

WHEAT AND COFFEES

Loses Part of Advance—Corn, Oats and Coffee Close Lower.

Bulls had the best of the argument in the wheat market yesterday, and although settlement seemed to be divided, there was an uptick in prices most of the day, with prices touching the highest point for the movement. There was some export demand, but not enough to reach the market up to the high level reached, and late in the session there was an ebb feeling, with prices declining to an advance of 1/2c. There was heavy selling of corn due to offers of Argentine for March shipment, and a few Western cash demand. The opening was steady, but the close showed a decline, being steady early and easing off later, closing at unchanged to 1/2c off.

GENERAL MARKET REPORT.

Wheat—Wheat market somewhat complicated, with the average trader at a loss to forecast price changes, and commodity speculation. Settlement seemed to lean to the bull side during most of yesterday's operations, and prices made new high records. The market was generally active, with the highest point reached since early in the season. The advance was based largely on continued Argentine exportable surplus and business in Europe, as well as on some complaints regarding Argentine weather. Exporters were in the market, and sales for the day amounted to about fifteen thousand bushels, including 10,000 for the United States and 5,000 for other countries. Although New York to Rotterdam, but while Northwestern cash markets were firm, the market generally was quiet, and late in the session the market eased off and closed not much changed to 1/2c higher.
