DEPLORES HASTE AS AMERICAN EVIL

Baccalaureate Speaker Says It Opens Door to Graft and Temptation.

CITY COLLEGE SENIORS HEAR WARNING WORDS

Oldest Alumnus Disagrees with Dr. Eliot and Declares Speed May Sacrifice Essentials.

As a nation and as individuals we are moving with too much speed, according to the Rev. Dr. Joseph Anderson, '54, the oldest alumnus of the College of the City of New York, who preached the baccalaureate sermon to the February, 1914, graduating class yesterday afternoon.

The great hall of the college was filled when the graduating class in caps and gowns marched in at 4 o'clock.

The ceremony was presided over by Professor Werner, president pro tem of the college, and, after a short reading from the Scriptures and a song by the choral society, Dr. Anderson spoke.

Dr. Anderson deplored the speed at which, he said, the American people live, and declared that undue haste was one of the great faults of the nation and individuals.

"We are living at too great speed," said Dr. Anderson, "and all great centres of humanity are inclined to do the same thing. London has been doing it for forty years, but New York is worse, and New York stands for the American nation in that regard.

"Hurry," he continued, "is only a condition of mind, and we only hurry because we allow ourselves to be hurried, and in doing so are likely to give no thought to the quality of the work we turn out or are engaged in. The anxiety and the desire to outdo the man alongside of us in the matter of time and speed open the door to temptation. The temptation of bribery appears, and we are confronted with the temptation to use unfair means in competition in order to forge ahead."

Dr. Anderson said he was forced to disagree with Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, who, he said, asked: "Why should a man take four years to do what he can in three?" The speaker said that speed in itself was an admirable quality, if it was not acquired at the sacrifice of more important essentials.

Dr. Anderson ended his address with a plea that the men before him should not lose sight of the necessity of proper character building and development, and pointed out that whatever a man's accomplishments and qualifications may be, they are to a great extent nullified unless he has behind them a moral status that will bear the most rigid investigation.

An organ recital by Professor Samuel Baldwin brought the ceremonies to a close.

REWED AFTER 50 YEARS.

Couple Renew Marriage Vows at Golden Ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Imandt, of College Point, renewed their marriage vows last night after being wedded fifty years. The golden wedding ceremony and a dinner, at which one hundred persons, all relatives, were present, took place at the Fifth Avenue Restaurant, in Manhattan. The orchestra played a wedding march as Mr. and Mrs. Imandt, their family assembled to witness the ceremony, entered the room at the side of the dining room. A clergyman read the marriage service and the old couple responded just as they did fifty years ago.

At the dinner the tables were arranged to form a Maltese cross, at which Mr. and Mrs. Imandt, their four children, fifteen grandchildren and a few great-grandchildren were seated. At a small square table at the centre of the cross was seated the youngest great-grandchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Imandt were born in Treves, Russia, in 1841 and 1842, respectively. They were married there on February 8, 1864. That same year they came to New York, where Mr. Imandt, whose grandfather was a tailor to Prussian nobility, opened a tailoring establishment. He is still in the same business in Manhattan. Mr. Imandt is a member of the Merchant Tailors' Society of New York, Past Noble Grand of Jupiter Lodge, I. O. O. F., and treasurer of Columbia Lodge of Knights and Ladies of Honor.

WOMEN FIND "TONIC ROUTE" NEW WAY TO DRUNKENNESS

Mrs. Allen Starts Campaign to Restrict the Sale of Medicated Wines as Insidious and Deadly Enemy of Her Sex.

ALCOHOL INCOG. AND FALSE BEAUTIFIERS AVAUNT.

There is a new way of becoming a drunkard. It's along the tonic route.

According to Mrs. Martha M. Allen, who heads the department in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union that wages war on alcoholic medicines, many women are adopting this route. A girl, she says, doesn't have to brand herself by ordering a cocktail when she wants to send the blood coursing along her veins. She can mention some stimulating mixture of beef, iron and wine, and she will be just as far along the path leading to inebriety.

The practice of serving medicated wines in restaurants has not yet been adopted, but the wily and insidious demonstrator in department stores, Mrs. Allen asserts, is furnishing many an innocent, unsuspecting woman with the materials for an unintentional jag. For those who take the tonic route to a drunkard's grave don't do it with their eyes open. No, indeed.

