Maimed Soldiers' League, which was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

LADIES OF NAVAL VETERANS

The United States Maimed Soldiers' League, which was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

LADIES OF NAVAL VETERANS

The United States Maimed Soldiers' League, which was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

LADIES OF NAVAL VETERANS

The United States Maimed Soldiers' League, which was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

LADIES OF NAVAL VETERANS

The United States Maimed Soldiers' League, which was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

LADIES OF NAVAL VETERANS

The United States Maimed Soldiers' League, which was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.

LADIES OF NAVAL VETERANS

The United States Maimed Soldiers' League, which was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War, was founded in Philadelphia on August 25, 1866 as a convention of American soldiers. The first president was William Booth, and the League continued in existence for several years. The organization was composed of veterans who served during the Civil War and was later extended to include those who served during the Spanish-American War.