Good Mrs. Smith, who has never served wine on her table, starts home after a long day of shopping. As she leaves the last counter the insinuating voice of a demonstrator arrests her.

"Have a glass of 'strengthina,' madam? A harmless and muscle making mixture. No matter what ails you, it will cure you."

Mrs. Smith hesitates, but she takes the glass and quaffs the mixture. And all unwittingly she has consumed enough alcohol to implant in her an ineradicable desire for strong drink.

Mrs. Allen, who is starting a campaign against medicated wines, says they are entirely discredited in England, and that is why their makers are seeking a market for them in this country.

"Ten thousand British doctors have declared against them," she says. "They have declared that beef extracts with alcohol are harmful as well as useless from the tonic standpoint; the alcohol precipitates the beef and makes it harmful. The iron used in these mixtures is a poor quality.

"But all that is nothing beside the fact that these tonics make drunkards of women. They are useless as food. 'The British Medical Journal' states that it would require 1,922 wine glasses of one of these medicated wines, costing $150, to furnish the five ounces of nourishment a man being requires in a day. Think of the alcohol in those 1,922 glasses!

"No wonder Sir Thomas Barlow, who was president of the International Council of Physicians in London last August —no wonder he warns women against the baleful medicated wine.

"They must beware of it if they would not become drunkards, he says.

"The American Medical Association takes the same stand, and the Internal Revenue Department shows what it thinks of these 'tonics' by obliging those who sell them to have a liquor license.

"In spite of these safeguards, medicated wines are getting a strong foothold in America, and many a family will have occasion to rue the day they entered here."

Not content with trying to save her sex from becoming drunkards, Mrs. Allen is seeking to keep women from destroying their good looks with beautifiers that do not beautify.

"Poor, silly women are induced, on the promise of a 'bloom of youth' complexion, to put things on their faces that eat the skin away," she says.

"True, all beautifiers are not harmful. Some are merely epsom salts, colored and perfumed. But others contain zinc oxide ammoniated mercury and corrosive sublimate. Think of the effect on the skin!

"I have known of women in whom a latent tendency was brought out to a frightful extent by one of these patent beautifiers. In others the outer skin is eaten away.

"I consider war on these beautifiers only second in importance to war on medicated wines."

Three Feet of Her Red, Red Hair She'll Sell for $5,000 Cash

Diane Oste, Show Girl, To Be Shorn of Vivid Locks with Gold-Handled Scissors.

On the first day of May Miss Diane Oste, famous for her long, abundant red hair, will surrender three feet of the same to William Hepner, the wigmaker, and receive for it the sum of $5,000 in cash.

Miss Oste, who is a show girl in "The Queen of the Movies," at the Globe Theatre, reached the decision yesterday. It was only after much deliberation. The original offer to her was for the entire four feet of her hair, and the sum mentioned was $10,000. Miss Oste finally told the hair man that she would give up three feet from the extreme length for half the sum, and a series of cables to and from Paris closed the deal.

The identity of the buyer of Miss Oste's hair is hidden in Mr. Hepner's contract. This secrecy is a part of the bargain. But this much Miss Oste knows—the woman, who is now abroad, is a well known first-nighter in New York and is famous for her entertainments of an eccentric nature. And she needs the hair.

Miss Oste stated at the Globe Theatre that the three feet would not be missed by her. She also announced that she would give a "farewell-to-my-hair" party on May 1, which will wind up with a ceremony of cutting it off by Mr. Hepner. A pair of gold-handled scissors will be used, and kept by Miss Oste as a souvenir.

CO-OPERATIVE IDEA GROWS

Montclair Society Suggests Membership of 1,000.

[From The Tribune Correspondent.]

Montclair, N. J., Feb. 8.—The Montclair Co-operative Society, which was started two years ago, purposes to increase its membership to one thousand, which will make possible a larger and better arranged plant, so that the co-operative idea may be given a test on a more comprehensive scale.

If the contemplated enrolment is achieved it is probable that the society will endeavor to carry into effect plans which include the purchase of a building, a large increase in the business of the plant and a venture into other fields of successful storekeeping, including eventually the manufacture and storage of foodstuffs.

At present the society has a membership of three hundred, and its store sells to probably one hundred non-members. It has a paid up capital of more than $9,000 and does a business of more than $100,000 a year. It is said that the society is now saving its members from 5 to 8 per cent on purchases.

The proposed enlargement will be considered at the annual meeting of the society, soon to be held.

GIRL ELOPER SHARES BUIST'S FORTUNE

Miss De Janon, Who Fled To Be Waiter's Daughter, Beneficiary of Grandfather.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Roberta Buist Glaser, who as Roberta De Janon eloped to Chicago with Ferdinand D. Cohen, a waiter at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, of this city, and who is the granddaughter of the late Robert Buist, will receive an income for life of 11 per cent of the proceeds of the seed business left by Mr. Buist. She will also receive $8,000 in cash, the residue of the income on hand in the estate. The award to the young woman was made in the Orphans' Court following the adjudication of the second account. The accounting shows the estate of Buist, who died in December, 1910, to be worth $166,000.

The arrest of the elopers in Chicago was followed by Cohen's indictment in Philadelphia for kidnapping, but he proved that he had treated the girl as a daughter and the charge against him was not pressed.

In the girl's possession when she was arrested was found a letter written by Cohen several days before they left Philadelphia, asking her to think the matter over before she insisted that he run away with her. Cohen wrote that he loved her very much and did not wish to ruin her future.

The girl had written a letter, in which she said:

"This is to certify that I, Roberta De Janon, have left my home at the Bellevue-Stratford, in Philadelphia, of my own accord, and I also acknowledge that I asked Fred Cohen to take me with him, and after refusing several times he finally consented to take me as his daughter."

To the Chicago police the girl said: "When I asked Cohen to go away with me I told him that I had never been allowed to play like other children and that I had been neglected. You see, one that lives in a brownstone front in a boulevard is not always happy."

A year after her elopement Miss De Janon's grandfather died in Philadelphia. Miss De Janon married Stephen Glaser, of New York, in Los Angeles in January, 1911. They have since spent much of their time in California.

FILMS TO AID CHARITY

Work of Brooklyn Jewish Federation To Be Shown.

The affiliated charitable societies of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities have started a plan for city-wide education by means of motion pictures of the charity work being done by the federation.

It has been suggested that it would be advisable to display these pictures in New York City before they are released throughout the country. A private performance has been arranged, therefore, to take place on March 1, the Shuberts having offered for the purpose the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre, No. 119 West 39th street.

The pictures consist of a film story in two reels, entitled "How the Jews Care for Their Poor." They have been produced through the courtesy of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, and illustrate graphically the work of the charitable societies of Brooklyn. An interesting musical programme has been arranged for the evening.

GIRL SAYS WAITER IS JILT AND THIEF

Rose Declares Gobak Took Her $500 and Left Her on the Way to Church.

Charged with having stolen the savings, amounting to more than $500, of Rose Boniczka, who says he jilted her on the day set for their marriage, Samuel Gobak, a waiter, of No. 122 East End avenue, was remanded to the Tombs yesterday by Magistrate Marsh to await examination to-morrow.

The complainant, a nineteen-year-old domestic servant, of No. 65 Greenwich street, testified that she met Gobak about a year ago, that he proposed marriage soon afterward and was accepted. The wedding day was set for October 18, Miss Boniczka said, and on that day she withdrew all her savings from the bank and Gobak took out $500 of his own.

On their way uptown, according to the girl, Gobak took her money and rolled it with his own "for safe keeping." He then said they would get dinner at a hotel, and while she waited for him in the restaurant he slipped out of a side door.

Rose waited for her lover for two hours and then went home. She confided her loss to a girl friend, who communicated with the police.

Saturday night this friend saw Gobak in a Greenwich street restaurant and told Miss Boniczka, who summoned Detective Raftus. In Gobak's pocket, the police say, was a bankbook, showing that he had deposited $500 on the day he disappeared.

Appeal to Aid Sick Child.

An appeal for aid "to give a sick child the treatment which will bring relief from indescribable suffering" has been made by the Widowed Mothers' Fund Association. It is hoped that $36, the necessary amount to provide for the child, will be sent to Mrs. Henry Zuckerman, No. 80 Broadway.
